U. S. Rejects Red Demand to Surrender Teacher Scheduled As Probe Witness

Major Party Spokesmen Begin Row Over Prices

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Spokesmen for the two big political parties yesterday started a quarrel over the high cost of living that is expected to last until election day.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, defended the record of his party in the recent special session of Congress and said that the lawmakers gave President Truman all the powers he needs to curb inflation.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, once again made the "Hoover depression" of 1932 an issue and charged that the Republicans were "indifferent" to a recurrence of hard times.

No word came from the White House, but it was expected that President Truman, sooner or later, would tear into the Eightieth Congress for its failure to follow through on his anti-inflation proposals.

Said Senator Taft:

"The present situation, while serious for millions, is not likely to produce either an extreme inflation nor a depression. Wholesale prices are now higher than they were in 1920, but they are only 2 per cent higher than they were in January, 1948. Furthermore, the weekly earnings of factory workers in 1920 were only $26.61, and they are now $52.81 a week.

"There are many reasons to believe that we are reaching a stabilizing price level. Wheat and corn have already dropped close to the support prices and will probably be followed by many other foods. Even in the price of meat, where prices are most outrageously high, the President in his message to Congress indicated that there was not need for rationing. . . . The President now has every power to prevent inflation, except price control, and if price control is ever accepted in time of peace, it will

Blacked-Out 'Chutist Sets Fall Record

Conroe, Tex., Aug. 9 (U.P.).—It was just by accident, and one that brought him within less than a second of death, that Clifton Cheshire broke the free parachute fall record by 6000 feet.

Cheshire, 24, of Houston, fell 21,800 feet before opening his 'chute only 200 feet above the ground at Conroe air field yesterday.

Cheshire, veteran of 31 months fighting with the Eighty-second Airborne Division, jumped from the wing of a plane at 22,000 feet and blacked out.

When he regained consciousness, he said he smelled fresh, growing things and realized he was near the ground.

"I kicked and flipped myself over, and saw the treetops rushing up to meet me. I snatched at the release on my 'chute. Then I jerked open the reserve 'chute. I busted out just over the treetops and less than a second later I hit the ground as the parachute fouled up in the trees."

Cheshire had fallen 6000 feet farther and opened his 'chute 1200 feet closer to the ground than did Spud Manning in Los Angeles in 1931 in setting the record.

Owen J. Roberts Named Dean of Penn Law School

Philadelphia, Aug. 9 (AP).—Owen J. Roberts, former Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, today was named dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

Roberts, 73, will take office September 1, when the resignation of Earl G. Harrison becomes effective.

Roberts' appointment was the second major change in university administration in 10 days. Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota was chosen president of the university July 29.

Harrison's resignation was announced the same day. He said he was going into private practice. He formerly was commissioner of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Roberts was graduated from the university in 1895 and from its law school in 1898. President Herbert Hoover appointed him to the Supreme Court in 1930 and he served until his resignation in 1945.

U. S. Increases Short-Term Note Interest

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder yesterday announced that he is raising the interest rate on short-term Government securities as a "further anti-inflation move."

Treasury certificates of indebtedness and notes which mature on October 1 will be refunded into a 1¼ per cent, 1-year certificate, Snyder said.

The present rate of interest is 1⅛ per cent. The ultimate effect of the action will be to increase the cost of borrowing money.

The Government interest rate normally influences the rate on private borrowings.

These other rates will be fixed as new refundings occur, the Secretary said.

Treasury notes maturing on September 15 will be refunded into 1⅝ per cent notes maturing on April 1, 1950.

The 2½ per cent partially tax-exempt Treasury bonds maturing in the amount of 451-million-dollars on September 15 will be paid off in cash.

The rate of interest of Treasury savings notes also will be adjusted, with details to be announced.

Treasury savings notes with the new rate will be available starting September 1.

Snyder said no change will be made in the Government's policy on long-term bonds. The upturn in Government interest rates has been expected since early spring, when reports circulated in financial circles that it was imminent. Secretary Snyder quashed the reports at that time.

Shipbuilding Workers Take 7-Cent Offer

28,000 Bethlehem Employes Earlier Had Rejected Plan

Camden, N. J., Aug. 9 (AP).—Bethlehem Steel Co.'s offer of a 7 cent across-the-board pay increase was ratified today in a second vote by 28,000 employes of the firm's nine East Coast shipbuilding yards.

The CIO-Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America announced approval of the offer which its workers first rejected July 26-27. The union sought a 13-cent hike.

The wage boost is part of a 9½ cent package including overtime and night shift differentials and a two-cent an hour credit for those employes who were on strike in 1947 during part of the vacation period.

Negotiating committees of the union's seven locals will meet in Camden tomorrow to sign the agreement.

After the first vote, company and union representatives met in New York but Bethlehem, Union Publicity Director Milton Murray said, took the position "there was no more in the 'pocket' and its offer must stand."

Murray said the night shift of Local 13, Brooklyn, would vote tonight. However, acceptance or rejection by members of the night shift will not alter the union's ratification since the contract provides for acceptance of only four locals.

The union claims the present average pay is $1.50 an hour and the company has reported $1.65 an hour.

74th Anniversary

Herbert Hoover's Iowa Home Plans Birthday Celebration

West Branch, Iowa, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—West Branch was cleaned and shined to perfection today for the return of the Nation's only living former President to his home town.

Herbert Hoover will come back Tuesday on his seventy-fourth birthday to the three-room cottage where he was born.

West Branchers, all 800 of them, have been preparing for the event for months. Everything was ready and their only worry was the possibility of rain.

The weatherman said it would be partly cloudy.

Mr. Hoover was born in this eastern Iowa town in 1874, the son of Quaker Jesse Hoover, a blacksmith, and his wife, Hulda. The boy who later was to become a world statesman once picked potato bugs to earn pocket money.

Young Herbert moved West at the age of 11, by then an orphan. But he has never lost interest in his home town. Some 20 years ago he returned here to open his campaign fo rthe Presidency.

Today the former Republican President was en route to Cedar Rapids by train. Tuesday he will come here by automobile for the finest celebration West Branch can muster.

The housewives worked all day preparing the plump chickens—to be fried according to Mr. Hoover's wishes—and the Iowa corn, to be served on the cob.

A birthday cake was in readiness, large enough to accommodate 74 candles and feed more than 100 persons. All of the food will be served at a picnic.

A parade was scheduled—along streets decked with flags, bunting and welcome signs, and with music blared out by 25 bands and drum corps from surrounding Iowa communities.

After the parade and picnic, Mr. Hoover will be honored in ceremonies at the town park bearing his name. He will make a speech, but it was expected to be nonpolitical. The park surrounds the simple frame cottage in which he was born.

Distinguished guests who will be on hand for the celebration include Gov. Robert D. Blue of Iowa, the presidents of four universities and colleges and more than a score of Midwestern State officials and business leaders.

Mr. Hoover will be accompanied by his sons, Allan and Herbert, and their wives.

West Envoys, Molotov in 3-Hour Talk

Moscow, Aug. 9 (AP).—American, British and French diplomats conferred for three hours tonight with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. They were believed to have heard Russian views on proposals for negotiating east-west differences on Germany and perhaps all of Europe.

United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, British special envoy Frank Roberts and French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau left the Kremlin at 7:54 p. m. (11:54 a. m. EST.)

All three appeared in good spirits. As was the case after the previous conferences here, the western envoys had nothing to divulge beyond the fact that they had seen Molotov.

Subsequently Smith, Roberts and Chataigneau met at the British Embassy, just across the Moscow River from the Kremlin, for a conference among themselves. Advisory staffs of all three missions were at the Embassy awaiting their arrival.

The British Embassy meeting was believed concerned with the informative telegrams the envoys will send their home governments concerning their talks with Molotov. Previously the envoys' post-Kremlin sessions were held at the United States Embassy.

An informed source described tonight's meeting with Molotov as one of the most important held thus far in the negotiations which have been in progress here for more than a week.

As in earlier talks Smith went to the Kremlin alone while Roberts and Chataigneau took translators. Smith conferred with Roberts for more than an hour before going to the Kremlin.

The three western envoys had met with Molotov Friday evening and a week ago had talked with both Molotov and Prime Minister Stalin.

Marshall Predicts More Moscow Meetings

Secretary of State Marshall predicted yesterday there will be more meetings in Moscow between Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov and representatives of the western powers.

Marshall made the statement to 94 'teen-age girls in the State Department Auditorium. The girls are members of the American Legion Auxiliary and represent "the Girls' Nation."

The Secretary noted that the western ambassadors only an hour before had completed their third meeting with Molotov.

"Our representatives have been engaged in long discussions," Marshall said. "There probably will be others."

Reds Reported Fortifying Zone Border

Weapons and Troops Being Concentrated in Area, Traveler Says

Berlin, Aug. 9 (AP).—Russian army commanders were reported today to be concentrating strong forces, building defenses and sending weapons, including rocket guns, to the border between the Soviet occupation zone and Western Germany.

The reports came from the British-licensed newspaper Telegraf and from a German journalist who said he fled Russian arrest. The Telegraf quoted Germans who said they were pressed into service by the Russians.

At Hof, along the American-Russian zonal frontier, German and U. S. border officials said, however, they had no indication the Russians were erecting weapon points there.

It was difficult to assess the meaning of the reports. Troop activity could be normal maneuvers. American officials said tightening of frontier controls has been going on for months to cut down the flow of illegal German border crossers.

Significance Is Elusive

Commenting on the Telegraf's account, an American military government official in Berlin said: "We can't say precisely what it means because the Russians always have liked to put up such physical barriers."

The German journalist, Alfred Bienert, 29, evaded border police in a weekend flight with his wife. He said in Hamburg that strong Soviet forces were concentrated 30 miles east of the British zone and contended border control points had been strengthened with both German and Red army guards.

Bienert also brought fresh reports of a critical food shortage in the Soviet zone. He said only about three ounces of the official 10-ounce monthly fat ration is being delivered and that sugar and cheese are being substituted for some missing items.

Reds Oust Food Official

[A Soviet attempt to seize control of all food rationing and distributing in Berlin forced the non-Communist food administrator out of his office in the Soviet sector, splitting the department between the east and west, the United Press said.

[The row in food administration was precipitated by a Soviet order barring all employes representing the west sectors of Berlin from the food department building in the Soviet sector. The Russians believe non-Communist Germans are sabotaging Soviet promises to feed the entire city.]

China Called Fertile Field For Russian Espionage

(This is the story of the former Russian cipher expert who exposed Stalin's spy ring in Canada in September, 1945. Much of it parallels testimony now being heard here in Washington by congressional investigators.—Editor's note.)

By Igor Gouzenko
Installment III

Telegrams were being received constantly in our branch reflecting the trends within the Soviet colony in China. Apparently everybody was most interested in informing on his associates and the material handed to us for decoding was both trivial and boring.

Colonel Muilnikov, one of the original organizers of Soviet Intelligence in China, and a much-cited expert in all phases of cipher work, arrived in Moscow from abroad and three of us, Angelov, Romanov and myself, obtained permission to pay him a visit.

"Living conditions in China are rather strenuous," he told us, "because the weather is terribly hot and the food strange. However, there is some consolation in the fact that we aren't bothered too much there by counter-espionage.

The Chinese have to watch the English, American and German embassies as well as us.

"Our section is a busy one, however. I frequently went sleepless for three or four nights at a stretch making photographs of important documents stolen or borrowed by agents and which had to be replaced by morning. The official telegrams to Moscow, also call for much time so don't think life will be simple for you there, if you do get assigned to China."

Muilnikov also remarked smugly: "Money is everything in China. You can even buy a minister if you have money."

Of particular interest to us was his account of the technique used in securing a detailed and steady record of documents actually kept under lock and key in the safe of the ambassador or at one of the foreign embassies. He did not name the embassy and we were well enough trained not to press the point.

"The lead-in came through a young secretary, whom I met at a reception," Muilnikov related. "The young man was obviously entirely sympathetic with Communist ideals, so much so that he pleaded for advice on how to go about obtaining permission to visit the Soviet Union.

"I played my fish cautiously, suggesting that he join me for dinner the next evening. He was obviously enthralled with the honor and was at my house exactly on time.

"A week later he visited me again and repeated his request for ways and means to visit the Soviet and I replied the easiest and most economical way was to 'prove' his sincere interest in the Soviet cause. He took the bait eagerly and begged for a test.

"The test I suggested was to obtain documents from the ambassador's safe just long enough to photograph them with a special camera in the handling of which he would be expertly trained by me.

"In accordance with instructions, the young man began working late at the embassy, remaining night after night to 'complete' certain work.

"Opportunity knocked one night when the ambassador himself was working late. He came out of his office door and went to the washroom.

"The ambassador was out of the office only a few minutes but it was time enough for the secretary to whip out a tin of wax supplied by me and secure a wax impression of the key. Several days passed before a key was made at the Intelligence detachment on the Soviet border, but eventually it was sent back by diplomatic mail.

"The course ahead was now fairly simple. All the secretary had to do was await a suitable moment for opening the safe.

"I cooperated in providing the occasion by giving a reception to which everyone at the embassy was invited," continued Muilnikov. "At that time I was fully aware that it would be unthinkable that anybody would beg off from any display of hospitality by their 'gallant Red Allies.'

"At an appropriate hour the agent slipped away from the reception and hurried to the embassy.

"It was almost ridiculously simple. Once a beginning was made, I made a constant photographic record of documents entering the ambassador's safe."

British Correspondent Must Leave Germany

Berlin, Aug. 9 (AP).—Peter John Nettl, British news correspondent who has been visiting Berlin, was ordered by Sir Brian Robertson, the British military governor, to leave Germany, British authorities said tonight.

No reason for his expulsion was given.

Perlo, Koral Face Accuser, Say Nothing

Nervous Witnesses Stand on Rights in Refusal to Answer

Two ashenfaced men stood up in the crowded caucus room of the Old House Office Building and were confronted by Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, confessed courier for Communist underground.

The confronting of the two by the self-possessed, "repentant" woman highlighted yesterday's hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities into charges of Communist espionage reaching into high Government circles here during the war.

Both men, on advice of counsel, refused to say whether or not they knew Miss Bentley on the ground that an answer might tend to incriminate them.

One was Victor Perlo, a former employe of the War Production Board, now an economic analyst for Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party.

The other was Alexander Koral, a 51-year-old maintenance man employed by the New York City Board of Education, who was reminded when he was on the stand that he had already signed a confession to Government authorities of his part in a Washington-New York spy circuit.

Koral Refuses to Deny Charges

Koral refused to affirm or deny that he had made such a confession, and he refused to say, on grounds of self-incrimination, whether or not he is now or ever had been a Communist.

Perlo, who was identified also by Whittaker Chambers, a senior editor of Time Magazine, as a member of an "elite" group of Communists being groomed in the early 1930s for important Government posts, also refused to say whether or not he was a Communist.

A hawk-faced man who constantly clasped his knees to curb their shaking, Perlo struck one sentence out of a prepared statement after he had been warned of the danger of perjury. It was:

"I vigorously deny the charges

'Kidnaping' Charged by Soviet Envoy At State Dept.

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

This Government coldly rejected a demand from Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin last night for the immediate surrender of a Russian school teacher scheduled to testify here next week on Soviet espionage.

It was recalled here that the Russian Embassy in Canada had made a similar demand for custody of Igor Gouzenko, Russian cipher clerk, when the Canadian spy story broke.

The Soviet envoy handed a formal note to Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett demanding that Mikhail I. Samarin, a teacher in a New York school for children of Soviet diplomats, be handed over at once to the Soviet consul general in New York.

Further, Panyushkin charged, both Samarin and Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, another Russian school teacher now believed lodged in the Soviet consulate in New York, had been forcibly abducted by the Tolstoy Foundation, an organization of anti-Communist Russians.

Accuses FBI

Panyushkin asserted that American authorities, specifically the FBI, had been implicated in these "kidnapings."

Panyushkin also complained that American "governmental organs" permit anti-Soviet organizations to operate in this country.

He charged the Roosevelt-Litvinov pact thereby had been violated by the United States.

The State Department disclosed immediately afterward that Lovett had rejected the protest on every count.

Lovett, the State Department said, told Panyushkin in a 30-minute interview that his accusations were based entirely upon conflicting stories in the press and could not be accepted by the United States Government.

Samarins in Hiding

Samarin and his family, who fled to the FBI Sunday for protection, are still in hiding.

Samarin, however, has stated that he wants to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee. The committee has readied subpenas for him and his wife, Claudia. With them in hiding are their daughter, Elena, 12, and their 1-year-old twins, Katina and Vladimir. The committee is satisfied it can locate Samarin and serve him with a subpena for testimony next week.

His expressed desire to appear before the committee caused hearings into Soviet espionage in high Government circles here to be extended indefinitely.

Before leaving the State Department, Panyushkin told Secretary Lovett in effect that even if Samarin does succeed in testifying he should not be believed because he has a bad "head wound."

The State Department said that as Panyushkin was leaving, the Soviet envoy remarked that Samarin had been wounded in the head during the war and that under the pressure put on him "by his gov-

Belgrade, Aug. 9 (NYHT).—The quarrel between Marshal Tito and the Kremlin erupted again today with the distribution within the Yugoslav Communist Party of the Yugoslav side of the sharp correspondence between Moscow and Belgrade that preceded the Cominform's attack on Tito.

The letters, which contained new revelations of bitterness, are in pamphlet form and are preceded by an introduction explaining that they were issued for the private guidance of party members. It is further explained that they were distributed only because pamphlets bearing the imprint, "Pravda Publishing House, Moscow," were secretly disseminated in Belgrade last week, giving the Russian version of the correspondence.

The introduction charges that Soviet agents in Belgrade sought to enlist Yugoslavs for espionage. This recruiting reportedly was accompanied by aspersions against Yugoslav leadership. One agent, identified as Colonel Stepanov, while attempting to recruit a member of the Yugoslav cipher staff, is alleged to have said, "Tito is all right for the moment," with the implication that he might not continue to be acceptable.

Among Russians who went behind the backs of Yugoslav leaders to get information was the Soviet Ambassador to Belgrade, the pamphlet charges. There was no need of such conspiracy, it insists; the Russians could have got their information from government leaders.

The introduction says "any one may love the Soviet Union, the land of socialism, but in no circumstances can he love his own country less."

The first letter, dated March 20, was written by Marshal Tito to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov the day after the Russians announced they were withdrawing all military and civilian experts from Yugoslavia. The Russians had complained of being treated with complete lack of confidence.

Marshall Tito firmly denies this. The pamphlet reveals that as early as 1946, Marshal Tito had asked that the Soviet missions be reduced. The Russians did nothing and Marshal Tito had written again suggesting that the usefulness of the military mission had ended. It

Europe Need Met By $4,875,000,000 Marked for 1948-9

Paris, Aug. 9 (NYHT).—The Organization for European Economic cooperation, in line with United States insistence that member countries decide themselves how to share American aid for 1948-49, has produced a report on annual needs that is within the $4,875,000,000 being made available by Washington.

This accomplishment was the result of a conference last week of four special OEEC representatives.

The four now will consult with all the OEEC delegations—from the 16 sovereign governments and western Germany and Trieste—to adjust differences of opinion.

It also was learned the OEEC had taken its first step toward a "master plan" for continental cooperation as recently demanded by Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator.

What Will Happen to Food Prices?

Meat prices today depend largely on meat supply. That in turn is governed by the supply and price of grain. Here's something important to every family, every worried housewife. Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post and onetime head of the Farm Loan Board, and A. F. Jones, assistant to the publisher of The Post and former Midwestern reporter and editor, have just returned from a survey of crop and livestock conditions in the great Midwestern farm area. Their report on what America and the world can expect in the near future, in both supply and price of meat and other foods, is intensely interesting. It will appear in two installments in The Washington Post, tomorrow and Thursday.

Genial Father Dowling Wins Hearers With His Deceptively Profound Wit

"If you don't know the problems which others face, you're apt to think you're uniquely stupid."

Plump, white-haired Father Edward Dowling, S. J., has been touring the country for more than four years, momentarily startling audiences with statements like that—which goad them to hear more.

At the week-long Summer School of Catholic Action, which opened yesterday at Catholic University, the Rev. Mr. Dowling, well-known in Washington, is lecturing on the "Cana Conferences," and "Democracy vs. Communism," the latter subject formally included in the summer school for the first time.

Father Dowling's rhetoric, combined with a broad understanding of human behavior, and an open-faced, pugnosed Irish personality, have been the motivating force in the rapidly spreading Cana Conference movement.

Conference Defined

A Cana Conference is described as "a gathering of husbands and wives, or engaged couples, for the purpose of helping couples to find in marriage the satisfaction and joy that God intended them to find."

Father Dowling says of it, in his audience-captivating figures of speech.

"It breaks down the ghetto walls between husband and wife . . . people get together and pool their discoveries and experiences."

He disclaims full credit for originating the conferences, saying he added the name from the Biblical marriage feast of Cana to an idea of "Family Renewal Days," which a New York priest copied from the French.

Basically Spiritual

The idea behind Alcoholics Anonymous, he said, helped launch him into Cana. "They discovered that where wives understood the program, there were better results and that while apparently a bodily problem, alcoholism was basically a spiritual problem."

Son of a St. Louis grocer, and one-time newspaperman on the St. Louis Globe-Democrat where he gained a still-flourishing interest in the American Newspaper Guild, Father Dowling entered the Society of Jesus in 1919 and was ordained in 1931.

His conversation is still spotted with newspaper terms and phrases, and like a headline-writer he packs his speech into quickly absorbed packets. 'An arthritic since 1920—he is now stooped, older-looking than his 50 years, and leans heavily on a cane—he says, "My arthritis is like an extinct volcano now, not painful, just stiff."

During his religious studies he received a master's degree from St. Louis University, and in 1933 joined the staff of the Sodality of Our Lady, where he is director of public relations at the group's central offices, the Queen's Work, St. Louis, and associate editor of Action Now, the Sodality magazine.

Long before, and during his Cana activities, Father Dowling maintained an intense interest in government. In this field, as in Cana, he sees a major need to spark interest and greater action among all groups.

Our present Government structure, he declares, must be "truly democratized," to combat communism successfully.

This can be done, he says "by improving the quality and quantity of the vote"; by changes in the political structures to "return power to the people"; by throwing off the "invisible" checks on free Government, such as selfish lobby groups; by lowering the voting age to gain greater participation.

The first president of the St. Louis Housing Authority, and an official of the National Municipal League, one of his prime interests is proportional representation—"PR"—for conducting elections.

PR, in effect in New York City from 1936 to 1947, seeks to give minority groups a voice in proportion to their numbers, instead of being completely "blanked" by the majority vote in an election.

The electoral college, and "similar outdated procedure must go," he says, and be replaced by greater responsiveness to the public will. "We need a limitation of (outworn) statutes, as well as statutes of limitations."

Changchun Spearhead Driven Back

Shanghai, Aug. 10 (Tues.) (AP).—Advance elements of a huge Chinese Communist force encircling Changchun drove into the Manchurian capital Monday but were finally repulsed, a dispatch from Mukden said today.

The Chinese news dispatch, to the Shun Pao, said about 10 Red divisions and an artillery regiment had been mustered on Changchun's outskirts.

Another dispatch from Hankow, central China, reported Communists have captured Tangyang in northwestern Hupeh Province some 150 miles west of Nanking. The dispatch said five to six thousand Reds attacked the city Sunday and entered it on Monday. It did not say whether Tangyang's government garrison fought or withdrew.

From Peiping, Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Moosa reported government claims of "good progress" against Red forces in eastern Hopeh Province.

Chinese Fight Grimly Against 'Black Death'

Shanghai, Aug. 9 (AP).—Chinese and World Health Organization (WHO) doctors are fighting a grim battle with spreading plague—the "black death" that has killed more people than all the world's wars.

The disease spread to Kiangsi and Chekiang Provinces during the Japanese war, says Dr. Robert Pollitzer of the WHO. In 1947, he reported, Nanchang, Kiangsi, had 31 cases and 16 deaths; Lanchi, Chekiang, 28 cases and 11 deaths.

"We are moving heaven and earth to prevent the disease spreading further," he declared. It has been active in Fukien Province for 30 years, but until the war was not known in Kiangsi or Chekiang.

Plague has scourged the world for centuries. In the fourteenth century, it swept Europe and Asia, leaving perhaps 25 million dead.

The disease is carried by fleas which normally live on rats but which can transmit the germs to man.

Sheriff's Aide Falls to Death Rescuing Boy

Tucson, Ariz., Aug. 9 (AP).—A sheriff's investigator, John D. Anderson, fell 1000 feet to his death today in rescuing a 15-year-old boy from a mountain ledge.

The boy, Guy Rockfeller, jr., trapped on the ledge all night by a landslide, was pulled to safety.

Anderson, who attempted the rescue despite having an artificial leg, had been lowered 500 feet down the mountain side to where the tired and frightened boy huddled on a narrow ledge.

Anderson tied the rope about the boy and then took a hold on the rope a few feet above the youth for the pull up the sheer mountain. Ten feet from the top Anderson slipped from the rope and plunged 1000 feet into a lake.

Polio-Stricken Mother Gives Birth to Girl, Dies

Wichita Falls, Tex., Aug. 9 (AP).—A 22-year-old mother suffering with infantile paralysis gave birth to a healthy 9-pound baby daughter in a Houston hospital yesterday four hours before dying.

The young mother, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, died in an iron lung after she had one brief look at her daughter, Mary Virginia. She was stricken Thursday.

Greeks Press Guerillas to Albanian Line

Athens, Aug. 9 (AP).—Markos Vafiades' Communist guerillas fought today with their backs to the Albanian border as Greek army units drove deeper into the Grammos mountains, front dispatches said.

(A guerilla broadcast conceded the rebels were making withdrawals but said these were "in order and in accordance with the plan outlined." The broadcast was reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, in a Belgrade dispatch.)

Greek army units were reported to have made new gains north of the Sarandoporos River, at the southwestern end of the front. There Greek troops atacked strong guerilla positions at Zegma and Bouketski. The army also neared the peak of Mount Liokos.

Greek troops on the northeastern sector already have reached the Albanian border.

American, British and Dutch members of the United Nations special commission on the Balkans hurried to northern Greece where an American and a British U. N. observer were wounded by guerilla mortar fire yesterday.

The commission identified the victims as United States Lieut. Col. Richard J. Darnell and British Maj. A. W. Fielding. They were taken to a military hospital in Salonika. A Greek source said Fielding received superfical wounds and Darnell was reported more seriously hurt, but out of danger. (United States Army officials in Washington said Darnell's home was in Spokane, Wash.)

The observers were hit near the junction of the Bulgarian, Yugoslav and Greek border as they were traveling along a road north of Levadia, Greece. Greek sources said the mortar fire came from inside Bulgaria.

Indo-Chinese Kill 64

Paris, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Sixty-four persons, including four French officers and 24 soldiers, were killed August 4 when a Viet-Nam Republican band attacked a French convoy near Rachgia, French Indo-China, the French press agency reported today. The agency said 20 soldiers were missing.

Deadline Set For Full Czech Communism

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—The Communist regime has set two target dates for completing purges and putting finishing touches on the administration of the "People's Democracy," reliable sources said today.

Informants said the widespread purge, in progress since the February coup, would end by September 30, the tenth anniversary of the Munich Pact.

All economic, political and administrative changes in the country are to be carried out by October 28, Czechoslovakia's Independence Day, they said.

The government's propaganda machine already is pointing up both dates in the light of the "New People's Democracy."

The Communist newspaper Rude Pravo, reminding Czechoslovakians of Munich, said that "reactionaries" purged from the government and still being tracked down by police were the same men who tied Czechoslovakia to the western powers, who sold out the country at Munich.

The newspaper indicated the Sokol, traditional gymnastic organization, would be purged further when when the cabinet returns from its vacation early in September.

The propaganda machine, meanwhile, called for completion of the two-year plan by October 28, two months ahead of schedule, and the start of a five-year plan on Independence Day. Economic measures to become effective by October 28 will include a new "general tax" designed to siphon off profits of large industries, Rude Pravo indicated.

The cradle-to-grave social security law passed by Parliament last spring was scheduled to become effective October 1 and the nationalized wholesale trade program was due for reorganization in October.

12th Indicted Red Jailed in Default Of $5000 Bail

New York, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Gus Hall, chairman of the Ohio Communist Party and a member of the national board, was jailed today on a charge of advocating the overthrow of the Government by force.

Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman refused Hall's request to be paroled in the custody of his attorney for 24 hours while he tried to obtain $5000 for bail. Hall is the last of 12 Communist leaders to be apprehended on an indictment returned by a Federal grand jury here July 20 and the first one to be jailed pending posting of bail.

David Freedman, Hall's attorney, pleaded that Hall be given the same parole privilege extended other indicted Communists.

"I won't do it," Kaufman said. He added that he did not regard the way other Communists had been treated as a binding rule.

are always kept under closest observation. The day-and-night observation extends to the members of these embassy staffs.

About a block from each embassy three or four automobiles with agents of the NKVD stand in constant readiness to follow cars leaving the embassy. This is done quite openly. Equally as obvious are the "militiamen" assigned to "protective guard" in front of the embassy. It is certain that all staff members know that the "militiamen" are also NKVD agents assigned to report on movements of officials and even the most insignificant worker in the embassy.

But all this is "decoy" operation. This real information-gleaning is done by undercover agents usually unknown to the "obvious" ones. A gardener or housekeeper in the next-door house may be doing the important observing while the embassy staff are regarding their own gardener as a rather clumsy sort of spy. The same applies to automobiles other than the "obvious" ones. While embassy members are watching their "shadows," other agents are following in more discreet fashion.

To the great satisfaction of the Soviet, the embassies in Moscow usually employ Russian technicians and servants—presumably for purposes of economy. This gives the NKVD splendid opportunities for espionage, and all such employes are trained members of the secret police. Nice-looking girl students on leave from the theatrical schools are assigned to apply for kitchen and other work at the embassies, after a special course in spying technique which stresses what to look for and what to do with important information.

Of course, these girls are never entirely on their own. The other agents among the employes keep a wary eye—and frequently a jealous one—on their activities. It would be decidedly embarrassing if, for example, one of these girl spies married a member of the American Embassy, went to the United States and exposed the Soviet violation of embassy privileges.

While the foreign embassies in Moscow employed "native help," don't imagine for a moment that Soviet embassies abroad reciprocate. All employes are members of the Soviet Intelligence.

Coaster Car Race Set Saturday

Boys from Arlington, Fairfax and Arlington Counties will compete Saturday in the first "coaster car" race ever held in northern Virginia.

The midget, powerless autos will coast down a 1000-yard runway on S. 23d st. between 26th and Inge sts. in Arlington. First prize will be a fully equipped English racing bicycle.

All entrants, boys aged 11 through 15, must have constructed their own coasters. The race is sponsored by the Arlington Optimists, County Police and Recreation Depatments, the Fairfax Police, and the Alexandria Recreation Departments.

Perlo and Koral Face Miss Bentley

Summary Put in Record

Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling put into the record a summary of information to which Perlo had access during the war from the secret records of the Resources Protection Board. The committee, he said, was prepared to show that Perlo had permission to copy secret data on aircraft production, plane-making, location of plants, etc.

Koral was as nervous a witness as Perlo. Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) tried to draw from him an admission that he had signed a confession to a Government agency—otherwise unidentified. Koral refused to affirm or deny it.

Then Investigator Louis J. Russell, former FBI agent, took the stand.

Without identifying any confidential source, Russell stated that during 1939 Koral had been approached by a man named Frank, who told him that mutual friends had advised him that he, Koral, was in need of funds.

Large Medical Bills Cited

"Koral at the time of this contact had a son who was ill, and had a large amount of hospital and medical bills," Russell stated.

Subsequently, Russell said, Koral became a courier for Frank and made 12 contacts for him.

These contacts, Russell said, were made with persons known to Koral as Al, George or Henry, and were made at a seafood restaurant in New York City. When contacts were to be made, Koral and the man he met would each carry a copy of the same magazine.

"The persons contacted by Koral, at the request of the person known by Koral as Frank, would, during the contact, turn over to Koral certain unidentified material, in a box or a package, similar to a candy box.

"Koral would then take the package home, and Frank would come and pick it up."

Then the story moved to Washington and Koral was linked by Russell to Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, head of what Miss Bentley said was the Silvermaster ring, and on a former Treasury Department official at a $10,000 a year salary.

"In October, 1945, Koral was approached by Frank, who told him that he wanted him to go to Washington, D. C., and meet a man whom he called Grig. The contact was to be made in front of a movie house.

"Koral made the trip to Washington, and contacted Grig and Grig's wife in front of a movie house, in accordance with Frank's instructions.

"Koral turned a package over to Grig during his contact and received one from him in return. Koral carried the package back to New York City, and turned it over to Frank.

Used Name "Al"

"Koral, when this contact was made with Grig, used the name 'Al'. The man and woman whom Koral contacted in Washington October, 1945, were Nathan Gregory Silvermaster and his wife, Helen.

"In December, 1945, upon instructions, Koral again returned to Washington and met Grig in accordance with a prearranged plan.

"Upon the occasion of this meeting, Koral advised Grig there would be no more visits upon instructions received from Frank.

"Upon the occasion of this meeting, Koral received a package from Grig, and returned to his home at 290 Empire blvd., Brooklyn, N. Y.," Russell said.

Said Paid by Frank

Two days later, he continued, "Frank" picked up the package. Upon six different occasions Koral was paid by Frank, Russell said.

All this time, Russell said, Koral thought the material which he delivered and collected for Frank contained information regarding Government contracts.

"Frank" Figured in Canada

The last contact of Koral with "Frank," the mysterious missing Russian agent, was in December, 1945, Russell said.

A similar mysterious "Frank" was also mentioned in the Canadian spy trials.

Before Russell testified to the information that it was Koral who acted as a courier between Silvermaster and Frank, the committee put in the record a description of Silvermaster's home from a real estate advertisement in a local newspaper.

When Silvermaster, who was taken to the Bretton Woods monetary conference in a sort of unofficial capacity by Harry Dexter White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, was on the stand he declined to say whether or not his home had any photographic equipment in it.

Miss Bentley had testified it was here the Silvermaster spy ring had photographed secret Government documents. Silvermaster declined to answer questions about this on the ground of self-incrimination.

Photographic Room Cited

The advertisement said the "fine brick home" contained "In the basement an excellent photographic room." It was dated May 3, 1947. It also said the house had a highly productive vegetable and fruit garden in the back. Miss Bently had previously described the garden.

Then the committee put Mrs. Gilda De Frank Burke, Old Dominion Gardens, Alexandria, Va., on the stand to identify a mechanical telephone index finder she used when she was with Silvermaster first as secretary in 1943 and from 1944 to 1946 as his administrative officer.

Mrs. Gray also testified that she delivered a letter from Silvermaster to Lauchlin Currie sometime in 1943. Currie, the Nova-Scotia born administrative aid to the late President Roosevelt, has been mentioned many times in testimony in connection with Silvermaster. Civil Service records showed he got Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson to intervene when Naval Intelligence was trying to get Silvermaster removed from the Board of Economic Warfare as a Communist and probable secret police agent of the Soviet Union.

Silvermaster had declined to say whether he knew a certain list of other persons in Government on the ground that if he did he might thereby incriminate himself.

Mrs. Burke found some of the people in the telephone index and said he communicated with them. The list she identified included: V. Frank Coe, now secretary of the international monetary fund; Bela Gold, Harold Glasser, Harry Magdoff, Lee Pressman, George Silverman, William Ullman, Harry White, David Wahl, and a Keeney in FEA.

Perlo, accompanied by his counsel, Ira Gollobin of 1441 Broadway, New York, followed the earlier lead set by Silvermaster in declining to say whether or not he knew certain individuals on the ground he might thereby incriminate himself.

He declined to say whether or not he knew the following persons: Miss Bentley, Henry H. Collins, John Abt, Sonia Gold, William or Bela Gold, Veet Bassie, Alger Hiss, Donald Hiss, Whittaker Chambers, Steve Nelson, Gerhard Eisler, George Silverman, Allan Rosenberg, Donald Niven Wheeler, William H. Taylor and Robert T. Miller.

He declined to answer whether or not he was or ever had been a member of the Communist Party on the ground an answer might incriminate him.

He also declined to say whether he had been in the apartment of Henry Collins, on the same grounds. He declined to say whether he had ever been in the home of Alger Hiss, repeating that on advice of counsel he declined to answer because "it might tend to incriminate or degrade me."

Miss Bentley was recalled to the stand after the quaking Perlo refused to affirm or deny her.

She said she knew him.

Then she said that Perlo certainly was "enthusiastic" about helping in the espionage ring.

"Did Mr. Perlo know what use you were going to make of the information he gave you?" asked Mundt.

"I rather gather so from the remark he made to me at the first meeting, because he turned to me and said, 'Is Joe getting all this stuff safely?' and there was an embarrassed pause and nobody answered his question," replied Miss Bentley.

"By Joe you think he meant Joe Stalin?" queried Mundt.

"Oh yes," replied Miss Bentley.

She told the committee that although she worked only with two groups she believed there were "a good many other groups" operating in Washington.

Koral likewise declined to say whether or not he knew a certain list of persons on the grounds it might incriminate him.

Koral declined on constitutional grounds to say whether or not he knew "Frank" or a man named Gaik Sovakimian. Sovakimian, Stripling told the committee, was arrested on May 5, 1941, and June 6, 1941. He was held on a warrant as a Soviet foreign agent on $25,000 bail. He was released and allowed to return to the U. S. S. R. in October, 1941, Stripling said.

Koral also refused to say whether or not he knew Miss Bentley, "Greg," Gerhard Eisler or Silvermaster.

He refused to say whether or not he had ever been to Washington on the ground that would tend to degrade or incriminate him.

Koral was accompanied by his attorney, Leo Praeger, 401 Broadway, New York City. Praeger had caused a delay in the hearing because, he said, he had taken the wrong plane and found himself in Boston instead of Washington.

"Through some mistake of the airlines, I found myself in that cradle of American liberty, Boston, Mass., and then by painful stages, worked myself down to Washington," Praeger told the committee. Far more talkative than his client, Praeger was admonished several times by Committee Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.).

The committee today will hear testimony for two witnesses, Duncan Lee, formerly a major with the Office of Strategic Services, and Robert T. Miller, former assistant chief of research and publications in the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, State Department, at a salary of $7437 a year.

Both were mentioned by Miss Bentley. She testified that Lee was a Communist outside any ring, whom she contacted in Washington. She said at the time Lee was one of the advisers to Gen. William Donovan in OSS, and had worked in Donovan's law office before going into OSS.

Immediately after her testimony Lee telephoned The Washington Post and said he was not and never had been a member of the Communist Party.

"I never gave Miss Bentley any classified information," he said. He added, "I have met Miss Bentley socially—to my deep regret."

Miller was one of those she contacted, Miss Bentley declared. She said that she collected his Communist Party dues from him.

Thomas said the committee planned to call Adolf A. Berle, former Assistant Secretary of State, this week. Berle has confirmed the fact that Whittaker Chambers came to him in 1939 with information about certain persons in the Government.

"We have reason to think Berle can throw light on the situation," Thomas said.

Soviet Envoy Tells of Demand

ernment" he was in a highly nervous state and wouldn't be responsible for the statements he made.

Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) of the Un-American Activities group to whom Panyushkin referred in a press interview later in most uncomplimentary terms, smiled when informed of this advance billing for the committee witness.

"The committee" he remarked, "has heard some strikingly similar rumors about some of its witnesses; rumors emanating from the same general sources."

Mundt asserted that Samarin is not held by the United States Government, but has been "secreted at his own request so that the long arm of the NKVD (Russian secret police) can't compel him to return, the same as Mrs. Kosenkina."

Mundt said he knows where Samarin is "secreted" but he "can't say where or by whom."

"Any time he wishes to return to the Soviet consulate he has the free right to do so," he added. "I see no reason to turn him over unless he changes his mind and indicates a desire to go back."

At an Embassy press conference summoned hastily after he left Lovett's office the Soviet Ambassador termed Mundt "a political youth—sick of some nightmares."

As for allowing the House Un-American Activities Committee to summon Mrs. Kosenkina from the consulate to testify . . . certainly not, the Ambassador said.

It was obvious, he told reporters, that the committee planned to label Mrs. Kosenkina a spy.

"The Soviet government would not permit its citizens to stoop to such levels of slander," he announced.

Mundt said the committee had been informed that Mrs. Kosenkina had been most anxious to testify.

"If the Ambassador is sure of his grounds," Mundt declared, "it seems the proper thing to do would be to permit her to testify in executive session with an interpreter of our choosing."

Meanwhile, the Kosenkina and Samarin cases had repercussions in New York.

There Soviet Consul General Jakov M. Lomakin declared that he "absolutely will not" allow Mrs. Kosenkina to testify before Mundt's committee.

"That's out of the question," Lomakin said. "She is a Soviet citizen."

He revealed that he had asked New York police to request New Jersey police to produce Samarin and his family.

Samarin had been reported at Farm Rova, operated by a White Russian group near Cassville, N. J.

But New Jersey State police said they had checked the farm and found no trace of Samarin or members of his family.

Lomakin spoke to newsmen at the consulate but refused to let them talk to Mrs. Kosenkina or to bring her to the window so photographers could take pictures of her.

"She is very nervous, but very well," he said. "She probably will go to Russia on the next boat. Why not? She likes Russia."

In the meantime, he added, she "will spend her time in some consul office."

Lomakin said that a subpena calling for the appearance of Mrs. Kosenkina before the Un-American Activities Committee could not be served at the consulate.

Asked if he would recognize such a subpena, the consul general replied:

"Absolutely not, it is out of the question. You can serve a man on the street here in New York or in Washington, but not here in the Russian consulate. She is a Soviet citizen."

He said the next boat for Russia probably would sail early in September.

Mrs. Kosenkina and Samarin on July 31 "missed" the boat which carried other instructors and 132 pupils of a Soviet-maintained school here back home.

The New York Times today quoted Samarin as saying "I don't wish to go back to the Soviet Union, and am placing myself under the protection of the American Government and American public opinion."

The Times quoted the teacher as denouncing the "party, policy and governmental machinery" of the Soviet Union.

The newspaper quoted Samarin as saying in a statment that he believes present Soviet policies are creating an atmosphere for a third world war.

Samarin, the newspaper said, "observed in the course of his interview early today that he felt sure Mrs. Kosenkina had been taken to the consulate against her will, and that she fully subscribed to his own sentiments regarding the Soviet Union."

Lomakin made his appeal for help in finding Samarin to Deputy Chief Inspector Edward Mullins of the New York Detective Bureau.

After talking with the Soviet Consul General for 45 minutes, Mullins said:

"We are starting from scratch. We are now going to check every person and thing connected with the Samarin case."

Mullins said he also would consult the FBI.

The New York police message sent to New Jersey State Police quoted the Russian consulate as saying it would prosecute if the Samarin family was detained at Farm Riva against its will.

Earlier, anti-Communist Russians charged that Mrs. Kosenkina was "kidnaped" by the consul Saturday to prevent her from staying in the United States. They said she had gone to the Reed Farm at Valley Cottage, N. Y., which is operated by the Tolstoy Foundation, Inc., because she feared returning to her homeland.

Mrs. Kosenkina was "rescued" by Lomakin Saturday and taken to the consulate. Lomakin then called a press conference and claimed "White Russians" had kidnaped her.

Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, who operates the Reed Farm, said Lomakin's account was a "lot of baloney."

Tolstoy Group Aided 'Escape' of 2 Sailors

New York, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Countess Alexandra Tolstoy revealed tonight that her organization, the Tolstoy Foundation, has during the past two years aided in the "escape" to Paraguay of two Russian sailors who didn't want to return to the Soviet Union.

The countess, daughter of famed Russian novelist Leo Tolstoy, termed as "nonsensical lies," however, charges by Soviet Ambassador to Washington Alexander Panyushkin that her organization was in a "criminal conspiracy" with the United States to terrorize Soviet citizens and prevent them from returning home.

The countess said she was "unable" to remember the names of the sailors she had aided or of their ships. She said the sailors came to her offices while the ships were in New York and asked her for refuge.

She said they found life unbearable in Russia.

The countess said she told the men she would give them refuge until their ships departed, at which time they would be illegally in the United States, and she would be forced to notify immigration officials.

She said that after the ships pulled out, her organization contacted immigration officials and Paraguayan visas were obtained for the sailors.

Happy in Paraguay

"They have jobs in Paraguay and are very happy now," she said.

The countess, an American citizen, emphasized that these were isolated incidents in the work of the foundation. She said that she had not wanted to give asylum to Russian school teacher Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kosenkina, but "what could I do when the woman came to me in tears and said she would be shot if she returned to Russia."

Romania Vote Seen On Joining Russia

Istanbul, Turkey, Aug. 9 (AP).—Romanian refugee sources reported today that Romania will decide in a plebiscite August 23 whether to become a part of the Soviet Union.

There was no means of confirming the reports here. However, there have been rumors for some time that such a plebiscite was contemplated and that Romania largely has been cut off from outside communications.

The refugees said four divisions of Russian troops have virtually surrounded Bucharest and have strengthened garrisons in other cities. In the event the plebiscite favors annexation to Russia, the informants said, the Romanian Parliament would be dissolved and delegates to Moscow would be named instead.

The newspaper Cumhuriyet said it had been informed that many thousands of persons opposed to the plebiscite have been arrested since early July and all but four Bucharest movie theaters have been taken over as prisons.

Cumhuriyet said the Minister of Justice had opposed the plebiscite and that he and his wife had been deported to Russia. (The latest Bucharest dispatches listed Avram Bunacio as Minister of Justice.)

The minister of the interior and the secretary of the Romanian Communist Party also were reported opposed to the vote and have been under the close surveillance of Soviet police, the paper said.

Romania has an area of approximately 91,000 square miles and a population of more than 16 million. The Balkan country is one of the so-called people's republics of the Communist bloc.

The last monarch, youthful King Michael, abdicated December 30, 1947, and left the country. More than two months later he told a news conference in London that his abdication had been forced and he would not be bound by it. Without mentioning Russia by name Michael said Romania was being ruled by a government "installed and maintained in power by a foreign country."

Romania's Communist-dominated government bloc parties polled 93 per cent of the vote in an election last March 28 and won more than 400 of the 411 seats in Parliament.

deputy mayor in Berlin, said the city government was marking time to "avoid hasty actions that might prejudice the negotiations in Moscow."

German leaders went ahead with plans to prepare a draft constitution for a west German government.

The Russian-controlled German press has been vehement in its denunciation of plans for a separate west German government and has accused the western powers of "splitting" Germany.

A German official in Frankfurt said there has been no halt in plans for the government despite the Moscow talks. He added: "We won't stop unless the Allied military governors order us to do so."

Representatives of the 11 states of the United States, British and French zones will meet in Bavaria tomorrow to thrash out their ideas of just how western Germany should be organized.

Progress of the Moscow negotiations was the subject of a conference in London between British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Belgian Premier Paul-Henri Spaak. Informed sources said they spent two hours discussing the negotiations.

Police Seizure Criticized

An American public safety official in Berlin said a protest was planned against seizure by the Russian sector police of eight policemen from the western sector forces, most of them "trumped-up charges of theft." The arrests occurred since the city's police force split into two rival factions two weeks ago.

[The United Press said armed Russian soldiers arrested the United States military governor of Bad Kissingen and his companion, a Berlin military goverment official, when the Americans crossed into the Soviet zone by mistake last Thursday, it was announced today.

[The men were identified as Lieut. Sherman F. Turner, Grand Island, Neb., military governor of Bad Kissingen, north of Wurzburg, in the United States zone, and

Standby Orders to Reopen Zone Railway Reported

Berlin, Aug. 9 (AP).—An unconfirmed report circulated in Berlin tonight that the Russians have ordered German rail officials to stand by for possible reopening of the railway between the western zones and blockaded Berlin.

W. T. Babcock, United States deputy commander in Berlin, said he had heard the story from a usually "fairly accurate" German source.

Since the purported Russian order has not been seen by Allied officials, Babcock added, it can only be classified as "pure rumor."

Gen. Howard Of Marines Ordered Here

Gen. Howard

Maj. Gen. Samuel L. Howard, USMC, commanding general of the Marine Garrison Forces now guarding Pacific islands, will be ordered back to Washington from Pearl Harbor in September, the Marine Corps announced yesterday.

The 57-year-old General, native of the District and a Marine Corps officer since 1914, commanded the Fourth Marine Regiment in the Philippines from December 2, 1941, until the fall of Corregidor. Captured by the Japanese at Corregidor's fall, he remained a prisoner of war till he was liberated in August, 1945.

In September, 1946, he returned to China as commanding general of the First Marine Division. He assumed command of the Marine Garrison Forces in June, 1947.

General Howard was graduated from Virginia Military Institute. His wife is the former Marianna Gray, also of Washington.

U. S. Businessmen To Get News Daily On Aid Purchases

American businessmen will be able to obtain daily information on purchases for the foreign aid program under a plan announced yesterday by the Economic Cooperation Administration and the Department of Commerce.

The information will be made available at the Commerce Department's Office of International Trade and at 42 of the department's field offices.

Copies of each procurement authorization approved by ECA will be relayed to the Commerce Department the same day they are issued. The Commerce Department will airmail the authorizations to its field offices.

U. S. Should Stop Making A-Bombs, Soviet Tells U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The United States is not threatened by any nation and therefore should be willing to stop making atomic bombs, two Soviet spokesmen told the United Nations today.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik told the U. N. Commission for Conventional Armaments that the United States and Britain are wrecking U. N. talks on arms reduction.

Soviet Ukraine Foreign Minister Dmitri Z. Manuilsky declared Russia had demobilized class after class of her troops, while the United States went ahead building up her strength.

Malik and Manuilsky spoke for two hours. To attain the international confidence demanded by the West, they said, a first step should be the destruction of existing atomic weapons and the prohibition of further manufacture.

Malik was particularly bitter about the United States, which he said was steadily increasing its armed forces while talking about slashing armaments. This, Malik said, was undermining international confidence.

Malik declared the United States and Britain already had wrecked atomic control talks, discussions on creation of a world police force and efforts to agree on peace treaties for Germany and Japan.

Now, he said, they are saying that arms cannot be reduced until the peace treaties are signed, atomic controls are established and the U. N. military force is set up.

While the U. S. delegation is telling the arms commission it favors arms slashes, Manuilsky said, military leaders in Congress are insisting that there be no limitation on arms and that the atom bomb remain exclusively an American weapon.

Manuilsky said the whole world knows there is not a single nation threatening the United States, but that it is the United States which is threatening other countries.

Unied States Delegate Frederick H. Osborn did not reply to the attack. British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, however, said Britain had learned a lesson about disarming without security.

He said the Russians argue that world confidence will follow if the big powers only will go ahead and reduce their arms.

Despite the Soviet fondness for the word "democracy," Cadogan added, the Soviet was attempting to impose its will on the 11-nation commission with a "minority of two."

Calls Red Plan Worthless

He said the Soviet disarmament plan, which the commission rejected last year and which the Russians reintroduced recently, would not "be worth the paper it is written on," since it would merely involve pledges and no system of effective control.

"The peoples of the world may be simple-minded in the estimation of my Soviet colleagues," Cadogan said, "but they are not so simple-minded as that."

The commission will meet again Thursday at 9:30 a. m. (EST) to continue work on its report to the Security Council. Meanwhile, the Security Council will resume debate Tuesday on the Trieste problem.

The United States and Britain are reported ready to answer Yugoslav complaints that they have violated the Italian peace treaty by plotting to give the free territory to Italy.

Nenni in Moscow

Birth Rate Increases In Overcrowded Italy

Rome, Aug. 9 (NYHT).—Although Italy's overpopulation is one of her gravest problems, her birth rate was higher during the first four months of this year than it was in 1947, the Italian Central Institute of Statistics reported today.

The Italian population increased by 142,000 during the first four months of the year, bringing it to 46,821,970. Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi says Italy can support only 38 million persons. Italy is only two thirds as large as California. California has a population of only seven million.

U. S. Presents List Of Danube Musts

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 9 (AP). With little hope of success, the United States today introduced its major requirements for a new international pact on control of Danube River shipping.

They represented, as a whole, the American price for any agreement with eastern Europe's Communist bloc which would open the Danube to unrestricted traffic from Germany to the Black Sea.

The United States' list of musts was presented in the form of amendments to a Soviet draft plan for a Danube convention which would give the Communist states exclusive control over the waterway.

Britain, France Act

Britain and France filed several amendments along parallel lines. Members of the Western powers' delegations, outnumbered seven to three, held a series of private meetings today to chart a unified course of action when detailed debate on the Soviet plan opens tomorrow.

The major terms upon which the Western powers will insist—and their differences with the Russian draft—are these:

1. Hard and fast guarantees of free navigation for vessels of all nations on a footing of entire equality without discrimination.

The Soviet plan pledges free navigation, but sets up a system protecting the sovereign rights of the Danube states over the waters in their own territory and safeguarding preferential shipping pacts which Russia has with its Balkan neighbors.

Seats on Commission

2. Creation of an 11-nation Danubian Commission upon which the three major Western powers and Austria would have seats.

The Soviet plan would limit membership to the Danubian countries and would bar Austria until that country receives a peace treaty.

3. Require ratification by all 10 participating countries before the convention could go into effect.

Under the Russian proposal it would become effective as soon as it has been approved by six of the seven Danubian countries.

but was still awaiting an invitation.

Much space was given to disproving Russian charges of an incorrect agriculture policy. While the Yugoslavs rejected collectivism, the goal remained the same—complete eventual socialization of the peasantry.

The last letter, dated May 17, says the Yugoslavs had tried to convince the Russians of the baselessness of their accusations and had failed. There was no point in further argument.

was brought out that Soviet advisors with the rank of lieutenant colonel to general got from 31,0000 to 40,000 dinars a month from the Yugoslav government while a general in the Yugoslav army got only 9000 to 11,000 dinars and a minister only 12,000. Apparently the difference in pay had caused considerable resentment.

The letters deny that Marshal Tito's Minister of Propaganda, Milovan Djilas, had made slurring references to the morality of Soviet officers. All he did, says the letter, was to draw attention to some examples of bad conduct and to warn that if this continued it would be used as propaganda material by reactionaries and contrasted with the behavior of British officers.

Another letter revealed that the Soviet trade delegate in Belgrade has refused to sign an agreemnt for trade quotas between the two countries. Yugoslavia had a trade delegation all set to go to Moscow

England Reports Third New Moon Child Murder

Manchester, Eng., Aug. 9 (AP)—Four-year-old Joe Creamer was found hanging from an electric wire in the blitzed ruins of a factory here last night. He was the third Lancashire child murdered at the time of the new moo nin the last six months.

Children who heard his screams saw a "youngish" man run out through a large hole in the factory wall. They ran for help. A passerby cut down the body, which had been stripped except for an undershirt.

This and the two other new moon cases are still unsolved.

Eleven-year-old Tuentin Smith was stabbed at Farnworth by a killer who tore off most of his clothing.

Little June Devaney, 3, was kidnaped from her bed in a Blackburn hospital and slain.

Man's Death Laid To Serpent Rites

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 9 (AP). The Chattanooga News-Free Press said today that religious rites of a serpent-handling sect had claimed the life of a 32-year-old Lindale, Ga., man near here last night.

The victim was Harvey Bell, son of Mrs. Nancy Bell of Lindale.

The News Free-Press said Bell's death was the third snakebite fatality since founding of the sect three years ago.

Snake handling in religious rites is illegal in Tennessee.

Reds Order French Miners to Strike

Paris, Aug. 9 (AP).—French Communist labor bosses polled 10,000 northern coal miners out on strike today in protest against Premier Andre Marie's economic reform bill.

The walkouts were announced as ony temporary, with the longest of the scatered strikes being set for 24 hours.

The miners left the pits as the National Assembly neared the end of its debate on the measure to give the French cabinet wide powers to decree economic and financial laws.

Under the bill the government could order economies in the army and civil service ranks and overhaul the tax system. Finance Minister Paul Reynaud would be permitted to suppress some taxes and increase others.

Legislative leaders agreed to this latter clause with the proviso that the Assembly would have ratifying powers on any such tax decrees when it takes up the budget in December.

In view of this compromise, it generally was expected that the Assembly would approve the bill by a large majority. The Assembly recessed late tonight and the chairman ordered debate resumed tomorrow.

The deputies adopted several of the articles of the bill by a show of hands and sent others back to committee for technical changes.

Canada Living Costs Increase 2.6 Points

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—The Canadian cost of living index advanced 2.6 points during June to the record high of 156.9 on July 2, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics announced today.

The bureau attributed the increase to a "further sharp rise" in food prices, plus "moderate increases" in the cost of clothing, home furnishings and services, fuel and light and other items.

On June 1, the index stood at 154.3, as compared with 135.9 a year ago and 148.3 on January 2, 1948. The index is based on the average of the 1935-49 period which equals 100.

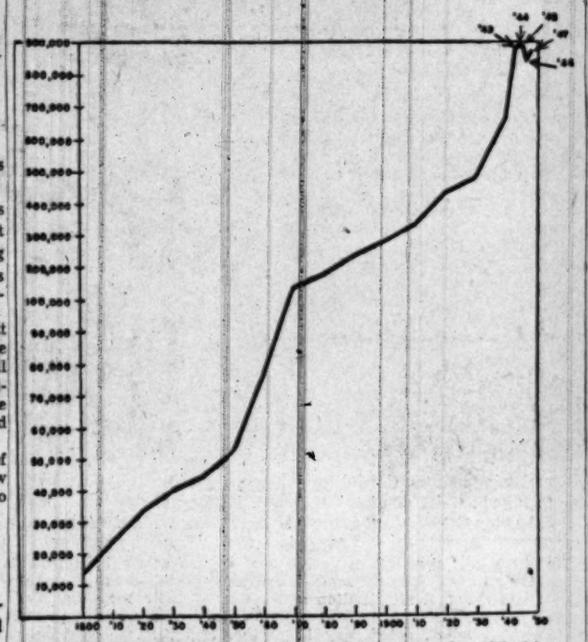
Growth of the District



RAPID RISE—Latest Census Bureau figures show how Washington has grown over the years. Growth has been particularly rapid during war years. All time high was 849,000 in 1944 Present figure is 861,000. Total does not include suburban area where growth has been even more rapid in recent years

Procedure Set On Italian Colony Issue

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers conference decided today to discuss the future of each of Italy's prewar African colonies separately to avoid letting differences over one territory snarl agreements over the others.

The deputies began the final phase of their 11-month inquiry into the disposal of Libya, Eritrea and Somaliland. U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas presided.

Sir Noel Charles represented Britain and Ambassadors Rene Massigli and George N. Zarubin represented France and Russia, respectively.

Attendance by the ranking London representatives of each country apparently indicated the increasing importance of the current stage of the negotiations.

The decision to consider each colony individually is important because it means that agreement on any one will avoid the need for referring it to the United Nations General Assembly if differences come up over the others.

Under the Ialian peace treaty, the disposition of the colonies will be tossed into the lap of the General Assembly if the Big Four fail to agree.

Red Arrest Irks British

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 9 (AP).—Vienna police said Russian soldiers arrested an unidentified man today in the British zone of Vienna. The British were reported planning a protest.

Population For D. C. Set At 861,000

The population of this District is again expanding after a drastic decrease in 1946, Census Bureau figures have revealed.

Total population on July 1, 1947, latest available figure, was estimated at 861,000, an 18,000 gain over 1946.

The District record was set in the peak war year of 1944 when the population figure, boosted by a steady deluge of Government workers, rose to 894,000.

The following year, with decentralization in progress, the population dropped to 880,000 with a further decline to 843,000 in 1946.

The District's growth generally has been steady with the graph curving sharply upward during times of war.

From a population of 14,092 in 1800 the figure rose to 75,080 in 1860. Then followed the Civil War and the 1870 census showed a 131,700 total.

In 1910 the bureau listed 331,069 residents. By 1920 the total was 437,571.

The 1947 estimate showed an increase of 198,000 from the decennial census total in 1940 of 663,091, a percentage boost of 29.8. Figures do not include the population of suburban areas which have been expanding at a rapid rate.

Maryland showed a gain from the 1,821,244 listed in 1940 to 2,139,000 in 1947. Virginia rose from 2,677,773 to 2,999,000 in the same period.

New York, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman today granted a restraining order prohibiting union interference with the American Broadcasting Co.'s inaugural program over television station WJZ-TV tomorrow night.

A jurisdictional dispute between the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and the National Asspciation of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians had threatened to force cancellation of the broadcast.

First Draftees To Enter Army About Nov. 1

By the United Press

The first men called up under the new peacetime draft probably will not actually don uniforms much before November 1, Selective Service officials indicated yesterday.

That could mean that anyone turning 26 in the next 80 days very likely will escape the 21-month hitch prescribed by the new law, even though otherwise eligible for military service.

All youths 18-through-25 must register for the draft starting August 30. But the Army may induct only those in the 19-through-25 age group. As soon as a man hits 26, he no longer can be drafted even if he is at the induction station.

Army Gains Under Law

About 100,000 men turn 26 each month, but they are replaced on the draft rolls by an equal number of youths reaching 19. That actually is a net manpower gain for the Army because a far greater percentage of 19-year-olds will be available for service. Officials said the Army will get only 7000 men from the ranks of 25-year-olds.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall has said the Army will issue its first call for draftees about October 1. But Selective Service officials said it will take some time to get them into uniform.

It will take [illegible] instanced, to get induction notices out to registrants. [illegible] draftee, for a while at least, probably will be given 20 days to get his private affairs in order before reporting.

"My guesss is," one official said, "that it will take at least 60 days from the time the registration starts August 30 to process the registrants and get them ready to report for actual military service."

The registration will be staggered over the first 18 days of September, with older men reporting first.

There probably will be five groups of registrants under the new draft instead of the four prevailing under the wartime draft. Men available for service again are expected to be classified 1-A.

In addition to the wartime occupational, dependency and physical deferments, however, there probably will be a fifth group made up of veterans. Most veterans with any wartime service at all are exempt from the draft.

FPC to Resume Hearings on Gas Pipelines Today

The Federal Power Commission today will resume hearings on applications to build natural gas facilities costing an estimated $168,567,700.

Begun in June, the hearings will reopen today with arguments for and against applications by the following:

Atlantic Seaboard and Virginia Gas of Charleston, W. Va., to construct and operate 268 miles of 26-inch pipeline from Clendinen, W. Va., to Rockville, Md. Cost is estimated at $20,649,600.

Commonwealth Natural Gas Corp., to build a 537-mile, 20-inch pipeline from West Bend, Ky., to Norfolk, Va., at a cost of $29,522,100.

Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., to build 909 miles of pipeline to parallel its existing lines. In addition, the company wants to lay 395 miles of 26-inch pipe from northeast Kentucky to Buffalo, N. Y. Over-all cost is figured at $118,396,000.

Approximately 100 "interveners" will appear at the hearings, an FPC spokesman said yesterday, to urge approval and to oppose the applications.

Korea Republic Ready

Seoul, Aug. 9 (AP).—President Syngman Rhee of Korea today notified Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of United States occupation troops in the American zone, that the new government of the republic is prepared to take over August 15.

10,000 Jews Enter Israel Each Month

(From Press Dispatches)

Tel Aviv, Aug. 9.—The sorest point in the Arab-Jewish dispute—immigration to Israel—achieves renewed prominence today with the revelation that 10,000 Jewish displaced persons are reaching Israel monthly under the resettlement program.

Already 51,000 immigrants have arrived, 30,000 of them since the state was proclaimed May 14.

Will Empty DP Camps

Dr. Joseph Schwartz, European director of the Joint Distribution Committee, reported today the 10,000 monthly quota would probably continue for two years. He considers this sufficient to clean out Europe's DP camps.

Hope for establishment in Jerusalem of an international regime supported by United Nations police has been abandoned here, it was learned, and formal absorption of Jerusalem's new city within the state of Israel appears a likely next step.

In Jerusalem, United States Consul General John J. MacDonald has protested to the Jewish military governor over shots fired at Americans and at cars flying the United States flag.

He protested specifically an attack on Joseph M. Przywatowski, a civilian consulate guard, who was shot last week.

At Cairo, an Arab League official said the Arab nations had not yet made a decision regarding an Israeli bid for peace talks.

Abel Moneim Mustafa Bey, head of the Arab League's political department added, however, that since 1939 the Arabs have refused to have any conference or other direct contact with Zionists.

Holy Land Tense

At Lake Success, N. Y., Count Folke Bernadotte, U. N. mediator reported to the Security Council that a general fear of an imminent renewal of war keeps the Holy Land tense.

"On the government level, both sides desire to continue the truce," he said, but both feel free to take "such military action as they see fit."

the Akron Community Chest, has been named executive director of the United Community Services of Washington.

United Community Services is the new combined welfare organization which has replaced the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies of Washington.

Kruse, who holds a master's degree in political science from Syracuse University, did postgraduate work in social case methods for two years at Western Reserve University. He has been engaged in community welfare work since 1933.

He was an instructor in sociology at the University of Akron for six years and is now teaching a course in rural sociology at Cornell University summer school. Married, he has a daughter, Gretchen, 9.

He will arrive here early next month.

Costa Rica To Cooperate With Panama

Panama, Panama, Aug. 9 (AP).—President Enrique Adolfo Jimenez said tonight he had received an assurance from President Jose figueres at Costa Rica that the Costa Rican government would not permit any subversive activities aimed at the Panamanian government.

His announcement followed reports by high government sources in Panama that former President Arnulfo Arias, now in Costa Rica, was organizing an armed invasion of Panama from the neighboring state.

(In San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, Arias denied he was planning a revolt, and said: "If such trouble develops, it will come from within Panama and not from any outside source." He added that the people of Panama, "living under a dictatorial regime, will demand their rights, acquired at the elections."

(The Costa Rican government also denied the reports in a formal statement which said Arias was offered asylum as a political exile.)

Eight sources in the Panamanian government said a force of "foreign mercenaries is poised to invade the country along the border zone at Puerto Armuelles," a Panamanian town on the Pacific Ocean.

Reports from Puerto Armuelles said a large number of Arias' followeds have crossed into Costo Rica in the last few days, using banana plantation trails.

Arias has been in Costa Rica since Wednesday when he fled Panama, declaring his life was in danger. His flight preceded an announcement Saturday from the nationa elections jury that his government-backed opponent, Domingo Diaz Arosemena, was president-elect. The election was held May 9, and Arias claimed he won on the basis of an unofficial count.

World Bank Backs Loan to 4 Dutch Lines

By The Associated Press

The World Bank yesterday announced a loan of 12 million dollars to four Dutch ship lines for the purchase of six United States cargo vessels.

The loans are in the form of 2½ per cent serial mortgage notes guaranteed by the Netherlands Government. A group of 10 private United States banks has purchased $8,100,000 of the securities from the World Bank. The notes mature in one to ten years.

The transaction is the first in which the International Bank fo. Reconstruction and Development has used its powers of guaranteeing loans rather than making outright credits. It is the first time also that it has made a mortgage loan.

The funds provide for the purchase of two ships each by the Rotterdam-Lloyd and the Nederland Line, and one ship each by the Holland-America Line and the United Netherlands Navigation Co.

The participating banks are:

Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association, San Francisco; Bankers Trust Co., New York; Buffalo Savings Bank, Buffalo, N. Y.; Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., New York; the Chase National Bank of the City of New York; Dime Savings Bank, of Brooklyn; First National Bank of New York; Guaranty Trust Co., of New York; J. P. Morgan & Co., Inc., New York, and the National City Bank of New York.

The banks purchased all notes maturing in the first six years and part of the notes coming due in the seventh. The remaining $3,900,000 in notes will be held by the World Bank for the present.

Besides the 2½ per cent interest rate, the shipping lines will pay annually to the World Bank a commission of 1 per cent and a service charge of 1/16 per cent on the amount of notes outstanding.

Three of the ships already are in service. The vessels were used as escort aircraft carriers during World War II and are being reconverted into C-3-S-A 2 type cargo vessels.

Rep. Ploeser Calls for Cut in Steel Exports

By The Associated Press

A reduction of all steel exports and a "crack down" on metal shipments that might fall into the hands of nations "not friendly to the European Recovery Program," were demanded yesterday by Representative Ploeser (R., Mo.).

The Missourian, chairman of the House Small Business Committee, presented his views in a letter to Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

"We are continuing to export steel to various European countries, to the great disadvantage of our own economy and national security, and particularly to the disadvantage of small business," he wrote.

He expressed amazement that Sweden imported 286,560 tons of steel from the United States last year, Great Britain 195,311 tons, and Belgium 61,796.

While steel is leaving the country, he said, hundreds of businessmen in the United States are complaining to the Small Business Committee that they are unable to get the metal or are forced to pay premium prices in the gray markets.

Setup Explained for District Inductions

District Selective Service officials, who will oversee induction of an estimated 25,000 to 30,000 Washington men beginning in October, yesterday outlined the steps that will put them into uniform.

First, the draft machinery will start registering some 50,000 men from 18 through 25 August 30, and will finish the job September 18. Of these, 55 to 65 per cent are expected to be deferred.

Each registrant will receive a questionnaire, fill it out, and return it to the draft board serving the area in which he lives.

When questionnaires begin coming into the 15 District boards, classification will get under way, with the induction or deferment of the registrant hinging upon previous military service and other regulations to be announced by national Selective Service headquarters.

From the questionnaires, the boards will determine the classification of each registrant. Then a pool of 1-A men will be formed.

Finally, after the armed forces have told national Selective Service headquarters how many men they want for their opening quotas, District draft headquarters will receive a quota for Washington.

The Army has announced a tentative figure of 30,000 men per month over the Nation, starting in October, to be inducted for the 21-month hitch.

Names of men to staff 10 of the District's 15 draft boards will reach the Commissioners today for approval, Frank D. Norton, director of the D. C. Office of Selective Service Records, said yesterday. The remainder will be sent in time for the Commissioners' meeting Thursday, he concluded.

Mental Health Units Allocated $20,000

Washington will receive $20,000 in Federal funds for mental health activities here, Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing announced yesterday.

The grant is some $9000 in excess of last year's. Maryland's share of the FWA grants-in-aid to States amounts to $47,700; Virginia gets $74,900.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, acting District health officer, said the money will be used to help pay operational expenses of the city's mental health clinics and other phases of the mental hygiene program.

The project, authorized by Congress in 1946, received an appropriation of $9,028,000 for the fiscal year 1949. It is designed to finance a three-fold program of research on mental illness, the training of suitable personel and the development of local mental health facilities. Funds are allocated on a "maching" basis—two Federal dollars to every State dollar.

$96,185 Paid for D. C. Old Age Assistance

A total of $96,185 was distributed in June of this year by the Board of Public Welfare to the growing number of persons receiving old-age assistance in the District, the board's monthly statistical report revealed.

Old-age payments were made to 2385 persons in June, 34 more cases than were on record the previous month and 51 more cases than were on the rolls a year before.

Largest item of expense on the Welfare Board's June budget was aid to dependent children. The board spent $102,040 assisting 4103 dependent children in 1354 District homes.

Banker Sued

Mrs. Olds Asks More Aid For Children

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Mrs. Nina Gore Vidal Auchincloss Olds, thrice-married former Washingtonian, today appealed to the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors for more money to support her two children.

She contended that $6000 annual alimony paid by her former husband and father of the children, New York Banker Hugh D. Auchincloss, is insufficient for their support.

Mrs. Olds asked that part of a $212,000 trust fund left for each child by their grandmother be released. She introduced figures in court purporting to show that she needs $10,000 a year for the children, Nina, who is 10, and Thomas, 8.

Her claim for a declaratory judgment, entered in Superior Court here, was dismissed Saturday by Judge John Cornell. He ruled that executors of the estate of Mrs. Emma Brewster Auchincloss, the grandmother who died in 1942, could not be compelled to pay out of the estate if they refused.

Mrs. Olds first married Eugene L. Vidal, former director of aeronautics in the Department of Commerce. They were divorced 13 years later in 1935. She married Auchincloss the same year, and they lived near Chain Bridge rd. in Fairfax County, Va., until their separation in 1941, which ended in a Reno divorce. She lived with her next husband, Maj. Gen. Robert Olds, at 2875 Woodland dr. nw., from 1942 until his death in 1943.

Materialistic Thinking Hit by Catholic Speaker

"Materialistic thinking" has prevented progress in the application of Christianity, the Rev. Daniel A. Lord of St. Louis, Mo., said last night at the opening of evening classes of the Summer School of Catholic Action at Catholic University.

Carrying the theme, "Action Now," Father Lord asserted "there are few courages greater than that which is necessary to resist a persuasive and fashionable opposing viewpoint." He declared Catholics are constantly "compromising with materialism."

The school ends August 14.

Hungarian Paper Gives Bare Facts Of Beach Episode

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—A slim young woman with the figure of Diana created quite a stir yesterday when she stepped nonchalantly out of a swimming pool at a crowded beach, the newspaper Vilag reported today.

The girl had left the bottom of her two-piece bathing suit in the pool. Startled bystanders called her attention to her immodesty.

"Pardon me," she cried, grabbing a robe off the back of a nearby gentleman, Vilag related.

The gentleman fainted, the newspaper said. He didn't have anything on at all.

Astrologers Open Parley at Time Set by Stars

Chicago, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—The stars decreed that the annual convention of the American Federation of Astrologers should open today at precisely 3:16 p. m.

It did.

A. Washington, D. C., man, Ernest A. Grant, 327 A st. se., was among the 800 members from over the country in attendance on the day arrived at by a special committee which had studied the heavens.

Speakers at the convention also were allowed to select times for their talks based on studies of the planets. One speech was scheduled tonight at 8:40 p. m. and another tomorrow at 4:20 p. m.

Grant, an economist who said he studies astrology as a hobby, said one aim of the convention is to promote ethical standards for astrologers to distinguish them from "fortune tellers."

He is executive secretary of the federation.

Tobin Not Certain He Wants Labor Post in Cabinet

Spokesmen for all branches of organized labor yesterday praised the selection of Maurice J. Tobin as Secretary of Labor. But Tobin wasn't sure he wanted the job.

The former Governor of Massachusetts and Mayor of Boston said he will visit President Truman "within the next few days" and talk it over. He must choose between the Cabinet post and a chance to run again for the governorship.

"I am not unmindful," said Tobin, "of the honor conferred on me by the leader of our Democratic Party, but I am still a candidate for Governor of Massachusetts."

The White House said today President Truman has had "no word" yet from Tobin.

Truman, Wallace Seen In Accord on Reds

By the United Press.

Republican National Chairman Hugh Scott said yesterday that President Truman and Henry A. Wallace "appear to see eye to eye" on communism.

He referred to Wallace's statement that he concurred in the President's charge that the congressional spy investigations are a "red herring" designed to cover up the shortcomings of the Eightieth Congress.

Thieves Get $1500 in Cash From Safe

Approximately $1500 in cash was taken some time over the weekend from a safe, which was ripped open at the Seven-Up Bottling Plant, 1325 Kenilworth ave. ne.

Charles E. Greaser, 34, superintendent of the plant, told police the theft was discovered yesterday morning, when the plant was opened at about 6 a. m. Entrance to the plant was gained by prying the ventilator grill from the boiler room in the rear, police said.

Cosmetics, valued at between $2000 and $3000, and $120 in cash, were taken from the Leuey Venn Beauty Parlor, 1224 Connecticut ave. nw., some time during the weekend, Manager Albert Emsellen reported to police.

Emsellem said the entire shop was ransacked and cosmetics, hair curlers and other equipment were thrown all over the floor. Entrance was gained by jimmying the front door, he said.

Another housebreaking at nearby 1333 Connecticut ave. nw. was reported by Frank K. Heindrich, who told police thieves entered by jimmying the hall door sometime Sunday evening and took several watches, a .32 caliber automatic revolver and about $3 in cash.

Capt. Robert P. Daly of 4343 Nichols ave. sw. told police a wire-inclosed locker in the basement next door at 4341 Nichols ave. sw. was broken open and a .22-caliber rifle, two .32-caliber automatics and several Army officer's uniforms were stolen sometime since the first of the month.

Lewis S. Chapin of 2140 31st st. se. told police someone entered his home Sunday evening and took $240 in cash from a second-floor bedroom.

Aviatrix Weds Pilot

Santa Paula, Calif., Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Aviatrix Diana Converse Cyrus, 25, who will try soon for a record solo world flight, was married to Pilot Robert Bixby, 34, today. Shortly after the ceremony, the two flew a load of freight to Dallas, Tex., he as pilot and she as copilot.

Ecuadorean's Body Found In Potomac

The body of a 19-year-old student from Ecuador, who disappeared last Friday while canoeing on the Potomac River, was recovered from the Georgetown channel of the river yesterday morning.

Castillo

The student was Ramiro Castillo, of 1314 16th st. nw. He was identified by his guardian, Guillermo Suro, chief of the State Department's division of languages, who lives at 2480 16th st. nw. Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy issued a certificate of accidental death due to drowning.

Harbor police first started dragging the river for the youth's body last Friday after a canoe, which Castillo had rented from Fletcher's Boat House, was found overturned about a half mile above Key Bridge.

His guardian identified a sport jacket, found on the rocks near the Virginia shore near the overturned canoe as belonging to Castillo. Harbor Police Pvts. F. C. White and M. W. Hanger recovered the body about 8:45 a. m. yesterday about 500 feet below Memorial Bridge, an approximate distance of 2½ miles from the spot where the canoe had been found.

Suro said yesterday that Castillo was the son of Jose Castillo, editor and publisher of the newspaper El Telegrafe in Ecuador.

Railroad Car Being Readied for Truman Campaign

By The Associated Press

President Truman's bullet-proof railroad car is being groomed for a campaign swing around the country.

The car, formerly the Ferdinand Magellan, is in the Naval Gun Factory for what Dewey Long, White House transportation chief, describes as a "routine check-up."

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary, said the air-conditioning system is being improved.

The car, originally owned by the American Association of Railroads, was sold to the Government some months ago for a nominal token sum. During the war it was converted into a veritable fortress for the use of President Roosevelt.

Landslide Buried Plane

Turin, Italy, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Rescue parties said today the wreckage of a United States Army C-47 transport which crashed in 1947 with a loss of 21 men and one woman, was buried deep under a frozen landslide in the Alps near here and would be difficult to dig out. Only two bodies have been recovered.

Marine League Elects

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Marine Corps League, department of Maryland, elected Paul H. Shaner of Hagerstown commandant at its first annual convention here yesterday. District vice commandants include Marvin G. Wray, Hagerstown, and Walater L. Roney, Frederick.

Meat Strike Gains Nation-Wide Force

'Nobody Has Any Manners Anymore'

Collides with a City

Housewives shouted concerted "no's" across meat counters yesterday in scattered cities from New York to Portland, Oreg., according to press association reports.

This is the way the situation sized up in initial stages of a one-week "petticoat" revolt against soaring prices.

New York—A check of meat stores in the Greater New York area showed light buying as a consumers' boycott of butcher shops was launched. Mondays, however, always are light days.

Lakeland, Fla.—Women pickets trudged in front of meat markets urging housewives to buy no meat—and from all indications their appeal was effective. A typical sign read—"Leave the pigs in clover while we put this over."

Madison, Wis.—Housewives on a buyers' strike got help from a grocery chain which announced no meat would be advertised at any price in an effort to force down prices. An official of the Sylvester Co., which operates 85 stores in the Madison area, said that if retailers buy less meat "the packer will either lower the price to the retailer or lower the price paid to the farmer."

Portland, Oreg.—Trading turned dull on the livestock market. Packers blamed the housewives' boycott of meat. Bid prices were around $1 lower than last week. Most packers said they would wait for the market to settle before buying. They said the boycott had hurt business.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Built around a nucleus of 100 butcher-boycotting housewives, the campaign to force down meat prices reached here. The campaign for a meatless week will be followed up the week of August 23, with housewives pledged to buy meat only three days that week.

Camden, N. J.—A three-week boycott against meat-buying went into effect under sponsorship of Local 1, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO), while a group of 50 irate housewives prepared to launch their own meat boycott.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The Cincinnati Consumer Conference called for a 10-day meat strike to begin today and announced that every woman in the city who has a telephone would be contacted. A spokesman said, "We have assigned 58 women 10 pages each of the telephone directory.

Dallas, Tex.—In this city, where a 71-year-old grandmother, Mrs. R. D. Vaughn, started the meat rebellion, first reports from meat retailers were indecisive. A few grocers reported sharply decreased sales while others said everything was normal.

In Washington, meanwhile, two women's groups were considering plans to fight high meat prices—through more formal action than normal buyers' resistance.

Chairman Frances Klafter of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, said the organiation may launch a campaign shortly. A committee has been appointed to study the matter.

The Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers (CIO) at an executive board meeting last night indorsed the call for a meat boycott here August 9-16. Auxiliary officials said a telephone campaign is planned to reach 50,000 Greater Washington residents.

Little Widow Of 94 Raises Row in Movie

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—A little old widow appeared in court today to answer charges that her conduct in a West Side movie theater Saturday was disorderly.

Peering at Judge William V. Daly, she acknowledged her name was Alice King and that she was 94 years old—born in 1854.

Police told the court that Mrs. King had struck some youngsters on the head with her purse, scratched Theater Manager Robert Hilperthauser, and refused to leave the movie.

She exclaimed, "I did not."

Mrs. King said she had merely attempted to quiet some rowdy boys who had put their feet on her seat, cat-called and carried on so a body couldn't follow the thread of the picture. She appealed to the theater management and was asked to leave, she said.

"Nobody has manners any more," she summed up.

Then, while discussion of the case continued, she reached into her purse and pulled out a plum. She munched it.

Judge Daly told Newman to find Mrs. King's friends and bring them to court tomorrow. "If they'll take care fo her, I'll discharge her," he said.

"I will not tell you where I live," said Mrs. King, "because I do not want to involve the people I live with. I live across the street from the stadium."

She volunteered as she finished her plum that she lives somewhere in Indiana "part of the time."

"And I think I'll go back there," she said.

Mrs. King—who said she was a part-time baby sitter—was returned to jail after the hearing when she declined to post $25 bond.

Income Hits Record High

By The Associated Press

The personal income of Americans climbed to an annual rate of $211,900,000,000 in June, a record high, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The sharp increase centered in factory pay checks, which fattened because of "third-round" wage increases in some of the major durable goods industries.

The gain resulted also from higher prices received by farmers for live stock, and "from the absence of labor-management disputes," the department said.

The midyear rate of income compares with $207,200,000,000 in May and with previous all-time peak of $209,400,000,000 reached in January of this year. The income total for 1947 was $195,200,000,000.

The June increase, coupled with the cut in income tax payments which began in May, boosted disposable income by more than 4 per cent over the first quarter of the year. Disposable income is the amount available to consumers for spending after taxes are paid.

Factory payrolls surged up because of a longer work-week, higher hourly earnings, and earlier-than-usual upturn in hiring in some of the nondurable goods industries which are subject to seasonal fluctuation. Payrolls in construction, trade, and Government employment also rose.

A gain of more than 5 per cent in prices of livestock and livestock products coincided with an increase in farm marketing which ran counter to usual seasonal trends.

Nonfarm income rose by about three billion dollars at an annual rate above the level which had been almost constant the last six months. For the first half of 1948, the average of personal income was at an annual rate of $208,100,000,000. This compared with $199,900,000,000 in the last half of 1947.

Falls Church

The not-so-long-ago sleepy little village of Falls Church has come of age. On August 16 it will become a city of the second class under Virginia law, with an official population of 5338. Nor is it likely to remain long at this figure. On the advice of an annexation expert, the city fathers have an ambitious program for adding surrounding areas which will bring the Falls Church population to 15,000. This merger will enable the community to levy local taxes and provide in more adequate degree the municipal services which are being demanded of it.

What has happened in Falls Church is symbolic of the metamorphosis that has come over northern Virginia. There was a virtual bursting of the seams as Washington expanded with wartime needs. The suburbs became Washington's bedrooms. A generation ago Falls Church had only a few hundred people and was known principally as the home of an historic Revolutionary landmark. Arlington County has grown from a population of 57,040 to 125,000 today; Alexandria has increased from 33,523 in 1940 to 75,000; Fairfax County has doubled its 1940 population of 40,929. Mammoth apartment developments have clawed into the simplicity of the Virginia countryside, and thousands of new homes dot areas where farm furrows are still fresh. With new highways this urbanization now has spread out 15 miles or more.

The passing of an essentially rural region of separated small communities into a built-up segment of the metropolitan area cannot be marked without nostalgia, for the Virginia countryside has always had a quiet charm all its own. Nevertheless, incorporation has been the only answer to the problems the additional population has brought, such as increased demands on utilities, the need for expanded police and fire protection, and the greatly multiplied pressure on schools. And, whatever the inroads of urban civilization and urban problems, northern Virginia is still managing to accommodate them gracefully.

Housing Bill, 1948

In their midyear report to the President the Council of Economic Advisers stated that the "volume of residential construction is already straining the capacities of the construction industry in many areas and of producers of some construction materials, and is unquestionably competing with other primary national needs." Under such conditions it seems obvious that without any offsetting device a housing measure designed to stimulate residential construction by liberalized government mortgage insurance would add to inflationary pressure.

This is what has happened: The bill just passed by Congress provides for federally guaranteed loans up to 95 per cent of cost on houses of $6300 or less; Federal guarantees of loans up to 80 per cent for contractors building 25 or more small homes costing $7500 or less each; and 90 per cent guarantee in cases of apartment house builders, provided the housing units cost no more than $9000 each. Attempts have also been made to tighten up provisions of Title VI of the National Housing Act by eliminating provisions under which builders could borrow 90 per cent of the value of one, two, three and four family houses, while retaining the section on rental housing. Additional authorization to insure mortgage loans under Title VI is put at 800 million dollars

By liberalizing loans on lower cost housing and tightening restrictions on more expensive homes it is hoped to channelize scarce materials into types of housing that meet the needs of lower income groups. But in the absence of any system for allocation of building materials or restraints on competing building demands, the probable effect will be to boost construction costs generally, as has been the case in the past, without putting up many, if any, houses.

The deadlock that prevented passage of housing legislation at the last regular session was due to House opposition to the public housing provisions of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. There were no fundamental differences of opinion regarding other sections of the bill. In fact, at the last regular session the House passed the Wolcott bill containing many provisions of the modified and truncated bill finally put through at the special session. The failure of the House leadership to permit a showdown vote on the TEW bill, bottled up in the Rules Committee, reflected its hostility to the public housing program. As a result the Senate had to choose between deleting those provisions or following a course that would have resulted in no housing legislation of any kind at the special session.

From a purely political viewpoint the decision of the Senate to go along with the House appears to have been wise. From any other viewpoint it is most regrettable that the Senate was forced to drop provisions for subsidization of public housing and slum clearance. For that program at its inception would not add greatly to existing inflationary pressures, furthermore, it meets an imperative need that private industry cannot possibly satisfy. It is carefully planned; it is a long-range program entailing no large immediate outlays by the Government; and it is surrounded by safeguards against encroachment on the field of private enterprise that should allay any fear that it looks toward socialization of the building industry. Indeed, sponsorship of the public housing program by Senators whose conservative leanings are known to all is sufficient proof that it constitutes no threat to private enterprise. The obduracy of the House leadership is under the circumstances indefensible. Moreover, it provides the Democrats with a campaign issue that will embarrass the Republicans and probably cost them a good many votes.

Thriller-Diller

Well, it is undeniably true that life in these United States nowadays is not without some resemblances to life in wards seven and eight of the county insane asylum, but one thing must be said for it—there's never a dull moment. If you think you are about to perish of boredom, it is your own fault, because it shows that you haven't made use of the opportunities that await you on every side.

Take, for example, the case of Mme. Oksana Stepanova Kosenkina, which could hardly have happened anywhere but here. Mme. Kosenkina is a Russian schoolmarm, who in a spirit of self-sacrifice left her happy associations in the Soviet Fatherland so that she might bring a little touch of home into the lives of the children of those voluntary exiles who have given up all that is most dear to them in order to serve as Soviet representatives in the United Nations. Mme. Kosenkina's lot in the capitalist wilderness, surrounded as she was on every side by the sullen and savage bourgeoisie, could scarce have been a pleasant one for any woman reared as she had been, but apparently she bore it bravely and without complaint. We can, however, imagine her joy when she was notified that her exile was ended and that she was soon to return to her homeland for what was tenderly described a well deserved rest, a "long, long rest," in fact.

Alas, poor Mme. Kosenkina was to discover that it is easier to enter the land of the treacherous capitalists than to leave it. One day as she left the comparative safety of her compound she found herself being followed by a sinister person named Dr. Korzhinsky. This Korzhinsky is a sort of beachcomber, a degenerate compatriot who had, so to speak, gone native. On a lonely trail called Riverside Drive he overtook her and whispered with mocking leers that she would never escape. The next day she was followed by a villainous looking native known as Leo Costello, evidently some kind of witch doctor or medicine man. He pulled her brutally to a park bench in what appears to have been a clearing in the wilderness and producing a hypodermic needle deftly squirted something into the veins of her forearm. This magic, whatever it was, cast an evil spell upon her, paralyzing her will, so that on the morrow, in a kind of trance, she allowed herself to be led away from her compound by another beachcomber called Vladimir Zenzinov.

Zenzinov carried her a great distance through the littoral to a place called Reed Farm, known only to a few intrepid explorers. There to her horror she found herself the prisoner of a band of renegade Russians, who had foresworn the ways of civilization, and were living by means of what appeared to be the slave trade. The leader of this band was a woman regarded with superstitious awe by the natives as a sort of white goddess and who was addressed even by her ruffianly followers as "the Countess," Her slightest word was law.

This queen of the bandits appears to have treated the captive with the barbarity of which only women are capable. We shall not harrow the feelings of our readers by describing in detail the indignities inflicted upon the unfortunate Mme. Kosenkina; suffice it to say she was obliged to perform the most menial offices about the camp, such as preparing meals, etc. What might have happened if Mme. Kosenkina had been a woman of less pluck and resourcefulness we shudder to imagine. But Mme. Kosenkina bided her time and watched her opportunities. Fortunately, discipline in the bandit camp seems to have been lax, and one day Mme. Kosenkina managed to find a friendly native who agreed to carry a letter containing news of her plight and peril to the fearless Yakov Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in the coast settlement of New York.

Lomakin hesitated not a moment, but with two dependable companions plunged into the interior. After the usual ardors of the trail the party reached Reed Farm where they surprised the brigands and put them to rout. By this time it appears Mme. Kosenkina had been thrust into an upstairs dungeon, from which she was released when one of the rescue party, the brave and powerful Zot Chepurnykh, crashed open the door of the dungeon with his broad shoulders.

Anyway, that's the story as Mme. Kosenkina told it to reporters with occasional promptings by M. Lomakin. You can take your choice between it and the story of the Countess Tolstoy, directress of the Reed Farm, which appears to be a communal enterprise conducted by non-Communist Russians of various persuasions. According to the Countess, Mme. Kosenkina sought refuge at the farm, saying that if she returned to Russia her life would not be worth a devaluated kopek. You can also believe if you want to, that agents of the Russian M. V. D. are operating in New York and its vicinity under the protection of diplomatic immunity. Either way, the moral of the story of which this appears to be the first installment, appears to be this: What's the use of paying 50 cents to see dull unimaginative movies or paying 25 cents to the lending library for silly stupid detective yarns in a country where you can have adventures like Mme. Kosenkina's for nothing?

Hoover: 74

Those who saw and heard Herbert Hoover on the rostrum of the Republican convention participated in an event. It was a spontaneous tribute to a man as misunderstood and maligned as any man in American history. He had had this tribute before, though not in such measure and volume. And this one was something special, as Mr. Hoover, fumbling with spectacles which he forgot to put over his blurred eyes, sensed himself. Here was the sign that Mr. Hoover had arrived on that eminence which every generation reserves for Elder Statesmen. He lived up to the occasion by making the only memorable speech at the convention—the speech of a man who recognized his role there as the conscience of the party.

If there was any bitterness in Herbert Hoover in the lonely years after his defeat in 1932, the public never felt it. Nor did he shrink from the duty imposed upon every man who has held high office in the state. As a former President, as well as a Quaker, no major cause of a humanitarian nature found him wanting in aid or support. He lent his experience in administration to every effort to improve the public service. At present, for instance, he is chairman of the bipartisan Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch, with which he intends to wind up his career. Withal his voice has never been withheld in behalf of economic stability and political rectitude.

In some part Mr. Hoover's manner, shy and aloof, has accounted for his belated recognition. The heart is warm, but the way to it is barred by a distaste of the merely sentimental. No man is more impatient, moreover, with goodness wrapped up in economic nonsense. Mr. Hoover has a habit of keeping his head completely separate from his heart. A story is told by way of illustrating this dichotomy. It concerns a cold speech on economic recovery in Europe that he once gave at a Quaker college. It was full of facts and figures and economic sense. He was followed by a speaker who reported on the misery he had encountered in Europe. The speech was eloquent, and Mr. Hoover, affected with the rest, asked permission to make another speech. In the same feeling accents he confirmed the experience of the second speaker, talking as if he were another person.

Now at 74 Mr. Hoover can look back on a life of great usefulness. He looks back with the humility of a servant of his God and with the gratitude of a man conscious of the opportunities that his country has given him. Today a homecoming is scheduled for him at his Iowa birthplace at West Branch. He will talk about himself, as if he were testifying at the local meeting house, his America, his God, and liberty. The soul of our America, he believes, is its freedom of mind and spirit in man. Liberty, in other words, is the watchword, not equality; and Herbert Hoover owes his resurrected fame to the fact that he is one man who has never forgotten it.

Free Prizes

There will certainly be static from coast to coast if the Federal Communications Commission goes ahead with its threat to forbid radio programs involving the award of money or other valuable prizes to any person whose selection depends upon chance or lot. The popularity of these programs is attested by their audience ratings. To immense numbers of Americans, they furnish much more than entertainment. They are castles in Spain, ships that might, by some extraordinary stroke of luck, come in. And to some, they are an occupation, providing, by dint of diligent application, a more or less substantial livelihood.

All the same, they are an indubitable blight on the quality of American broadcasting. The lure which their gambling chance presents puts at a disadvantage all programs attempting to attract an audience on intrinsic merit. They are, in very large measure, programs of ineffable stupidity in which the avarice of the participants is outdone by the eagerness of the sponsor to give away his prizes for the sake of the publicity involved. It seems patent, moreover, that they grossly violate Section 316 of the Communications Act which prohibits the broadcast of "any advertisement of or information concerning any lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme, offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance."

Chance, not knowledge, seems the prime determinant of the prize winners in most of these audience participation shows. The listening public, or at least a considerable segment of it, may be temporarily aggrieved by what the FCC proposes to do; but the caliber of American radio is likely to be greatly improved.

ON CONSIDERING MAN

Has man grown taller than the grass
Through which the winds of evening pass?
Has he the shape of those who dwell
Within the hollow of a shell?
Does water hold him like a hand
Lifted to show a grain of sand,
And does the earth receive him still
With a quiet word for the green hill?

Letters To The Editor

Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Shakespeare Solved

Why do the editors of a responsible and internationally famous newspaper like The Washington Post insult the intelligence of their readers by publishing such a transparent and mendacious piece of Russian propaganda like the letter of I. P. Skovar (August 4) who claims the authorship of the Shakespeare plays for barbarians like Boris Godunoff and Ivan the Terrible? Incidentally, why does not the Committee on Un-American Activities make it its business to investigate the presence of this notorious Comrade Skovar in Washington at this time and how it was possible for such a person to obtain a visa?)

Also, why do you permit Mr. Gelett Burgess to consume two full columns of your valuable space (July 31) merely to confuse and obfuscate the question of the real authorship of the so-called works of William Shakespeare? The supposition that anybody named De Vere was capable of holding the lofty and chivalrous ideal of womanhood reflected in such characters as Cordelia, Desdemona, Juliet and Imogen, becomes utterly ridiculous in view of the scandalous and licentious behavior of members of that family as it has been described by Lord Tennyson.

Finally, why does The Washington Post and the rest of the American press persist in suppressing the news that the centuries-old mystery of who wrote Shakespeare has been fully cleared up by science? On a visit to Washington several years ago the famous savant Professor Ningun y Nada of the University of Aires Calientes, made some scrapings of particles from the MacMonnies statue of "Shakespeare" in the Library of Congress here.

On his return to Spain Professor Ningun placed these particles in the cyclotron in his laboratory and bombarded them with slow neutrons filtered through graphite and heavy-water. The resulting isotopes have proved conclusively that this alleged statue of Shakespeare is actually a composite statue of Frey Tomas de Torquemada and Miguel de Cervantes, from which evidence Professor Ningun, who combines a remarkable scientific acumen with a profound scholarship in profane letters, went on to demonstrate that all the plays and poems hitherto attributed to an obscure English rustic were actually the collaboration of these two eminent and talented sixteenth century Spaniards—except, of course, the Dark Lady sonnets, which are obviously a crude Moorish fabrication.

Why has there been no mention of this amazing discovery in the American press? In the case of a newspaper less noted for liberalism and impartiality, I should certainly ascribe it to malignant anti-Iberianism.

VD Prevention

I have noticed the VD drive, recently commenced in the District, and it has reminded me of the futility of such efforts, well meant as they may be.

There seems to be no group or organization in this country that makes VD prevention its business and takes the trouble of looking over foreign legislation on the subject for some possible guidelines.

Before anything seriously can be done to affect the spread of VD we will have to come to the recognition—well established in the law of several central European countries—that knowingly to infect a person with VD is tantamount to assault, in short punishable as a felony.

Another provision along these lines obliges the doctor who detects an infection to: (1) keep the sick person under his supervision until cured or until turned over to another doctor or clinic; (2) trace the infection back as far as possible; (3) impress his patient with the necessity of sexual abstinence until declared cured, this not being a moral obligation but also one provided for by criminal law.

If a Federal law were proposed in Congress, embodying the points outlined, I believe that it would provide health authorities with their first effective weapon to combat VD.

"Exposing Spies"

Two of the editorials in your edition of August 3 should commend themselves to every thoughtful, intelligent American. I refer to "Exposing Spies" and "Reply to a Communist."

In their competence and fairness of analysis and exposition, and in their innate appeal to reason and justice, these editorials represent the highest type of journalism.

No greater assurance of the survival of our democratic form of government need be asked than the knowledge by the people that able, fair-minded men stand ever ready to use their talents in defense of its fundamental principles.

"Crimp In Crump"

I read with much interest your August 17 editorial "Crimp in Crump."

For a great many weeks individual citizens—not in any sense professional politicians—have been devoting their time and resources without pay and without any thought of personal gain to this particular campaign. Men and women all over the State who have grown impatient with the hold which Mr. Crump has long held over their political lives worked tirelessly and unselfishly to bring to the attention of the voters their duty and privilege as independent citizens to stop a situation which, after all, was of their own making—and showing them the way to insure a government of the people—not of one man.

Whenever the large group of voting citizens in this country can be brought to realize their responsibility as well as their power, we need have no further fear of any kind of "bossism," and to the energetic and fearless group of citizens of Tennessee who helped show the way to their fellow voters and brought about this overthrow of dictatorship should go the deep gratitude not only of their State, but of the country as a whole.

Enlightenment At Home

In his article, "Soviet Influence," of August 3, Mr. Sumner Welles raised the question: "May it be perhaps that some of the enlightenment required is needed here at home?" After eight years of experience with American youth in colleges, prep schools and universities, I daresay that nothing seems to me more urgent than the enlightenment of the American people concerning the significance of our own democracy and the conditions and systems of thought outside of the U. S. A.

We teach the minute details of American history and government but the majority of educated Americans, who a few years from now will be the voters who shape American foreign policy, do not even know how to differentiate between the totalitarian system of socialism (i. e. communism) and the democratic brand of socialism which is the very lifeblood of the most enlightened peoples of Europe.

For three years we have been trying to sell the European peoples "the American way of life," which has neither historical nor economic roots in Europe, and thus disappointing the great masses of European labor and pushing them over to the communistic land of promise.

We talk a lot of democracy but most people do not think first of dignity of man, or of protection of free speech and teaching, when they praise democracy. Instead they think of a specific system of economics which may or may not be outmoded but in any case has little to do with the essential and eternal philosophical conception of democracy.

Too many letters from Europe, written by people of very different background, show the deep disillusionment and despair that followed the expectation that the victorious U. S. A. might be able to superimpose a sound cooperative system upon Europe as a whole and that Europe as an historical and cultural entity would be saved from being swallowed by the Asiatic brand of totalitarianism which is being generated in the Kremlin. The different statesmen's memoirs which have been published in recent years have made it clear that even on the top level of our administration there was little understanding of European conditions.

Another dangerous root of Soviet influence is the almost insane record of failures in domestic policy of our House of Representatives.

"Teaching the value of human liberties" alone will not do. First, we have to create better living conditions for the masses of the people. GI's who are not able to find shelter for their families after years of fighting for this country will not listen to the ideals of our Constitution; reality looks different. Nor will people who are deprived of opportunity because they happen to have a different color of skin. Nor will millions of true Democrats be satisfied by the clever tricks of politicians who abuse their mandate for the benefit of a lobby, thus delivering the cheapest propaganda material to the Communists or their forerunners, the third party.

Yes, some of the enlightenment required is urgently needed here at home. Enlightenment on true democracy and its obligations; enlightenment on the human qualities of representatives if we want democracy to function; enlightenment on the mental background of far-away peoples; and above all, enlightenment of our youth that our traditional "take-it-easy attitude" (reading the funnies instead of the editorials) will be the shortest way to national disaster. It is time to stop complacency. That will be the best defense against totalitarian seduction of thinking and probably the only one bound to succeed.

Hoover Celebration

By Mark Sullivan

American Epic

THIS WEEK, Tuesday the tenth, at the little town of West Branch, Iowa, is being celebrated the seventy-fourth birthday anniversary of former President Herbert Hoover. This is one of several current events reflecting a Nation-wide phenomenon, the presently high elevation of Mr. Hoover in public esteem and affection.

The celebration at West Branch no doubt will deal with Mr. Hoover's life and works. This, if done adequately, could be an American epic. If someone with poetic imagination were to narrate Mr. Hoover's career, it might be done in a series of stanzas, each picturing him as setting out upon one of his far-ranging enterprises and high adventures, and each stanza picturing him as saying, "Saddle my horse and call my men." For that was the nature of Mr. Hoover's career. It was the headship of staffs, many of whom became long-time associates and came to call him "Chief," in enterprises made romantic by the remote quarters of the world into which they took him, the early ones private and industrial, the later ones public and humanitarian.

"SADDLE MY HORSE and call my men" sounds military, suggests a knight setting out upon war or crusade. But Mr. Hoover's enterprises were not military. Until he was 40 they were in the world of private industry, humanitarian in the sense that they resulted in material enrichment of the world—he dug and refined gold in Australia, tin in Burma, iron in Russia, coal in China, various metals in other countries. By 1914 that was over. To Mr. Hoover at 74, it must seem long ago and far away.

With the beginning of the First World War Mr. Hoover's enterprises became public, their purpose directly benevolent, many of their titles containing the word "relief." Early ones were chairmanship of the American Relief Committee in London (to help Americans stranded in Europe by the war), and chairmanship of the Commission for Relief in Belgium. In person frequently, or through organizations he headed, Mr. Hoover, throughout the years since he was 40, conducted relief in most of the countries of the world. Relief, through public organization or private benevolence, continued to be a major preoccupation of Mr. Hoover even after his career had expanded into government and public affairs in the broad sense; today he is the head or animating spirit of a score of benevolent organizations.

One would like to think that the elevated esteem for Mr. Hoover on the part of a new generation reflects a broad and definite turn in the spirit of the world—that it justifies Emerson's assurance, "Heartily know, when the half-gods go, the gods arrive."

IN AMERICA there are signs of this in the return of esteem for Mr. Hoover, and also such men as Mr. Bernard M. Baruch, accompanied by departure from official power of men of the school of thought of Mr. Henry A. Wallace. In America, there is going on a clearly recognizable remagnetizing and reorienting, a focusing toward old principles and the exponents and symbols of them. Much of this is due to the patient and constant expounding of the principles of American individualism which Mr. Hoover has carried on.

In the world as a whole, however, it can hardly be said that the half-gods are going, the gods coming back. Within a few months we have seen one of the world's authentic great, Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa, deposed from power by his country. And in Britain we see one of the authentic great of history, Winston Churchill, almost a personal embodiment of the British lion, in exile from official power, displaced by Mr. Clement Attlee, whose rank in zoological symbolism was described by Mr. Churchill in a tart epigram, "a sheep in sheep's clothing." Elsewhere in the world, if we rejoice to see Tito of Yugoslavia defy Stalin of Russia, we can hardly think of that as a god challenging a half-god; rather it is a falling out of leaders on the side of Lucifer, the anti-gods of communism.

European Union

We have been trying to accomplish the aim or end result of our European policy, that is a strongs reconstructed European unity, without first employing the required primary means of a structural organic federation of the separated European nations. Union must precede unity and revival.

Europeans must make this necessary beginning of a structural western union in order to reach the happy ending of unity and strength. No economic aid under ERP or military assistance under the Brussels pact will avail without this first required structural foundation of a federal union of all the disunited nations of western Europe.

This same basic error of operating in reverse also affects our policy in regard to Germany. We are attempting to fit a united Germany into a weak disunited Europe where it will inevitably dominate instead of fitting weak separate German states into a strong united Europe.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Trick

MR. TRUMAN called the special session in order to make the voters think that he would now be reducing retail prices if the Republicans would let him. The question is whether the voters will recognize the difference between a serious program to combat the inflation and a quite cynical political trick.

LIPPMANN

For the special session was a trick. The Truman program was not meant to be enacted, or administered, or enforced. Had Mr. Truman wanted it enacted, he would have consulted the leaders of Congress before he announced it. He would have rallied his own party and he would have conciliated the Republicans, and he would have negotiated with them. Had he expected to administer and enforce his program, he would have done something with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board to make them ready to administer and enforce it.

But what Mr. Truman wanted was not the hard and dangerous task of combating inflation. He wanted to be the candidate who stood for lower prices in the retail shops without having to do any of the disagreeable and unpopular things that would have to be done if retail prices are to be reduced.

THAT THE program was quite insincere—that is to say, not intended for action—is evident. It proposed a return to rationing and price control. But the machinery of rationing and price control does not exist. He proposed a contraction of the money supply.

But Mr. Snyder and Mr. Eccles, who would have to perform the operation, are scarcely on speaking terms. The very program which was supposed to combat inflation contained a series of proposals to increase it—a big housing program, new expenditures for education, for old age insurance, and a higher minimum wage. The program did not contain proposals to reduce purchasing power by raising income tax, by lowering the support of farm prices, and by reducing Government expenditures.

As a matter of fact the Truman program for the special session was concocted by his political advisers; it was not even the program of the Truman Administration. Had it been in fact the Administration program, its sponsors would have been the agencies which would have to administer it—namely the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board. But Mr. Snyder damned it with faint praise; Mr. Eccles, who is the most serious and the most competent member of the Administration dealing with the subject, said frankly that the program was worthless. Mr. Paul Porter, who holds no office, was appointed the spokesman for the program—the theory being apparently, that since Mr. Porter had no power to act he could talk all the more freely.

NOW THAT THE special session is adjourned, one thing at least is settled conclusively. It is that right or wrong, for good reasons or bad, Mr. Truman is unable to work with Congress and to lead it. The Republicans are almost solidly against him. The Democrats are deeply divided behind him. Yet Mr. Truman will now attempt to convince the country that his inability to lead the Eightieth Congress is a reason why he should be elected for another four years. He will argue that the way out of the division and the disunion, the paralysis and impotence, is to keep in office the Administration which is identified with the division and the disunion, the paralysis and the impotence.

But even those who think Mr. Truman has a genuine remedy for the inflation will come to realize that with the Republicans against him and his own party divided, Mr. Truman can do nothing effective against inflation. The more vehemently they dislike the record of the Eightieth Congress, the more evident it is that Mr. Truman can offer them nothing but the prospect of another four years of the same thing.

THE REMEDY under our system of government for the Truman congressional deadlock is to elect a new President with a safe working majority of his own party in both houses of Congress.

To elect Mr. Truman will not reunite the Democrats even if they obtained a nominal majority in both houses of Congress. With his own party divided, he has no chance whatever of getting enough Republican support to achieve a working majority for his measures.

Another Truman Administration would, therefore, be hopelessly ineffective. To elect it would mean that the country was condemned to enter the critical period of the postwar era with its Government paralyzed and the people divided.

Off The Record

Senator's Son Launches Va. Dixiecrat Club

Richmond, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—A State's rights club to back the Thurmond-Wright ticket has been launched by Frank P. Burton, jr., of Stuart, Fifth District chairman for the Young Democratic Clubs of Virginia.

Burton, son of State Senator Frank P. Burton, said yesterday he "can guarantee that Thurmond will be qualified for a place on the Virginia ballot."

He reported from his Patrick County home that support was rolling in for the new organization, but said he could not give any names as yet.

Secretary Quits Committee

Action by Burton followed a meeting of the executive committee of Virginia Young Democratic Clubs here Saturday when the majority decided to go along with Virginia's old Democrats in November. The exceptions were Cloyd Martin of Rarford, who resigned as secretary of the committee rather than support President Truman, and Burton.

In his letter of resignation, Martin attacked the fence-sitting attitude of the committee. It said in part:

"My feeling is this, that every one of my ancestors who fought and died over this same State's rights argument, would turn over in his grave and haunt me from now on if I didn't aggressively oppose anyone who is trying to take away from our Nation the thing they died trying to save."

Odom Follows Leaders

But the majority of the committee apparently agreed with President Thomas D. Odom of Suffolk, who summed up his views this way:

"I have personally always followed the strong, conservative Democratic leadership in Virginia, and I see no reason and have seen no reason to vary my position."

Both Burton and Martin had come to the meeting hoping to launch a Dixiecrat movement. Stationery headed "The Young Dixiecrats of Virginia" had been printed for distribution at the meeting.

"It was just an idea that failed," Martin said.

Maryland Welfare Probers to Meet

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—The new State commission to investigate Maryland's public welfare program will hol dits first meeting Wednesday in Governor Lane's office here, Attorney General Hall Hammond announced yesterday.

Hammond said copies of reports by the commission on governmental efficiency dealing with city and State welfare programs had been sent to the 15 commission members in preparation for the closed meeting.

Md. Experts Study Cut in Income Tax

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—Three of the State's top money experts will meet here Tuesday to start some figuring that may bring reduced taxes for Marylanders.

The conferees — Comptroller James J. Lacy, Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, and Walter N. Kirkman, the budget director—made up the State board of revenue estimates. Their job is to determine how much revenue the State is likely to take in during a given fiscal period.

Ordinarily they would begin thinking around this time about the two-year budget period which starts on July 1, 1949. This time, however, they will give some attention to the fiscal year which started July 1.

The reason for this is that they turned out to be something like nine million dollars too conservative on their estimates for the 1947-48 fiscal year which ended six weeks ago and the State has a 20-million-dollar surplus on its hands.

Governor Lane wants to know how they feel about their figures for the current fiscal year. Would it be possible to reduce some taxes and still have enough money for the State's obligations?

The Governor indicated it might be possible to reduce income taxes. He said it could be done by increasing the exemptions so the benefits would fall more generously on those in the lower-income brackets.

Comptroller Lacy said he is all in favor of this. A big question which confronted the calculations is the increase on income tax rates voted last year.

If the Lane administration's money experts decide these increases might be cancelled, the General Assembly will have to pass a law at its regular session in January.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

11 a. m.—Representative William J. Crow of Pennsylvania with J. W. Ambrose et al.

German Policy

By Sumner Welles

Trends In American Diplomacy

THE INTERVIEW that General Clay gave a few dags ago to Drew Middleton of the New York Times, by which he evidently hoped to quash Mr. Walter Lippmann's salutary criticism of his activities, offers ground for rueful reflection. General Clay said that, while there was "no truth" in the report that he, rather than the State Department, was deciding our policy in Germany, the recommendations he and his military staff had offered as a result of "three years' experience" have played an important part in deciding what our policy should be.

Mr. Lippmann's charges are of course unanswered. General Clay seems incapable of understanding that our present policy in Germany not only determines our policy in Europe but also will decide the future of the world.

IT IS NOTORIOUS that General Clay has occasionally taken independent action which has shaped policy. What is still graver in its ultimate effects is that General Clay and his military staff have been permitted by washington to retain the initiative in the formulation of policy. They have been accorded this right, apparently, on the ground of "three years' experience."

Before they found themselves in Germany most of these men had spent their adult lives in the Army or in large financial or industrial concerns. There is no evidence to indicate that they possess the profound knowledge of German and European history, of the political, social and economic forces that have been developing in Europe since the French Revolution; or of the national psychologies of the European peoples, that would make their recommendations upon American policy in Germany of constructive value.

The evidence available shows, on the contrary, that their viewpoint has been just what might have been expected. There has been no concentration upon preventing the rebirth of German nationalism, upon convincing the Germans of the benefits of western European union, upon safeguarding German youth from nazism and militarism, or upon the conversion of the German spirit to individual freedom and democracy. There have been no land reforms and no elimination of the persisting concentrations of industrial power. There has been suggested no plan that will prevent the subsequent acceptance by a traditionally militaristic and nationalistic German people of an alliance with the Soviet Union as a new opportunity to gain world domination.

The projects of the American Military Government have envisaged two objectives: to make the western German zones self-supporting, as a means of relieving the American taxpayer, and to make of western Germany a military buffer against the Soviet Union.

The American people have reason to be increasingly concerned by the haphazard decisions that are taken, often with no regard for the effect upon the broader national interests. There have been few signs of a foreign policy fixed by the President and the Secretary of State, after consultation with their advisers of both parties, which has been formulated in the light of the long-range objectives to be attained, and with which no American agents in foreign countries are permitted to interfere.

General Clay was able to procure the adoption of his own projects for a western German state and for the control of the Ruhr.

The decisions taken provoked the present crisis with Moscow.

But they have also undermined our relations with France. General Clay has repeatedly brushed aside the French protest that the measures contemplated would endanger French security in the future. He has even taken it upon himself publicly to berate the French spokesmen who officially expressed this view.

THE SOVIET UNION will only be contained if it respects the economic and military strength of the West. The more rapid the economic and military reconstruction of western Europe, of which France is the key, the more likely that war can be prevented. Our European Recovery Program, and our steps to support measures for western European regional security, are the basis of a foreign policy intended to prevent war. Yet it is obvious that if the French people believe their safety is endangered by such projects for Germany as those which General Clay initiated, they will neither have the confidence essential to economic reconstruction, nor the willingness to cooperate with the United States which is indispensable to military security. The German policy for which General Clay has been primarily responsible has endangered the achievement of the basic objectives of our foreign policy.

It is widely believed that American foreign policy is being determined in the Pentagon. This is an over-simplification. Yet it must be recognized that the predominance of the military in almost every sector of our international relations has lessened the degree of control that the State Department should have, and has reduced the influence of our qualified political authorities in Washington, just as it has eliminated the participation in policy-making of our leading foreign service officers whose skill and experience were never more needed. It has resulted, by no means infrequently, in our finding ourselves as a nation losing sight of the forest because of the trees.

These coming four months are the determining period of the immediate postwar era. The Kremlin has so far failed to see that dissension among the American people for which it hoped. But the recent trend of American diplomacy is a danger only lesser in extent. It can be removed if Secretary Marshall concentrates the formulation and direction of our foreign policy in the Department of State, and procures the replacement of those of our representatives abroad, no matter how distinguished their military service may have been, who suffer from the delusion that the determination of policy is their rightful function.

Peiping, Aug. 9 (AP).—Five hundred persons a day are starving to death in Red-besieged Changchun and its environs, the newspaper Shih Chieh Jih Pao said today.

Dog meat, the paper added, is selling for 24 million Chinese dollars a pound ($2.40, United States); horse meat 50 million dollars ($5), and kaoliang, a Chinese variety of sorghum, at 100 million dollars ($10) a pound.

Elwood said the two-story cottage apparently fell into the river from the island on which it was standing in the middle of the river, opposite Fort Calhoun, Nebr., north of Omaha.

Major Party Spokesmen Row Over Growing Cost of Living

mean the end of economic freedom in the United States."

Answering Taft, Senator McGrath said that the Ohioan had introduced a new issue in the 1948 campaign—that the Democrats were more interesting in heading off a depression than inflation.

"That is true," said McGrath. "The Democratic Party is interested in avoiding a depression. The Democratic Party does not share the traditional Republican indifference to depressions . . . Their indifference to the problems of inflation and deflation brought the sickening crash of 1929 and the cruel Hoover depression . . .

"Today the Hoover depression has become a nightmare of the past and most Americans have come to take for granted our present Democratic prosperity with production and employment at all-time highs.

"Apparently even Senator Taft has forgotten the Hoover depression or he would not now try to make political capital out of the charge that the Democratic Party is trying to avoid a repetition of the breadlines and apple peddlers and bank failures and mortgage foreclosures that were the fruits of Republican 'normalcy.'"

Senator Taft, in a 2500-word statement given out at a news conference, said that Mr. Truman called the special session of Congress "entirely for his supposed political advantage." He said that Congress had given full consideration to the President's proposals at the regular session.

"In most cases," Taft continued, "the quarrel resulted from a fundamental difference in Government philosophy between the President and Congress.

"The President has a New Deal program of unlimited spending, expansion of the power of Federal bureaus over States, cities and individuals, and the regimentation of agriculture, labor and industry.

"The Congress believes that problems must be solved within the principles of liberty, equality and justice which guided this country for 150 years. The fundamental differences with the President can be settled only by a vote of the people at the November election."

Taft harked back to President Truman's speech of acceptance before the Democratic National Convention, in which he said that members of organized labor and farmers would be "the most ungrateful people" in the world if they failed to vote Democratic next November.

The Ohioan argued that if the Democratic Party was going to claim credit for high wages and for high farm prices, it also would have to take the blame for the high prices being paid by the consumer.

Gives Inflation Views

He added:

"How can an administration which has been in power for 14 years escape the responsibility for high prices which are the results of its policies?

"Inflation results from the tremendous deficit before and during the war, from the encouragement of exports to all parts of the world without corresponding imports, from encouraging patterns of general wage increases on the theory that they would not increase prices, from the failure to use powers to restrain bank credit, and from spending vast amounts of Government money for every kind of project, competing for labor and materials with private industry.

"The President's only complaint is that the Republicans will not give him power to fix wages, to fix prices and ration commodities. This is like tying down the safety valve while you go on stoking the furnace . . ."

Taft said that the Republicans had done their best to cooperate with Mr. Truman, and added:

"Yet now, the President is trying to make political capital of the policy made possible by Republican and congressional cooperation, while he villifies Congress. The only reasonable way to work out a Republican program in detailed legislation is in cooperation with a Republican President."

Old Headache Looms Again For Business

By S. Oliver Goodman

Credit control legislation, sent by Congress to the White House, is a revived headache to big and little business as well as individuals.

To bankers, the increased reserve requirements will reduce the amount banks have for lending and investing. With demand growing for credit and lessened funds, it is natural for interest rates to rise. This may have an adverse effect on bank earnings in the near future. But some bankers are hopeful that in the long run this reduction in working funds will more than be offset by the higher interest rates.

What happens under the new installment credit controls depends on what the Federal Reserve Board of Governors does under the new regulations.

May Revive Wartime Rules

Informed opinion is that Regulation W will be revived, but how stringent the rules will be or what items will be covered is not yet known.

Retailers who have been finding business slow even under the present liberal credit terms are unhappy about the outlook. They expect the little buyer and the smaller merchants to feel most the impact of the installment credit controls.

If the wartime Regulation W is revived, these regulations would be in effect:

Down payment of one third and the balance in 12 months on all types of household and electric appliances, silverware, jewelry, musical instruments, auto equipment and other items.

Passenger autos — One third down with 15 months for the balance.

These terms were relaxed in December, 1946, and currently the general business practice is something like this:

Autos—Mostly one third down and 18 months to pay, although some finance companies offer 24 months.

Household appliances — Three-year terms reported common among retailers of refrigerators, washing machines, automatic ironers and dishwashers. Many of these dealers, with sales dropping in recent months, have been opposed to reimposing credit curbs.

Radios and televison sets—At least 20 per cent down and 12 months to pay on big television sets. But small sets and console-type radios and phonographs have been financed on three-year terms in an effort to boost sales. In this field the new credit curbs would bite deep.

Auto dealers generally discount the possible effects of new credit curbs. General feeling in this field is that there is such a long list of persons waiting for new cars that the little fellow who is squeezed out by more stringent terms will not be missed. But if the 15-month payments are enforced, that might mean about $95 a month—too high for many a wage earner.

Other Possible Effect

Department stores expect to lose sales on some floors and gain on others. Furniture sales on time may be hurt. But many of the little fellows who can't buy durable goods under stricter credit terms will have a little more money to buy soft goods and notions.

The heavy goods industries and those dealing with products still in short supply say the sales picture will not be changed in any way—the problem there is time of delivery and not terms of payment.

Some informed observers minimize the effect of new credit curbs. They argue that the would-be buyers who want something bad enough and find they can't meet new and higher monthly payments out of their paychecks will take the money out of savings and war bonds and go ahead.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Cotton futures broke more than $3 a bale today under pressure of liquidation, following a much larger than expected Government crop forecast. The market, however, rallied partially towards the close on good trade buying and covering against sales of cotton to Japan and France. Final prices were $2.05 to $2.65 a bale lower.

The Department of Agriculture August 1 forecast, placing the 1948 cotton crop at 13,169,000 bales, was approximately 1,300,000 larger than average trade expectations and compared with the 1947 crop of 11,851,000 bales. Traders foresaw the possibility of a substantial building up of cotton supplies in the United States this season with well over three million bales of cotton entering the Government loan.

Traders said that if future prices had not already been close to the Government loan level reaction in the market would have been much more severe.

Pratt & Whitney Cuts Airplane Engine Prices

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—Prices of Pratt & Whitney airplane engines have been increased an average of 10 per cent, the United Aircraft Corporation announced today.

Pratt & Whitney engines are used in Boeing B-50 long-range bombers, the huge Consolidated B-36 bomber and numerous types of military and commercial transports.

The price increases are not uniform, and apply to spare parts as well as completed engines.

Aeronca Price Cut

Middletown, Ohio, Aug. 9 (AP).—John A. Lawler, president of the Aeronca Aircraft Corp., announced price cuts ranging from $100 to $400 on his company's planes. The Oeronca Champion now is $2475 at the factory, he said.

Denver, Aug. 9 (AP).—The sale of the carbon black plant at Monument, N. Mex., to Cabot Carbon Co., of Boston for $773,500 was announced today by the War Assets Administration.

The plant, which has an annual capacity of 15,200,000 pounds of carbon black, was constructed for wartime production by the Government at a cost of $2,250,000.

New Coating for Aluminum

A new plastic to be used in coating aluminum has been developed by Ira Grishaver, engineer for the Metal Production Corp. The coating makes aluminum impervious to violet rays, acids and salt water spray. It has been tested by Reynolds Metals Corp.

Taft Foresees GOP Victory, Senate Control

A Republican victory in November of proportions ample to assure a Republican Congress was forecast yesterday by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Senator Taft sought at a press conference to refute all reports that the Democrats might capture the Senate, although losing the White House.

"I am inclined," he said, "to believe that Governor Dewey will carry most of the States in which there are real senatorial contests, and will carry the Republican candidate along with him."

Senator Taft noted that there were now Democratic Senators in Five States where the outcome might be close, and Republican Senators in Four States where the same situation prevails. The present Senate is composed of 51 Republicans and 45 Democrats. By no stretch of imagination, Senator Taft said, could the Democrats elect a Senate if the Republican presidential ticket wins in November.

Democratic Senators are up for reelection in the debatable States of Montana, Rhode Island, Colorado, New Mexico and Tennessee, according to Senator Taft. Likewise, Republican Senatorships are at stake in West Virginia, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Wyoming.

Businessmen Censure Vote on Charity Units

The Southeast Businessmen's Association last night censured trustees of the United Community Services for "voting in" 17 agencies termed by the association as "questionable so far as charity is concerned."

Meeting at Donohoe Real Estate Co. offices, 314 Pennsylvania ave. se., the association said its action was in line with a recommendation for deletion of these agencies in a joint report of the Federation of Citizens' Associations and the Businessmen's Association.

Farmers Warned Of Coming Slump

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—Farmers attending the Vegetable Gr..owers Association of America convention today were warned, by two experts to get set for a general drop in prices.

"History indicates a violent drap is likely," said Dean W. I. Myers ofk the New York State College of Agriculture, "but there is a possibility that the decline may be less violent this time as a result of the restraint against prices exercised by large corporations, unemployment insurance and other factors."

Dr. R. B. Corbett, director of the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture, echoed Dean Myers.

Cotton Yield Per Acre Due To Set Record

By The Associated Press

A surprisingly large cotton crop of 15,169,000 bales was forecast by the Agriculture Department yesterday.

The estimate was nearly two million bales larger than the cotton trade had expected. It was based on indications the yield per acre will be the highest on record.

In response to the forecast prices on the New York exchange tumbled more than $3 a bale below Friday's close. At New Orleans prices also dropped sharply.

The crop would be the seventh largest on record, and 3,318,000 bales or about 28 per cent larger than last year's crop. Record production was 18,946,000 in 1937. Last year's harvest was 11,851,000.

The crop also would be about 3,155,000 bales larger than the 10-year (1937-46) average.

The department attributed the prospective big crop to exceptionally favorable weather, increased use of fertilizer and a larger proportion of the cotton acreage being planted in heavy-yielding areas.

A crop of the size indicated would be far above official estimates of needs for domestic use and export.

Domestic requirements have been forecast at about 8,250,000 bales, and exports at 3,500,000—a total of 11,750,000.

On this basis, the crop would provide an excess of 3,419,000 bales over needs. This extra supply would be added to a carry-over of about 2,392,000 from previous crops to give a total reserve of about 5,811,000.

The record reserve was 12,943,000 in 1939—a time of price-depressing surpluses and Government crop controls. No Government limitations or controls are in effect for this year's crop.

The yield of cotton per acre this year was indicated at 313.5 pounds or 14.6 pounds above the previous record set in 1944.

Dewey Wants Active Backing Of Young GOP

Pawling, N. Y., Aug. 9 (U.P.)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey wants the active support of Young Republicans in his bid for the Presidency, it was disclosed tonight.

Ending a five-week vacation mixed with politics, Dewey will return to Albany Wednesday for a closed conference with the executive committee of the Young Republican National Federation, which is made up of about 125 Young Republican leaders.

Representative Hugh Scott, new Republican chairman, will outline to the committee the part Dewey expects youth to play in the campaign.

Dewey expects to start his Nation-wide tour early in September. Exact times and places will be decided next week when he meets with his running mate, Gov. Earl Warren and Campaign Manager Herbert Brownell, jr.

Texas States' Righters Have Plan for 'Sweep'

Houston, Texas, Aug. 9 (AP).—States' Rights Democrats plan to present to their Presidential nominee tomorow a plan of strategy for making a clean sweep of electoral college votes in the Solid South.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina arrives here Tuesday afternoon and on Wednesday night is to make formal acceptance of his nomination for President by the States' Righters.

Appearing with Thurmond at the Wednesday night rally at Sam Houston Coliseum will be his Vice Presidential running mate, Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi.

States Rights Party Forming in Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, Aug. 9 (AP).—A call for a States' Rights convention here Saturday has been issued over the name of former Gov. William H. Murray.

Editor George Hill of the Tishomingo Capital-Democrat said today that Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the party's Presidential candidate, had notified Murray he will address the meeting. Murray lives in Tishomingo.

Virginia to Weed Out Inactive Game Wardens

Richmond, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—I. T. Quinn, executive director of the State Game Commission, said today inactive game wardens will be weeded out.

He asked the support of Virginia sportsmen and public cooperation in uncovering weak spots in the warden force.

"Everybody in this organization," Quinn said, "is on the spot for the next 18 months, and that means the wardens, too."

Police Seek Rapist Of Major's Wife

Milford, Del., Aug. 9 (Spl.).—Several suspects were questioned today as police in 11 States searched for the man accused of beating a former Army major and raping his wife yesterday.

The victims, Willard H. Fisher, 34, of Delmar, Del., and his wife, the former Elizabeth Oliphant, 24, of Laurel, Del., were reported in serious condition today at Memorial Hospital here.

Maj. Herbert Barnes, commanding officer of the Delaware State Police, said no arrests have been made.

He said both Fisher and his wife were beaten and the wife raped by a stranger who helped them repair a flat tire near Greenwood, Del., at about 2:30 a.m. yesterday.

Need for Swimming Pools Shown by 31 Drownings in '47

The Washington Post

PLAY POTENTIAL—Illustrating a highly important phase of youth activity is this picture made at the Police Boys Club camp at Scotland, Md. Jack Baumgarten, 19, former Tech High School football star, shouts instructions to Hillary Rodill, 15, of 909 Evarts st. ne., as to how a particular swimming stroke should be executed. Swimming instruction rates as important at the camp

Last year 31 persons were drowned in the District. Nine of the casualties were children and youths. Fifteen of the victims were in their 20s and 30s.

The District Recreation Board feels that these drownings could be virtually eliminated if more emphasis were placed on swimming.

The board is handicapped by what it regards as a "deplorable deficiency" of pools in the city.

Eleven of the drownings were the result of persons playing in the river. Nine occurred when small craft capsized.

The city has eight public pools but only two of these are run by the Recreation Department. An agreement with Government Services, Inc., enables children to use the six GSI pools during the morning without charge.

On hot days youngsters stand in line for a chance to get in the water.

"If we don't provide a place for children to cool off, they go to the river," Board Chairman Harry S. Wender said. "The river is not only dangerous for swimming and wading but its waters are polluted."

A study of drownings shows that many of the victims could have saved their lives if they had been able to swim but a few strokes, Wender said. Drownings frequently occur when a canoe overturns a few yards from shore or a child is pushed off a dock.

The need to train youth to swim was pointed out by the war. Only a fraction of District men drafted were able to swim,, Wender said.

The Recreation Department has met the problem of keeping small children out of the river by setting up spray areas or wading pools at 16 playgrounds and by closing streets and turning on fire hydrants. While this keeps children cool, it doesn't teach them to swim.

The Recreation Department has ambitious plans to build 11 or 12 "year-round" pools in this city. They would be placed adjacent to senior or junior high schools so that swimming could be made part of the physical education program.

Plans for three pools at Randall, Taft and Alice Deal junior high schools are now on the architect's drawing board.

The pools would mark a departure for the city. They would have roofs of sliding panels and would be open in the summer but usable for 12 months a year instead of 3.

Funds to begin construction of the pools were cut from the 1949 budget by the Commissioners, but the request will be renewed next year.

Brown Hints Contest in Ky. Congress Race

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 9 (U.P.)—John Young Brown, Lexington, candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination, said today he may contest the election, as his opponent, Representative Virgil Chapman, piled up an apparently insurmountable lead.

With 326 of the State's 4057 precincts still be to be counted, Brown was trailing Chapman by some 13,000 votes. The count showed Chapman, 96,931 to 84,109 for Brown.

Brown claimed the vote yet to be counted, in the coal-mining district of Eastern Kentucky where he had labor's support, would reduce Chapman's majority "by a considerable amount."

The Lexington attorney said, "In many counties I had no manager, and was completely at the mercy of the State administration, and I have information that votes were counted that were not actually cast."

Check Shows Courthey Loser by 60 Ballots

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 9 (AP).—An unofficial tabulation of the official vote canvass in the Seventh Congressional District today apparently gave Pat Sutton the Democratic nomination over Representative Wirt Courtney. The margin was 60 votes.

The complete, but uncertified, tally gave Sutton, young Lawrenceburg merchant, 20,114 votes against 20,054 for Courtney, who sought a sixth term.

The canvass marked a reversal of unofficial tabulations reported previously from all but six of the district's 277 precincts. Courtney then held a 120-vote margin.

Hitch-hiking Soldier Injured in Accident

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 9 (AP).—Pfc. Joseph Pullen, 17, a resident of Cumberland and stationed at Fort Meade, was injured today when the car in which he had hitched a ride skidded and overturned on U. S. 40 some 12 miles west.

Pullen had been picked up by Walter Wiles, 34, of Hagerstown. Wiles was unhurt. Pullen has severe facial lacerations.

Canadians Ask End Of Beef Shipment Ban

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Canadian Federation of Agriculture has urged the federal government to remove the ban on beef-cattle shipments to the United States. Federation officials said today the request was made following the recent semiannual meeting.

A federation statement said the time has arrived when the traditional American market for Canadian beef cattle should be restored to the producers.

Hart Worker Cleared On Child Labor Charge

Portsmouth, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Clarence E. Magee, Norfolk County manager of James P. Hart's unsuccessful campaign for A. Willis Robertson's Senate seat was acquitted today of a charge of violating the State child labor laws.

Magee was arrested July 31 by a State labor inspector who charged he hired several newspaper carrier boys to deliver Hart campaign leaflets on their newspaper routes.

After his arrest Magee said "it looks to me like a case of political persecution by the Byrd machine."

Rep. Dayton E. Phillips Wins by 1473 Votes

Johnson City, Tenn., Aug. 9 (AP).—Representative Dayton E. Phillips won Republican renomination to Congress from the First Tennessee District on the basis of today's official canvass by county primary boards.

Totals for the district's 14 counties gave Phillips 2,074 votes to 27,701 for William E. Miller, Johnson City attorney who was backed in the primary by the political organization of former Republican National Chairman B. Carroll Reece of Johnson City.

Maryland Education Board Finishes Job

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Maryland Commission on Higher Education is out of business, according to Chairman William L. Marbury.

Asked about any plans for pressing recommendations for closing of Princess Anne College and the Frostburg State Teachers College, Marbury replied the commission's work is done.

"We were asked to file a report to the Governor and the Legislature, and we have done it," Marbury pointed out.

Wage Talks Resumed At Cumberland Plant

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 9 (AP).—The Celanese Corporation of America and the Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, resumed negotiations today for a new contract.

The meeting was called after the union and the Viscose Corporation agreed on a wage increase averaging 16 cents an hour, and the Industrial Rayon Corporation of Cleveland to an increase of 17 cents.

Union officials went to today's meeting "armed" with the Viscose and Industrial figures. The local is seeking 18 cents and the company has made no offer.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

(Jake Powell, former major league outfielder, was given his unconditional release by Gainsville of the Florida State League. He was hitting only .200.—News item.)

DOWN IN THE CLASS D MINORS, Jake Powell was giving it a last try. You remember Jake—problem boy of the Nats, World Series hero with the Yankees, ruthless on the baselines, vague about train schedules and contemptuous of the outfield fences.

POVICH

He never could stay put. From the year he came off the Washington sandlots as the big shot outfielder of the Takoma Tigers and moved directly into the Nats' lineup in 1930, he was off on a gypsy tour of baseball. Chattanooga, New Haven, Springfield, Wilkes-Barre, Albany, Harrisburg, Dayton and Albany had him before the Nats picked Jake up again in 1934.

That was after he whacked out a .361 batting average for Albany and just missed leading the International League in hitting. Jake did all right in his first full year with the Nats in 1935, beating out enough bunts to boost his average to .312 and Manager Bucky Harris cheerfully overlooked Powell's late-hour frolicking.

POWELL WENT SOUTH with the Nats in 1936, but when they broke camp on the only train out of Orlando, Fla., on the appointed day, Jake wasn't aboard. And if you don't get out of Orlando on that train, you don't get to Cordele, Ga., where the Nats had an exhibition game the next day, and Harris was mad when he counted noses and found no Powell. "This will cost him two hundred," said Harris.

But when the Nats reached the Cordele park the next day, they were greeted there by Powell. Jake had missed the train for reasons that weren't satisfactory to Harris. Then how did he get to Cordele. "I chartered a plane," explained Jake. But what he didn't explain was that it was a charge job, with the plane company presenting the Nats with the bill for Powell's excursion two days later in Birmingham.

If it wasn't an abundant life for the Nats in those years, it was at least a more exciting one with Powell one of their number. Hank Greenberg was taking a routine infield throw after Powell grounded out in May, 1936, and the next thing he knew Powell crashed into him madly, broke Greenberg's wrist and put him out of the Detroit lineup for the rest of the season. Jake didn't apologize. He saw nothing to apologize for. He had beaten out a hit.

POWELL FOUND AN ADMIRER in Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, who liked Jake's rootin'-tootin' style and when he offered Ben Chapman in an even swap, the Nats grabbed it up. Jake did more than all right for the Yankees, before Charley Keller came along from Newark and moved him out of a regular outfield job. But Jake got in some hot licks for the Yanks in the 1936 World Series against the Giants.

At a time when Carl Hubbell was the best pitcher in the business, Jake issued a preseries statement of his own. "This guy Hubbell is just another pitcher," said Powell, lead-off man for the Yankees. And then he banged out four hits against Hubbell in the opening game, led the Yankees at bat in the series with a .455 average, and scored eight runs to tie the record for a six-game series.

He picked up three nice World Series checks with the Yankees in 1936-37-38 and ran the bases better and worse, alternately, than any man on the Yankee club. McCarthy used to excuse Jake for trying to stretch his hits by saying "Jake takes insane chances and has no business going for the extra base most of the time but he's so lucky somebody ends up throwing the ball away and Jake winds up with two extra bases."

THE WASHINGTON FANS weren't fond of Jake after he became a Yankee. He caught it from the left field bleachers in Griffith Stadium after roughing up First Baseman Joe Kuhel in a Yankee Stadium game. Jake answered back, and the bleacherites threw a dozen pop bottles at Jake's head. Jake calmly picked them all up, waved away a ground crew attendant who was approaching with a basket, and threw the bottles back at the bleacher fans.

His trouble with Kuhel started on the same kind of a play on which Powell broke Greenberg's wrist. Kuhel barely did get out of the way and then challenged Jake. They were swapping punches all around the first base territory when Jake finally discovered he was outnumbered. From off the Washington bench Catcher Walter Millies leaped on Jake's back and bore him to the ground.

Jake got up, though, and took a punch at Millies' jaw. Then he learned to his pain that Millies had fortified himself with his catcher's mask before entering the battle. The Nats wound up with Powell on their ball club again in 1943. They bought him from St. Paul. When he reported they knew they had the same old Jake. He showed up with a black eye, a souvenir of a small fracas with Eric McNair, the A's old second baseman, in his farewell game with St. Paul.

Decision Not Final

Virginia Balks at Purity Code Because 'It Can't Be Enforced'

Richmond, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—The University of Virginia's board of visitors has decided it cannot now adopt the National Collegiate Athletic Association's "purity code," a university official said today.

President Colgate W. Darden, jr., said that while the board could not agree entirely with the NCAA plan and enforce it to the letter, the decision is not a final one.

"We have not turned it down in a strict sense of the word," he explained. "The board is merely unwilling to subscribe to the agreement at the present. While we may agree with the spirit of the plan it is the belief of our board that it cannot be properly enforced."

Virginia's action is the first definite stand on the part of Old Dominion colleges. For the most part they are waiting to follow the plans of the Southern Conference, whose representatives have held several meetings to discuss the code.

The "purity code," adopted in January by 400 colleges, was a name applied by constitutional amendments adopted by the NCAA. It became effective immediately for all members and penalty for violation is suspension from NCAA.

Under it financial aid may be granted to athletes only if the same aid is available under the same conditions to all students of the institution.

Norton G. Pritchett, Virginia director of athletics, was a member of a seven-man NCAA committee which worked for two years to draw up the code. At a Southern Conference meeting in February, Pritchett said he had endeavored to have an athletic scholarship plan included in the code.

Darden said Virginia would continue its present type of scholarship. "These alumni grants cover tuition and board," he said.

The University of Virginia was once a member of the Southern Conference but for some years has been an independent in athletic competition. Its withdrawal took place during a controversy over the so-called Graham plan, a sort of "purity code" within the Southern Conference.

British Say Films Show U. S. Fouled

By Gayle Talbot

London, Aug. 9 (AP).—The seething dispute over whether the United States' 400-meter relay team fouled itself out in the final Olympic track event Saturday, went on today as hot as ever.

An Olympic jury of appeal postponed action on the American protest until it sees movies of the race at 9 a. m. tomorrow, but two British film officials who witnessed rushes of the picture said it looked as though there had been a rules infraction.

"It is very difficult to see," said Fred Partington, news editor of Paramount News, "but I should say it showed a fault. They took quite a long time in changing the baton."

The point in dispute is whether Barney Ewell of Lancaster, Pa., the first American runner, ran beyond the 20-meter change-over zone before he passed the baton to Lorenzo Wright of Wayne University, who sprinted the second lap.

The American runners, as well as their coach, Dean Cromwell, are convinced that the unnamed official who called the foul pulled a boner.

Castleton Knight, producer of the official Olympic film, was quoted by the British Press Association as saying that, in his judgment, the movies show the disqualification was justified.

"As far as a layman can see," he was quoted, "the picture showed that the change-over took place beyond the line. But it will be for the experts to decide, because there is the question of the angle at which the film was taken to be considered."

E. J. Holt, British secretary of the International Amateur Athletic Association, was given a private showing of the film today, but he said he would make no statement until the full jury of appeal had seen it. Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association, is a member of the jury.

Knight was quoted as saying that Wright appeared to have had both feet over the line when he reached back to take the stick from Ewell.

Dodgers Beat Phillies, 2-1

Brooklyn, Aug. 9 (AP).—Brooklyn defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 tonight before 33,665 fans. Carl Erskine allowed five hits for his fourth victory without a defeat.

Erskine, up from Fort Worth, permitted only five hits, one of them a home run by Del Ennis. It was No. 17 for the Philly outfielder.

Mangrum's 70 Wins; He Gets $22,500 For Week

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP).—Golf's golden boy, Lloyd Mangrum, added up a week's earnings of $22,500 today by winning the $10,000 Tam O'Shanter pro playoff with a two-under-par 70. Sam Snead posted 71 and Dutch Harrison a 73.

Snead turned in birdies on the first two holes to gain a two-stroke lead over Mangrum, and a four-stroke lead over Harrison, who was in trouble all day. From then on, Mangrum, from the host club, methodically began taking the course apart and eventually came up to the last hole tied with Snead.

Snead's drive came to rest directly behind a pine tree in the rough, while Mangrum was down the middle 260 yards. Sammy could do nothing but chip out on to the fairway and then bang his third on to the green for a one-over-par 5.

Mangrum hit his second shot 15 feet from the cup and went down for a standard four as the crowd of about 10,000 roared.

The lean, mustachioed Mangrum won the $5000 first prize Friday in the Tam O'Shanter all-American pro tourney. Sunday he hammered a closing round of 63, 9 punder par, in a rally which created a three-cornered tie in the 36-hole "world championship' dil vision at 135. His 63 broke the course record of 64 set by Ralph Guldahl on opening day and brought an automatic $2500 award from Promoter George S. May. May also gave Mangrum a $5000 bonus for his title, since he is the club's representative.

Today's prize of $10,000 was the largest single amount ever posted in the history of tournament golf. And "Golden Boy" grabbed it. Incidentally, Mangrum just couldn't miss during the week. Last night at the Tam O'Shanter Club, he won a $100 "doorprize" after his number came up out of more than 1000 ticket stubs.

The gallery, largest ever to collect for a playoff, not only was for a Mangrum victory but also unknowingly helped him out. On the ninth hole, the 34-year-old pro hit a spectator with his third shot and the ball bounced onto the green. He salvaged a par 5, otherwise his third shot would have rolled into a deep gully.

Snead possibly would have gone out of bounds on the 12th if his second shot had not caromed off a parked auto near the green. He chipped short, got on in 4 and finally was down for a big 5.

Snead turned the first nine in 34 after three birdies captured by holding 6, 2 and 10 foot putts. He needed a 5 on the 445-yard fourth when he missed a 3-foot-par putt.

Mangrum made the turn in standard 36 and Harrison required a 38.

Birdie putts of 6 feet and 5 feet on the eleventh and fifteenth, respectively, gave Snead a 2-under-par count going to the seventeenth tee.

Mangrum was one stroke behind on the seventeenth after salvaging pars on the fourteenth and fifteenth with good recoveries from traps.

Snead took a regulation 4 on the seventeenth, while Mangrum evened with his foe with a birdie 3 after dropping a five footer. Then came the eighteenth, when Sammy's drive wandered behind the pine tree.

Fox and Colan Matched Here

Billy Fox, light heavyweight knockout artist from Philadelphia, is the latest "name" fighter to be signed for a local appearance.

Knockout victor in 51 out of 53 starts, Blackjack Billy will meet Johnny Colan of New York, a week from Monday night under Liberty Athletic Club promotion at Griffith Stadium.

Fox's only two losses were by the knockout route, former light heavyweight champ Gus Lesnevich winning both times. So all 53 of Fox's pro fights have ended in kayoes.

This will be Fox's first appearance in a Washington ring. But he has chilled several prominent mittmen who are familiar to D. C. fans. He kayoed Ossie (Bulldog) Harris twice and Jake LaMotta once. Others on his victim list are Kid Wolfe, Bill McDowell, Johnny Walker, Nate Bolden and Artie Levine.

A's Give Nats No Hope of Escaping 7th

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, August 9.—In Philadelphia tonight the Nats were trying to forget their nightmarish Western experiences, but every time they examined the American League standings they were jolted out of their self-imposed absent mindness.

The cold facts, as the Washingtonians discovered, are these:

1. Because of the 3-won and 10-lost Western trip the club is in sixth place only two games in front of the improving Browns.

2. The immediate future holds no comfort. Tomorrow night while the Nats scuffle in a twi-night affair with the pennant-mad Athletics, the Browns have an affair with the eigth-place White Sox.

Kuhel Shoots Works

To forestall this calamity, Manager Joe Kuhel is shooting the works against the second-place Macks tomorrow. The early arrivals will see Ray Scarborough, Washington's best, shoot for his 10th victory. In the night engagement Walter Masterson goes for No. 8.

Scarborough is Kuhel's top-drawer pitcher. Ray won four in a row, before Cleveland messed up his string. The Indians slammed him for two home runs—the only hits he allowed in seven-innings, and beat him, 3-0. Masterson has improved iately, too.

He lost a 1-0 decision to Detroit Friday, walking in the winning run in the tenth.

On the seamy side of the picture, injuries continue to plague the hapless Griffs. Eddie Yost's jammed ankle refuses to respond to treatment and Trainer Doc Lentz says the young third sacker won't be able to play for four more days.

Spirit Still High

Gil Coan, suffering from the same thing, may break into the lineup in one of the games tomorrow. Tonight, however, he was doubtful. His ankle is puffed up, too.

Mickey Haefner, with a sore back, continues to be excess baggage. He hasn't pitched in two weeks. In virtually the same category is Reliefer Earl Harrist, who has a sore arm.

Physically, the club is pretty much shot right now. In spite of its ailments, photo finish defeats and seemingly never ending rhubarbs with umpires, the spirit remains amazingly high. But, as one of the players put it tonight:

"It takes a lot of hustle and spirit to overcome a club batting average of .246."

Browns Down Chisox, 8 to 6

St. Louis, Aug. 9 (AP).—Bob Dillinger poled a triple and two doubles to lead the St. Louis Browns to an 8-to-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox tonight. Pat Seerey hit his sixteenth home run for the losers. Each team used three pitchers during the slugfest, witnessed by less than 2500 paying fans.

Indians Beat Tigers Before 56,586 Fans

Detroit, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians moved a half game in front in the American League race tonight as Gene Bearden pitched the Tribe to a 6 to 2 victory over the Detroit Tigers before the largest crowd of the year here—56,586 fans.

Eddie Robinson's three-run homer in the fourth inning off Freddie Hutchinson, the Tribe first baseman's four circuit smash in two days, gave Bearden all the runs he needed to take his tenth win against three losses.

Detroit got seven hits off the tall lefthander and scored both its runs in the seventh inning, when Dick Wakefield singled, Johnny Lipon tripled off the leftfield screen and scored on Eddie Lake's infield bouncer.

By winning its fourth straight game, Cleveland hiked its narrow American League lead to a half game over the second-place Philadelphia Athletics.

NBA Okay Sought for Fight Here In October

By Bus Hara
Post Reporter

Possibility of Jersey Joe Walcott fighting either Ezzard Charles or Jimmy Bivins for the world heavyweight title here in October looked favorable last night.

At a meeting yesterday in Camden, N. J., Walcott's home town, Joe tentatively accepted a proposal that he fight for the title against the winner of the Charles-Bivins bout at Griffith Stadium September 13.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez made the proposal to Walcott and his adviser, Felix Bocchicchio. They accepted with the provision, of course, that the heavyweight title be at stake.

NBA Meets Next Month

Menendez said that he will request the National Boxing Association to formally designate the October fight between Walcott and the Charles-Bivins winner as being for the heavyweight title.

"We are going to ask the NBA to take a poll of its members and designate the Walcott fight with the Charles-Bivins winner as being for the heavyweight title," Menendez said.

The NBA holds its annual convention in Philadelphia September 14, and Menendez hopes to "have the official blessing of that body to advertise the fight as a world's championship affair."

"Only yesterday morning," Menendez said, "Leon Rains, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission and a member of the NBR, told us he would support the move."

Louis Will Not Fight Again

Harvey L. Miller, District of Columbia boxing commission chairman, is secretary of the NBA.

Menendez said that while Champion Joe Louis has announced his retirement, Louis has not given official notice to the NBA.

"Action by the NBA at is September convention would clear up this matter," Menendez said. "Louis told us Sunday on a visit at Carr's beach near Washington that he positively will not fight again. Louis said then that he considers Charles the best of the pretenders to his title."

Walcott, who was present at yesterday's press conference that followed the Camden meeting between Bocchicchio and Menendez, predicted a great fight between Charles and Bivins, but would not predict the winner until he sees what kind of shape Bivins is in.

Another Conference Soon

"However, I'll take either one of them with that title at stake," grinned Jersey Joe.

Menendez and Bocchiccio are expected to have another conference in Washington next week.

Elkus, Comanager Of Charles, Dies

Cincinnati, Aug. 9 (AP).—Max Elkus, 50, one of three comanagers of Heavyweight Ezzard Charles, died unexpectedly today. His family said he had suffered a stroke.

Proprietor of a downtown clothing store, Elkus had teamed with Charles Dyer and George Rhein in managing Charles, who now is a possible contender for the heavyweight crown.

Too Blind to Feed

Owner Has Alpine Boy Destroyed

Jarrettsville, Md., Aug. 9 (AP).—Dr. James A. Gross, owner of Alpine Boy, today confirmed reports he had ordered the destruction of the 12-year-old gelding which had caused the death of Jockey Benny Leggett.

The veterinarian and horse trainer said he originally planned to put the horse out to pasture but abandoned the idea when he found Alpine Boy could not see well enough to feed.

Destroyed Last Thursday

In Kingsville, Md., one of Gross' associates said fellow veterinarian told him he did away with the horse at the request of Gross.

Dr. Gibson Meredith said the destruction was carried out last Thursday night.

No Blame Placed

The 22-year-old jockey succumbed in a hospital the next day and an investigation was called by the Maryland Racing Commission.

The inquiry included testimony that the horse had been barred from the Charles Town, W. Va., race track because of defective vision.

6 Local Boys In U. S. Golf

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 9 (AP).—Six youngsters from the Washington, D. C. area are among 128 who will compete here Wednesday in the United States Golf Association's national junior championship.

Three preliminary rounds are planned with semifinals and finals scheduled for Saturday. Play will be over the par 72, 6600-yard University of Michigan course.

Medalist and a likely favorite is Warren Higgins of Dallas, Tex., who took the qualifying medal with a 69. The field was developed from 495 original entries after qualifying trials at 41 locations.

Eugene (Buddy) Wolfe, Silver Spring, Md., vs. T. Lybrand, Aiken, S. C.

Bob Foster, Chevy Chase, Md., vs. Gray Madison, Jr., Phoenix, Ariz.

British Also Triumph in Two Races

By Bill Macklin

Henely-on-Thames, England, Aug. 9 (AP).—California University's rhythm kings of the water retained America's stranglehold on the Olympic rowing eight championship today and Washington University won a new title—for the United States—in the four oars with coxswain.

The twin victory by the blue-clad Yanks was matched by Britain's triumph in pairs-without-cox and double sculls as the Olympic regatta ended on the River Thames, shimmering under a warm August sun.

Three nations shared the other titles. Handsome Mervyn Wood, the Australian fingerprint police expert, ran away with the single sculls, Denmark captured the pairs with cox and Italy triumphed in fours without cox.

Yale Finishes Third

Yale University's quartet struggled into third place in the coxless fours behind the Italians and Danes. It was the only other race in which the United States oarsmen had survived to the finals.

The river along the 1900-meter course is lined with trees broken by green meadows. Peeping through the branches and crowding the open spaces were 22,000 spectators, including American track men and swimmers who came down from London to see the United States Olympic regatta bid.

From the first race they had plenty to cheer.

The Washingtonians, who concenved the idea of breaking up their junior varsity eight into a four after the Poughkeepsie Regatta in June, staged a rousing stretch sprint to conquer the Swiss.

They finished the lung-burning row in 6:50.3, only three seconds behind came Switzerland and then Denmark.

D. C. Printers Win 1st Test

Detroit, Aug. 9.—Scoring 14 runs with only nine hits when two Indianapolis pitchers walked a total of 14 men, Washington slapped the Hoosiers, 14 to 2, today in a first-round game in the Union Printers thirty-fourth annual baseball tournament.

Wilbie Canard, Washington pitcher, yielded only five hits and batted in two runs himself with a pair of singles. Frank Ciango, Washington centerfielder, had only one hit—a double in six times at bat, but knocked across four runs.

Harry Hofberg, playing second base the entire game for the winners, was not charged with any times at bat as he walked on all five appearances.

9 Planes Join Search For 'Flying Doctor'

DR. VANCE B. MURRAY
Lost in wilderness

Nine search planes yesterday circled the wilderness of the Canadian northwest in a hunt for Dr. Vance B. Murray, a United States Health Service physician, of 4309 Van Ness st. nw., unreported since Saturday on a flight to Fairbanks Alaska.

Murray, piloting a Cessna 140, left Edmonton for Grande Prairie, Alberta, about 250 miles northwest en route to Fairbanks. He carried a four-hour supply of gasoline in addition to a radio, compass, 5 days' rations and other supplies.

The physician, who was credited with 1000 solo flying hours, earned the soubriquet, "the flying doctor," for his work in piloting planeloads of vaccine to epidemic stricken areas and was said by neighbors to have taken the Alaska trip as part of his vacation. His wife had gone to visit her family in Iowa, they said.

In 1936, Dr. Murray flew typhoid vaccine to Harrisburg, Pa., when that city, hit by a flood and in danger of an outbreak of the Malody, wired Washington for help.

In the early 1930s the physician, then associated with the Indian Bureau, battled blizzards and frost with his monoplane in emergency visits to Alaskan Indians needing medical help.

Six Royal Canadian Air Force planes and three aircraft of the Edmonton Flying Club began the search yesterday. The searchers planned to fly directly to Grande Prairie. Then, if the doctor is not found the party will scan the route again today on the way back.

Sleeping Epidemic

Tokyo, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—The United States Army today declared four towns in the Tokyo area out of bounds to Allied occupation personnel because of a sleeping sickness epidemic which has stricken 400 Japanese and killed 52.

Boat Theft Suspect Blames Owner

Baltimore, Aug. 9 (AP).—Walter Ashton Lawrence, 47-year-old Fort Pierce, Fla., sailor charged with stealing a 40-foot sailboat, testified today one of its New York owners ordered him to scuttle it.

The skipper told United States Commissioner Ernest Volkart at his arraignment today that the owners hired him to sail the Halcyon to New York but one of them, Richard B. Botsford, told him "positively that the boat was not to reach New York, but was to be burned on the way."

Lawrence admitted he wrote a letter to one of the owners saying the craft had burned and sunk. He also acknowledged that he cut off the masts, gave it a new coat of paint, and changed the name to Helen II.

Girl Quadruped Dies

Metropolitan Opera Peace Talk Slated

New York, Aug. 9 (AP).—The Metropolitan Opera Association agreed today to meet with heads of 12 unions to try to work out a plan to rescind cancellation of the 1948-49 opera season.

The appeal for a meeting was made by the union officials in a letter to George A. Sloan, opera board chairman, after a session of the AFL American Guild of Musical Artists.

Hyman R. Faine, executive secretary of the guild, said a letter had been written to Sloan asking a meeting of union representatives and the opera board to examine the "vital problem of the Metropolitan's 1948-49 season."

Later Sloan said he would arrange a meeting date when Charles Spofford, president of the opera association, returns to New York Wednesday.

Univis Lens Strike Of 90-Days Settled

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 9 (AP).—The CIO-United Electrical Workers' local 768 voted tonight to accept a proposal of the Univis Lens Co., ending a three-month-old strife-torn strike against the firm.

The company proposed to rehire "without discrimination or loss of seniority" all except 11 of striking employes who return to work before 4 p. m. tomorrow. The company accuses the 11 of "flagrant law violations during the strike."

Ford Workers Accept 13-Cent Hourly Raise

Detroit, Aug. 9 (U.P.).—Ninety-five per cent of the Ford Motor Co. workers have ratified the new 13-cent hourly wage increase agreement, the CIO United Auto Workers said today.

North Carolina Plant Closes Due to Strike

Rock Hill, S. C., Aug. 9 (AP).—The Rock Hill Printing & Finishing Co. here closed this afternoon as union workers peacefully marched in picket lines before the huge plant.

The strike was called last night by CIO Textile Workers Union of America officials after union and management reprsentatives failed to reach an agreement on a New York contract following four weeks of negotiations. The principal point of difference is a union shop clause which the union is seeking. The plant employs 2600 workers.

New Housing Bill Expected to Increase Agencies' Personnel

The new GOP housing bill will will do one thing at least—bring about a modest expansion of personnel in the Government's housing agencies.

Federal Housing Administration is most affected by the legislation. It's given many more duties and responsibilities. Also, it can spend $2,100,000 additional for personnel to perform the new jobs during the next eight months.

This means that FHA will discard its plans to reduce its staff by between 800 and 900 employes. Instead, the new money will allow it to hold its present staff, and furthermore, to expand it a bit should increased business require it.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency also will expand its operations and staff. It was given $300,000 to conduct research into improved building codes and to promote building standards. At HHFA, it reported that some of the money for this work may be allocated to both the Bureau of Standards and the Forest Service.

Among other things, the GOP bill gives FHA the authority to insure prefabricated housing developments, to guarantee a minimum yield on rental projects, to give special aids to veterans' coops and homes costing less than $6000, and to insure loans for the purchase of Government housing projects.

The latter provision, it's reported, could easily lead to the sale of Greenbelt and other Federal housing projects in this area.

SALARIES: The bill definitely breaks the long congressional opposition to salary boosts for Federal officials.

It provides that Ray Foley, director of Housing and Home Finance be paid $16,500 a year—more than a Cabinet member is paid. Cabinet members are paid $15,000 each. Foley now gets $10,000.

The bill also raises the $10,000 salaries of the commissioners of Public Housing and Federal Housing, and the three Home Loan Bank Board members to $15,000 each. Indirectly, this provision morally obligates the Congress to raise the salaries of other Federal officials who are just as important—if not more so—than the housing officials.

Indirectly, word yesterday from Albany was that Governor Dewey, if he's elected President, will make an immediate drive to lift the scandalously low salaries of Federal officials. That's something, of course, President Truman and every other realistic person will support. Senator Byrd was solely responsible for killing a provision in a bill that would raise official salaries.

PERSONALS: Edward McCrensky is the director of the new personnel office in the Office of Naval Research . . . Representative Carl Albert (D., Okla.) has resigned from the House Civil Service Committee to take an assignment on the Agriculture Committee. He made a good record on the Civil Service Committee . . . E. B. Van Horn plans to resign soon as staff director of the Senate Expenditures Committee. He has been asked to join a New York firm of management consultants.

MARTIME: James L. Bates, who was responsible for the design of the Liberty and many other World War II ships, is retiring as chief of the technical bureau in the Maritime Commission. He's an outstanding public servant—one of the best of the dwindling crop of career people. He entered Government 45 years ago.

COMMECE: Three present and former Commerce employes have been accused in connection with the Soviet spy ring. Everyone assumes, it seems, that the trio was brought into the department by Henry Wallace when he was Secretary. But this is the record—two were appointed by Jesse Jones and the third by Averell Harriman.

NOTES: Harold L. Tweedy is the new vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank in Pittsburgh. He was assistant to the governor of the bank system here. . . . Emil J. Sady is the new chief of the Pacific division in Interior's Division of Territories.

JOBS: Civil Service today announced two new competitive exams. One, for agricultural research scientist, has a dozen different options. Opening salaries range from $3727 to $8509. The other test is for cotton technologists. Salaries, $3727 to $6235 to start.

CTC Defends Ban on Negro Operators In Shortage

PUC Fare Probers Told Wartime Trial Resulted in Net Loss Of Men, Tieup

The failure of the wartime effort to employ Negro operators on Washington streetcars and buses was described yesterday at a Public Utilities hearing.

The hearing—on the Capital Transit Co.'s request for a 15-cent basic fare with two tokens for 25 cents and a $1.85 weekly pass—turned to the race question when Harry R. Booth, attorney for the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection, asked J. E. Heberle, vice president and comptroller of Capital Transit, whether there wasn't "a supply of manpower the company could have tapped" to meet the needs of its present operation. Present rates are 10 cents straight fare and $1.50 for the weekly pass.

"Knows No Supply"

Heberle declared "The company knows of no supply of manpower it could have tapped with the result of increasing its manpower."

Later, under questioning by F. G. Awalt, company counsel, Heberle outlined the details of an "experiment" Capital Transit had undertaken "either in 1944 or 1945" in employing Negroes."

Heberle said the employment rolls of the company were thrown open to such employes, and that a number of Negro applicants appeared.

He said two of them went "down to the point where their final course would be going on a car with another operator."

"Only one of these men showed up for that piece of training," Heberle said. He said that when a man assigned to take the first trip out of the division yard found he was to take a Negro student with him, "he turned back his traps and said he would not" train the student. All other operators at the division yard also refused to train the student, Heberle said.

Caused a Delay

He said that the incident caused a delay in service which ended only when the training equipment was taken from the Negro trainee. Heberle said, that as a result, "We went into the matter very thoroughly with those bodies which were asking us to make these experiments. Their conclusion was that we would lose more men than we would gain."

Yesterday's hearing, resumed after weekend recess, was highlighted by a motion by Booth and Benjamin C. Sigal, attorney for Americans for Democratic Action, to dismiss the CTC petition, on the grounds a proper basis for the fare increase had not been shown. The Public Utilities Commission denied the motion.

Booth said he would call witnesses "at the proper time" to show that Capital Transit is not rendering proper service and therefore is not entitled to the rate boost.

Late in the afternoon, V. A. McElfresh, PUC executive accountant and auditor, took the stand to testify on his own independent analysis of the transit company's current financial condition and need for increased rates. In the past, McElfresh has recommended PUC action on other utility cases. His testimony yesterday was confined to identifying exhibits which he will use to develop his own testimony when the hearings resume today.

Falls Church Names Board For City Plan

Council Told Office Of Treasurer Must Be Established

A special committee to aid Falls Church in its change from a town to a second-class city next Monday was set up last night by the town council.

The change to a city was authorized last week by the Fairfax Circuit Court.

Planning for the transition will be members of the future city council, including four incumbent town councilmen, two members who take office September 1 and new Mayor Albert Orme.

They will ask the present council before it leaves office September 1 to act on certain recommendations, including appointment of a city treasurer and a commissioner of revenue. Both appointments have to be confirmed by the Fairfax Circuit Court.

When the transition occurs Monday, Town Manager Roy F. Dunn told the council, Falls Church's primary and secondary road systems will be turned over by the State to the new city.

The State, he said, would pay the city $4000 per mile annually for maintenance of primary roads, and $300 per mile annually for secondary streets which meet State specifications.

Town Attorney LaRue Van Meter gave the council an official report on conferences he and Manager Dunn had with State officials last weekend in Richmond.

Under the law, the new city must set up the office of treasurer, he said, and the salary of such officials generally is $4200 a year, one-third of which is paid by the State.

The town attorney said the exact amount of all salaries and expenses will be determined by the State Compensation Board on the basis of the offices' volume of work. As a town, Falls Church now has one official serving as a town clerk-treasurer.

The other new official needed by Falls Church when it becomes a city will be a commissioner of revenue. Van Meter said maximum salary allowed for this office for a second class city is $5540 yearly, with the State paying office expenses on the same basis as for the treasurer's office.

Francis C. Wagner, chairman of the building for the town Teen Canteen, a newly built youth recreation center, reported to the council the center already had cost $15,445, against available funds of only $13,499.

Donaldson Pays High Tribute to Author of National Anthem

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

Frederick, Md., Aug. 9.—This historic community became a mecca for stamp collectors today as a new three-cent commemorative stamp bearing the picture of Francis Scott Key was issued here where the National Anthem composer was born.

Eighty-five exhausted postal workers estimated 450,000 of some 900,000 stamps that were sold had been cancelled out by 6 p. m., and they worked overtime to cancel out the remainder.

An album of the first-issue was presented to 14-year-old Elizabeth Key Blunt, 8000 Custer rd., Bethesda, a great-great-great-granddaughter of Key, and Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson presented others to Maryland's Governor Lane for the Maryland Historical Society.

900,000 Stamps Sold

Postmaster Guy F. Motter said the 900,000 stamps sold broke by far the former first-issue stamp sale record of 650,000 Thomas A. Edison commemoratives.

Beside the grave in Mount Olivet Cemetery of the man who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner" in 1812 at Fort McHenry in Baltimore, an estimated 5000 persons gathered during the afternoon to hear the Postmaster General and Governor Lane.

The final resting place of the composer is in a crypt under a 30-foot high monument just inside the Mount Olivet gate. Unveiled in 1898, the monument was financed by pennies of school children from all over the country.

A hush settled over the milling crowd, which had gathered in the old, historic cemetery where Barbara Fritchie also is buried, as Lucy Monroe, who has become famous for her frequent renditions of the National Anthem, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" to accompaniment of the Quantico, Va., Marine Band.

Original Committee

On the guests' stand were five of the committee at the erection of Key's grave monument 50 years ago. They were Miss Mary Ott, I. W. Carty, Dr. Thomas S. Eader, Mrs. Claggett Ramsburg and Miss Estelle Castle.

Nine chapters of the Maryland Children of the American Revolution were on hand with color guards. A representative placed a wreath on Key's grave.

When the half-hour ceremony was concluded and television, newsreel and still cameras were put away, hundreds flocked to the stand to have the Postmaster General and Governor Lane autograph programs.

Stamp collectors from all over the country and some from abroad, all eager for a first-day cancellation, began mailing in their requests last June to the brownstone Frederick postoffice on Patrick st. for the Key stamps.

Large Staff at Work

A force of 65 women had been busy since last Wednesday opening the request mail, affixing stamps to the enclosed envelopes.

Early yesterday, 47 fully packed mail bags containing 200,000 such requests were mailed out. Some stamp dealers bought thousands of the first use. One pealed off 21 $100 bills for 70,000 of the Key stamps. Some set up stands on the postoffice lawn to do business with collectors wishing to avoid standing in line.

Twenty thousand special envelopes were prepared locally, with appropriate pictures and designs, and were sold out last Friday, according to Publicity Chairman Paul W. McAuliffe.

As part of the observance, merchants prepared window displays depicting the life and times of Key, who was born near Frederick in 1779 and died in Baltimore in 1843. Lampposts throughout the city were plastered with copies of the National Anthem and flags flew from every staff.

Issuance of the commemorative stamp coincides with the fiftieth anniversary of the Key Monument dedicated in 1898.

New Orleans Port Official Assigned Here

D. C. Recognized as Great International Center of Commerce

Citing Washington as "a great international trade center," the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans yesterday announced transfer of the port's director of commerce from the Southern city to the Capital.

The director of commerce for the port, Lewis I. Bourgeois, will open offices here on September 1, it was stated.

The port commissioners said in their announcement that "realizing the importance of Washington as a great international trade center, the board . . . is convinced the best interests of the port demand the transfer of Mr. Bourgeois to the Nation's Capital, where he will be in closer contact with foreign legations and their purchasing missions and the many governmental agencies which have controls over commercial maritime and transportation activities."

Bourgeois is a native of St. James Parish and was with the Federal Barge Lines for 25 years prior to his association with the port.

At the same time the commission announced the resignation of L. L. Harvey, executive general agent at Washington.

A spokesman for the Washington Board of Trade yesterday welcomed the New Orleans move as "an indication the District is being recognized as a center of international and industrial trade in the United States."

He said Baltimore Port officials, while not yet having offices here, are "doing more and more of their work out of Washington."

Judge Raedy Sphinxlike on Court Dispute

Judge Ellen K. Raedy will talk about the weather but not about her dispute with the Corporation Counsel's office.

The Municipal Court jurist has been mum on the question ever since Thursday when she accused the prosecutors of playing favorites in handling drunk driving cases.

Corporation Counsel Vernon West said he has yet to receive acknowledgment from the judge of his letter asking proof of her charges that nolle prosses are being entered for friends of his associates.

Reached at her office, yesterday, Judge Raedy took the matter lightly.

"Are you planning to answer West's letter?" she was asked.

"It's a beautiful day," she replied.

"What is your position on the dispute as to the handling of driving while drunk cases?" the reporter asked.

"It's a beautiful day, Joe, it's a beautiful day," she returned.

McDowell Held For Grand Jury on Murder Charge

James McDowell, 37, of 816 Madison st., Alexandria, was held for grand jury action on a charge of murder in Alexandria Police Court yesterday, after waiving preliminary hearing before Judge James R. Duncan.

McDowell is accused in the fatal shooting of Joe Elzie, 31, in a garage at 528 N. Alfred st., Alexandria, on June 9. He was arrested in Columbia, S. C., about three weeks ago and was returned to Alexandria last Friday by Police Supt. Edgar Sims after he agreed to waive extradition.

He was remanded to jail yesterday pending the grand jury action.

Girl Adviser Suspended For 2 Days

Industrial Home Woman Punished For Locking Wards In Room After Fight

The Industrial Home School counselor who locked two girls in a room after they had a fight will be suspended for two days without pay, effective tomorrow, it was disclosed yesterday.

John W. Tramburg, director of the Department of Public Welfare, said yesterday he concurred in such a recommendation by Gerard Shea, superintendent of the home.

The counselor is Mrs. Elizabeth Hawkins. She reported to Shea that she temporarily locked two 14-year-old girls in a basement room after they apparently had "cooled off" from a fight.

One of the girls was admitted to Gallinger Hospital when she complained of not feeling well after the incident. Tramburg said she had a knot over her left eye but suffered no other apparent injury.

Industrial Home School authorities said the girl is expected to return from the hospital today.

Tramburg said he thought the two-day suspension "sufficient for Mrs. Hawkins' failure to act properly under the circumstances."

He said there is "a very definite set of rules and regulations at the Industrial Home School, both for staff and for children." Mrs. Hawkins did not show "the best judgment," he added.

The director described Mrs. Hawkins as "a very good counselor of girls—jovial and happy, but firm." He said her action in locking the two girls in a room was "definitely an unusual act on her part, for I have known her since 1942."

Tramburg said he visited the injured girl Saturday and Sunday, and she said there was no animosity between her and "Ma" Hawkins.

The suspension will become effective at 6 a. m. tomorrow, the first day of Mrs. Hawkins' annual leave, he said. She was off duty yesterday and could not be reached for comment.

Chest, Council Merged in Arlington

Consolidation of the Arlington Community Chest and Community Council was officially approved last night at a meeting of chest trustees and council delegates at the Arlington Chest headquarters, 5159 Wilson blvd.

Economy was given as the purpose of consolidation. The new organization resulting from the merger, was named the Arlington Community Chest and Council.

J. Harold Stehman, former Chest president and chief industrial analyst with the Department of Commerce, was elected president.

Other officers, unanimously elected from a slate prepared by a committee of three representatives of each merged organization, were:

Haskell Jacobs, former council president and administrator with the Social Security Administration, vice president; George F. Duborg, former Chest treasurer an official of the Virginia Electric Power Co., treasurer, and Mrs. John F. Cady, former Chest trustee, secretary.

Named as executive committee members at large were Mrs. Annie Belcher, Benjamin Lilywhite, Hugh McGrath, Edmond Campbell and Mrs. Paul Myatt.

A committee, composed of three representatives from each merged group has been set up to select an executive director.

The merger, first officially announced in March, was followed by resignation of executive directors of both organizations. Merger was accomplished by modification of the Chest charter to incorporate the council rather than through dissolution of both organizations. Joint committees prepared the way for last night's official action.

Lisner Theater Proposal Ruled Out by GW President

Lisner Auditorium was ruled out yesterday as a site for a legitimate theater but negotiations continued on several other fronts to provide Washington with a playhouse.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, declared that there is "no chance at all" that the university's auditorium will be made available for commercial purposes

"We just can't turn it loose for commercial purposes . . . . . at least until this tremendous burden of GI's is lifted," Dr. Marvin declared. He was commenting on an editorial in Monday's Washington Post in which it was suggested that the university temporarily relinquish use of the auditorium at least on a part-time basis.

In other developments:

1. Wallace Cohen, counsel for Joseph Curtis, nephew of Harry Cohen, president of Columbia Pictures, announced that Curtis will submit a new offer to the Federal Works Agency Wednesday for lease of the old Belasco Theater. This will be the first formal offer placed before the FWA since it rejected the two original bids July 13.

2. Cohen also announced that in the event the latest proposition is rejected Curtis will "seriously" consider possible conversion of the Strand, a movie house at 401 9th st. nw., for legitimate plays. He said an architect will probably come to Washington with Curtis this week to look the Strand over.

3. A spokesman for the American National Theater and Academy, also interested in leasing the Belasco, said a new bid will be submitted to the FWA as soon as a green light is received from ANTA officers. ANTA representstives here have been in negotiations with FWA officials for some time.

4. Elyliott Hoffman, president of the Alexandria Amusement Corp., owners, announced that plans are going forward to convert the year-old Virginia Theater on Mount Vernon blvd., into a legitimate-playhouse. He said he would confer this week with theatrical interests in New York with a view to speeding conversion.

Washington has been without a legitimate theater since the National theater closed its doors July 31.

Rockville Tragedy

Lad, 10, Shot Dead by Pal In Mishap

ROBERT E. DODSON
Walked into line of fire

A 10-year-old Rockville, Md., boy was accidentally shot and instantly killed by a 14-year-old chum and neighbor yesterday as they were testing the sight on a .22-caliber rifle.

The victim, Robert E. Dodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burgess E. Dodson of Randolph rd., near Montrose, Md., ran out from a clump of bushes just as his friend, 14-year-old Robert Ertter, fired at a home-made target, police learned from young Ertter.

The bullet lodged in his brain, according to Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County coroner, who issued a certificate of accidental death. Robert was about 38 paces from the rifle when it discharged, police estimated.

The two boys, who according to police knew how to handle the rifle, had wedged it between a stepladder and a tree and pointed it toward the target on a garage 100 feet away, young Ertter told police in an account made difficult by severe shock.

Apparently Dodson had been behind some bushes and out of the line of fire when Ertter was adjusting the rifle, police said. Not realizing his chum was about to shoot, he ran into the line of fire just as the rifle went off.

The boys were alone in the yard of the Ertter home when the fatal accident occurred about 10 a. m. Ertter's brother, James, 21, was in the house, but knew nothing about the tragedy until young Ertter ran in to tell him.

The boy told police that Dodson, who lived two houses away, had come over to help test the sight of the rifle.

Dodson was pronounced dead on arrival at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

He was a fifth grade student at Montrose Elementary School. Besides his parents, he leaves three brothers and two sisters. His father is an auto repair man in Bethesda.

Firemen Save Va. House Despite Lack of Water

Battling poor roads and a water shortage as well as flames, six Fairfax County volunteer fire units yesterday saved a 15-room county mansion from complete destruction.

Flames ruined all but the first floor of the empty mansion owned by Otis L. Mohundro at Wedderburn Station, Va. Firemen set damage at "well over $20,000."

A total of 16 pieces of equipment from the Bailey's Crossroads, Annandale, McLean, Vienna, Falls Church, and Dunloring Fire Departments began fighting the blaze less than 10 minutes after a neighbor turned in the alarm at 12:45 p. m.

Firemen, who had to cope with narrow, twisting roads to reach the scene, brought all water in relays from Vienna and Falls Church several miles away.

When they arrived, flames were shooting 20 feet above the frame building's roof, which collapsed shortly afterward. Despite the water shortage, firemen kept a minimum of four hose lines filled to bring the fire under control within an hour.

20 Arrested For Delay in Getting Auto Certificates

19 Pay Collateral, One to Fight Case; Keneipp Warned Of 5-Day Title Rule

Twenty persons were arrested by the Police Traffic Division yesterday, charged with failure to obtain District title certificates to their cars within five days of purchase.

The arrests followed warnings by Traffic Director George E. Keneipp that car purchasers applying for the $1 title certificates after the five-day legal period would be turned over to police for action after August 8.

All but one of the violators elected to forfeit $5 collateral. Thurmond G. Hager of 1619 A st. ne. said he would stand trial.

If found guilty of the offense when his case comes up today, Hager is liable for a fine of $300 or less or a maximum of 10 days in jail.

The D. C. Title and Registration Act requires that a car purchaser secure title to his auto within five days even if he plans to store the vehicle immediately and thus does not need a number plate.

Sherman Wiggins, 607 Florence st. ne.; Stanley Lapkoff, 1405 Somerset pl. nw.; Ellis Shortt, 2328 Nicholson st. se.; Matthew H. Duncan, 4018 7th st. nw.; Carl Zimbro, 3100 10th st. ne.; James E. Auto Meters Protested in Hyattsville

Hyattsville City Council last night was charged with "misleading" merchants of the town on the parking meter question.

Four businessmen appeared before the council and protested the council's action of last week, when 294 parking meters were ordered installed in Hyattsville.

They contended that the town's businessmen had been led to believe the installation of meters would not be authorized until after the public parking lot, opened less than a month ago, had been tested as a solution to parking problems. Mayor Caesar L. Aiello told the merchants that any misunderstanding was "unintentional" on the part of city council. No action, however, was taken to change the order calling for meters.

The protesting businessmen were John F. Lillard, sr., attorney; Daniel J. Burke and John T. Norman, president and vice president respectively of the Hyattsville Professional and Businessmen's Association, and Ralph C. Dudrow, pharmachist.

Ex-D. C. Woman Gets 5 Years in Slaying of Roomer

Winchester, Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Louise Burke, former Washington, D. C., rooming-house proprietor, today was sentenced to five years in the State Penitentiary for the rifle slaying of Paul R. Berry, a former soldier from Syracuse, N. Y.

Mrs. Burke was convicted by a jury last month of second-degree murder. She showed no emotion as Judge Elliott Marshall passed sentence on her in Frederick County Circuit Court.

Testimony at the trial indicated Berry, who had been living at Mrs. Burke's home at Star Tannery since last October, was shot April 21 while standing outside her kitchen window.

Captain's Togs Prove Passport To VD Treatment—and Jail

The best way to get quick treatment for gonorrhea, according to one man, is to wear an Army captain's uniform when you aren't an Army captain.

In Municipal Court yesterday Ray Weedon, 25, of Philadelphia was charged with illegally wearing the uniform. His excuse, according to testimony of police and the FBI, was that he wanted quick treatment for the disease, but found the District clinic closed Saturday evening. So, they related, he bought a second-hand uniform—and he did get quick treatment—at the Fort Myer guardhouse.

Police Pvt. T. B. O'Bryant said that he was walking his beat in the 1200 block of 7th st. nw. when he came across Weedon strolling there.

O'Bryant said he noticed that the uniform didn't conform to Army fashions.

"He didn't have a tie on, and I know captains have to wear ties," said O'Bryant speaking from his experience as a sergeant in the Army Engineers. He also noticed that Weedon mixed his khaki and OD's and wore black shoes.

Another thing, said O'Bryant, who proved himself to be a careful man, Weedon thought the patch on his own uniform was that of the Third Armored Division. It was just plain Third Army.

Then the Government witness testified that Weedon said it was all purposely done because of gonorrhea.

"Well, did he get treatment?" asked Judge Armond Scott.

Yes, Weedon received a shot of 300,000 units of penicillin while in custody of Fort Myer military authorities, the judge was told.

Weedon apparently had not heard that the District Health Department has established a venereal disease information telephone number—Metropolitan 4600. The number may be called 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for referral to either a free Disrtict clinic or to a private physician. Metropolitan 4600 was established in connection with the year-long drive recently launched to curb gonorrhea in the District.

Justice Tamm Sits, But Maybe for Free

The jurist, who was appointed by President Truman to the bench in June during the regular session of the Eightieth Congress, was not confirmed. He has been paid under a luaw authorizing salaries until 40 days after the convening of the next Congress if not confirmed by that time.

The adjournment of the recent summer session terminated Judge Tamm's pay, according to "tentative" opinion of the administrative office of the Federal courts.

Justice Department sources said they weren't sure. They were studying the problem to see if the recent session was a new session or really part of the regular session of the Eightieth Congress. It was pointed out that "in an excess of caution" President Truman might give him an interim appointment in the near future.

The Comptroller General's office said it would make a decision only if called upon to do so by the authorities.

As for Judge Tamm, he said, "I really don't know. I will make a note of it and try to find out."

2d Break Attempted

The second attempt within three days to loot a safe at Naylor's Seafood Restaurant at Wheaton, Md., was reported yesterday to Montgomery County Police.

Detective Corpl. Frank Griggs said the restaurant was entered by a side window Sunday night and that thieves succeeded in cracking open the safe. It contained no money, he said.

The first attempt to loot the safe occurred Friday night when two men were seen rolling the safe out of the restaurant. They were frightened away by an approaching motorist, police said.

$50 Head of Cabbage

One head of cabbage cost Frank Harding, 40, of 4750 Homer ave., Suitland Manor, Md., $50 yesterday in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

The inflated "price" was assessed against Harding by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie after Harding was found guilty of stealing the cabbage from the truck garden of Dr. David A. Walter, 4603 Lewis ave., Suitland Manor.

Judge Bowie freed Harding's wife, Mrs. Iva Harding, 35, and another couple, Wilson W. Fleetwood, 40, an dhis wife, Frances, 30, of 3101 Pennsylvania ave. se., who also were charged in the theft. They were with Harding at the time, the court was told.

Official Vote Announced

Certified returns from the Democratic and Republican primaries in Fairfax County last Tuesday differed only slightly from the unofficial tally reported in The Washington Post the day after the balloting.

Circut Court Clerk Thomas P. Chapman said yesterday the official Fairfax count gave the results as follows:

Pedestrians Scatter

A shower of broken glass sent F st. pedestrians scurrying for shelter about 4:30 p. m. yesterday when workmen accidentally broke an eighth-floor office window in the National Press Building, 14th and F sts. nw. The workmen were installing an air-conditioning unit in Room 829, occupied by Carl Byoir and Associates.

Rheta C. Dorr, Newswoman, Feminist, Dies

Rheta C. Dorr, author, war correspondent, and advocate of women's rights, died yesterday in New Britain, Pa. She was 82.

Mrs. Dorr

Born in Lincoln, Nebr., Mrs. Dorr went to New York at the age of 21 as a newspaper reporter. She was active in the presidential campaign of William Howard Taft as a member of the Woman's National Republican Club in New York.

In 1906, she covered the coronation of King Haakon of Norway for the New York Evening Mail. During World War I she traveled Europe, lecturing on women's rights.

Following the war, Mrs. Dorr conducted research on conditions among women in factories. She wrote several books, including "A Soldier's Mother in France," published in 1918, which carried a message to American mothers from the battlefields of Europe, and her autobiography, "A Woman of Fifty," which appeared in 1924.

Mrs. Dorr is survived by a granddaughter, Lora Rheta Dorr, a student of George Washington University here; a brother, Cyril Childe, 4532 Chelsea lane, Bethesda, Md., and two sisters, Mrs. Charles H. Cornell, California, and Mrs. Clarke F. Ansley, Bucks County, Pa.

Mrs. Lilian Lee Mills

Mrs. Lilian Lee Mills, 86, widow of Col. Stephen Crosby Mills, Chief of Staff of the Army's Department of the East in 1910-11, died yesterday at her home in Hague, N. Y.

She was the mother of Mrs. Gordon R. Young, wife of the District Commissioner, and her father was the late Brig. Gen. James G. C. Lee, USA, a staff member of the Army of the Potomac in the Civil War.

Both General and Mrs. Young were in Hague at the time of her death. Mrs. Mills leaves another daughter, Miss Katherine Crosby Mills, of New York City, and a sister, Miss Katherine Lee, of San Antonio, Tex.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 11 o'clock at Memorial Chapel, West Point, N. Y.

Details of Morris' will were disclosed today when it was filed for probate in Chicago. Morris died July 25 at Ogunquit, Me.

The remainder of the estate was placed in trust for his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Morris, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw. After her death, the will directs that the estate go to 16 welfare and educational groups.

Specific bequests include $10,000 to the Municipal University of Akron, Ohio, and $5000 to the American Society of International Law.

3 Hurt as Auto Smashes Another

NIGHT CRASH IN ARLINGTON—James Mulkey, 20, 801 C st. sw., one of three injured passengers in a car which crashed into the rear of another Sunday night at the Virginia end of the Memorial Bridge. He is receiving first aid from Mrs. Chessy Mansfield, Red Cross worker who saw the accident, comforts Mulkey. The driver, Donald J. Meyers, 19, 213 9th st. sw. who was unhurt, was charged with failing to give full time and attention to driving

Two Cyclists Slightly Hurt In Collisions With Autos

Harry Butler, 67, of 1518 Church st. nw., received minor hurts when struck by an auto, while riding a bicycle at 17th and M sts. nw. He refused hospital treatment.

Police said the auto was driven by Kessler Eugene Andre, 46, of 1800 Massachusetts ave. nw., who told them he was a representative of a French general stationed in Germany. Andre left the scene of the accident to call police frm the nearby French Embassy Financial Attache's office, which he listed as his address, police said.

Then he became confused and returned to 17th and N sts. nw., where he thought the accident had occurred, police said, meanwhile a lookout was flashed for his car. He finally stopped a motorcycle policeman, and the matter was straightened out, according to police.

Henry Thurston, 30, of 2728 13th st. nw., newspaper vendor at 12th and G sts. nw., was treated for cuts and bruises at Emergency Hospital after being struck by a car, while riding a bicycle at 13th and Belmont sts. nw. Police charged the driver of the car, Elmer E. Cox, 34, of 1300 Maine ave. sw., a lineman for PEPCO, with failing to give right of way to a vehicle.

A Thirteenth Precinct scout car, driven by Pvt. Delbert D. Brill, 37, of 1910 C st. se., was struck by a paneled body truck at 13th and W sts. nw. Police charged Ellis McNeill, 29, of 3637 13th st. nw., truck driver for Becker's store, with passing a red light.

Emergency Case Aids X-Ray Expert in Parking Violation

An X-ray technician, who had to X-ray an emergency patient, was given a warning for parking overtime last week.

He was one of 86 motorists for whom traffic tickets were "fixed" duing the week, police reported yesterday.

Capt. Howard Covell, commanding officer of the First Precinct, said he made an adjustment for Wilbur E. Cullers, 28, of Vienna, Va., an X-ray technician at the Group Health Association Clinic, 1328 I st. nw., after Cullers explained he had delayed moving his car because a patient with a severe fracture was brought in for X-rays just a short time before his (Culler's) parking time limit had expired.

William J. Tracy, 27, of 2232 Q st. nw., was also given a warning for parking overtime. Police said he was a member of the FBI on official business.

Tickets were canceled for six motorists because of diplomatic immunity. They were Lieut. R. Lagerwerff, Netherlands Embassy, parking in a loading zone; Egidie Ortona, Italian Embassy, parked in a loading zone; Henry Polak, Netherlands Embassy, parked overtime; Youssef Rakha, Egyptian Embassy, disobeying an officer's sign; Henry A. Baltimore, Republic of Hungary, having no District permit, and Mohamed S. Kadr, Egyptian Embassy, parked overtime.

Pierre LeDeux, of 1822 Massachusetts ave. nw., was granted a warning for parking in a bus stop because of dipolmatic courtesy.

Inquests Clear Two in D. C. Traffic Deaths

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated a bus driver and a streetcar operator at inquests in two recent traffic deaths, which the jury declared were accidental.

Termed "unavoidable" was the death of Miss Mary Armstrong, 55, of 107 H st. nw., who was struck by a Capital Transit Co. bus at 18th and K sts. nw. August 3.

Police said she was struck while walking on crutches and was dragged about 5 feet near the southeast corner of K st., when the bus turned right into K st. from 18th st. Driver of the bus was Francis V. Hart, 32, of 100 V st. nw.

The jury ruled that the death of W. A. Hutchins, 40, of 3160 Wilson blvd., Arlington, struck by a streetcar on Benning rd. ne. near Victory Garden dr. August 5, was "due to his own negligence."

Operator of the streetcar, Alvin Hermann, 39, of 3989 East Capitol st., told police the man was lying on the tracks as he approached and was struck as he tried to clamber away.

2 Area Autoists Fined $100 Each for Speeding

Two Greater Washington motorists were fined $100 each yesterday by Trial Magistrate Henry H. O'Neill in Hyattsville Police Court for speeding in excess of 70 miles an hour.

Chief Pharmacist's Mate Joe Walter Cloud, 23, of 4631 Lewis ave., Suitland Manor, Md., was arrested by Maryland State Trooper Ernest E. Hudgins at Beltsville on Route 1 July 31. Cloud paid his fine.

John Gordon, 4607 Benning rd. se., was arrested Saturday on Palmer Highway near Seat Pleasant after a 2-mile chase by Prince Georges County Policeman Adam Lindsey. He was fined $25 for disorderly conduct, in addtion to the speeding fine.

Failing to pay the fines, he was remanded to the county jail at Upper Marlboro for 30 days on the speeding charge and 25 days on the disorderly charge.

Aerialist 125 Feet Up Falls, Saves Himself

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 9 (AP).—Spectators at an aerial act staged today at the Koyowva tri-State fair gasped in horror today when one of three aerialists fell from his perch 125 feet above the ground.

But Willie Hustri, 38, dropped only 20 feet before catching himself on a crossbrace joining two steel ladders. He then climbed back up the tower and completed the act.

Fergusson Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Ocie Hardesty Fergusson, 63, widow of Maj. Gen. Frank Kerby Fergusson, who died Saturday in Mannington, W. Va., will be held there today with burial tomorrow in the cemetery at West Point, N. Y.

Mrs. Fergusson

Mrs. Fergusson lived at 1750 16th st. nw., and was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dora Fergusson Posener, at the time of her death. General Fergusson, who died in 1937, was awarded the D. S. M. for "conspicuous and specially meritorious service" as commander of the Coast Artillery Training Center at Fort Monroe, Va., in 1918-19.

An official of the General Accounting Office until her retirement recently, Mrs. Fergusson was the daughter of Thaddeus S. Hardesty and Mrs. Doris Delle Hawkes Hardesty.

She graduated from the University of West Virginia in 1910, having been a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. She was a member of the Army and Navy Club here, and of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Besides her daughter, she is survived by a granddaughter, Ocie Fergusson Posener, and a brother, C. Howard Hardesty, all of Mannington.

William H. Maus

West Hartford, Conn., Aug 9 (AP). William H. Maus, 69, of Philadelphia, died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alexander M. Wright, here, where he was visiting with his wife.

Maus was a former member of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange and a director of the Ontological Hospital in that city.

He was a native of Trenton, Mo., and from 1900 to 1909 was an accountant for the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. in Pittsburgh. From 1909 to 1921 he was personal secretary to Henry A. Laughlin and became executor of his estate after Laughlin's death in 1921.

Maus was a director of the Chestnut Hill Title & Trust Co. and the Union League Club of Philadelphia and a member of the Masonic order.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Flora Smith Maus; a daughter, Mrs. Wright; two sisters, Mrs. M. E. Chandler of New Britain, Conn., and Mrs. E. P. Langworthy of Rochester, N. Y.; four brothers, Robert and George Maus of Alliance, Ohio; Charles Maus of Phoenixville, Pa., and John K. Maus of Philadelphia.

Funeral services will be held in Hartford Tuesday.

Dr. Kindler Urges Federal Subsidy For 'Good Music'

A Federal subsidy for "good music" was urged last night by Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony, returning here from a tour of South America.

The conductor and Mrs. Kindler were greeted at Union Station on arrival from New York by Senorita Magdalena, niece of Chile's composer, Domingo Santa Cruz, and Harold Mott, president of the Exchange Club of Washington, and about 1000 representatives of other Washington music and civic groups.

Speaking to those greeting him, Dr. Kindler said Chile built an "enormous musical and ballet life" with a 2½-cent tax on motion picture tickets and that good music is "successfully subsidized" not only in Latin American countries, but in France, Holland and Denmark.

The concert band of the Boys' Club of Washington played for the welcoming.

Dr. J. H. Truitt Of Glenn Dale, Dead at 78

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Dr. James Handy Truitt, 78, retired physician of Prince Georges County, and member of the Casualty Hospital staff, who died Sunday at Mount Alto Hospital. He had suffered a heart attack at his home in Glen Dale, Md., a short time earlier.

Dr. Truitt was taken to the hospital by the Glen Dale Rescue Squad, which he had served for many years as surgeon. He retired from general practice about five years ago.

Born in Salisbury, Md., Dr. Truitt was graduated from the Ohio Institute of Pharmacy in 1902, the American Medical College in Baltimore in 1913, and the Chattanooga Medical College in 1914.

He lived in Delmar, Del., from 1902 to 1909, when he moved to Bowie, Md. He practiced there until 1925 when he moved to Glen Dale, where he made his home on the Lanham-Severn road.

Dr. Truitt was active on Casualty's staff until his retirement.

A volunteer fireman from 1925, he was president of the Prince Georges County Firemen's Association in 1931. He was a life member of the Glen Dale Fire Association and was its chief for many years, originating its annual benefit carnival.

A major in the Army Medical Corps, he was admissions officer at the Camp Meade base hospital from 1917 to 1819. He became a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve Corps.

Dr. Truitt was a member of the Wicomico Masonic Lodge, the Scottish Rite Masons of Baltimore, Almas Temple of the Shrine, and Disney Bell Post, American Legion, Bowie.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Ruth Williams Truitt, Dr. Truitt leaves a son by a former marriage, James Clyde Truitt.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 8:45 a. m. at Gasch's Funeral Home, Hyattsville, Md., with the Rev. Robert W. Lewis, of Holy Trinity Parish, Collington, Md., officiating. Military and Masonic services will be held at 11 a. m. at the grave in Arlington Cemetery.

After Heart Attack

F. P. Fenton, AFL Leader, Dies at 53

Francis P. Fenton, 53, international representative of the American Federation of Labor and a member of the governing board of the international labor organization, died yesterday after suffering two heart attacks in his office at 901 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Mr. Fenton

Fenton, who lived at 7507 MacArthur blvd., Cabin John, Md., recovered from one attack about 3:50 p. m. and told John J. Murphy, AFL national director of organization: "Brother, I had a devil of a fight of it to come back to earth again—but I made it."

About 20 minutes later he suffered another and died. At his side when death came were his wife, Mrs. Christine Fenton, and a daughter, Miss Helene Fenton, a Providence Hospital nurse.

Fenton, a native of Boston, was born into the labor movement. His father, John J. Fenton, was former business manager of Coal Teamsters Union, Local 68, in Boston.

While working days in the coal yards of the Boston Metropolitan Coal Co.—he later became foreman, salesman and sales manager—Fenton studied law at night at Suffolk Law School. He later was admitted to the Massachusetts bar and to practice before the United States Supreme Court.

At 16, as a printer's devil, he lost his right arm in an accident. Since World War II he had frequently visited amputee veterans to demonstrate effectiveness of his artificial arm.

His first attack came yesterday while he was dictating a report on the ILO conference held last month in San Francisco. At the conference he had led a fight against left-wing influences in the organization and had helped elect a complete slate of worker representatives from anti-Communist countries to the ILO governing body.

In Boston he was successively a representative for the Teamsters Union, president of the Boston Central Labor Union and regional director for the AFL before coming to Washington in 1940 as the AFL's national director of organization. He became international representative a year ago.

Fenton served on numerous committees connected with Government conciliation and international labor offices. He was one of the first labor leaders to praise the recent nomination for Secretary of Labor of Maurice Tobin, former Massachusetts Governor, who was his boyhood friend in South Boston.

Besides his wife, and daughter, Helene, he leaves two other daughters, Frances Patricia Fenton, a Maryland University junior, and Anne Elizabeth Fenton, a Maryland University sophomore; two sons, John H., a recent Georgetown University graduate, and Gerald T. Fenton, St. John's College High School student. Also his mother, Mrs. Catherine Fenton of Dorchester, Mass.; a brother, John Fenton, of White Plains, N. Y., and two sisters, Mrs. Bert Fiore and Geraldine, both of Dorchester. Funeral services were incomplete last night.

Sidney George Brown

Sidmouth, England, Aug. 9 (AP).—Sidney George Brown, 75, Chicago-born scientist and reputedly one of the most prolific modern inventors, died at his home here Saturday.

Brown, who started inventing at the age of 18, held nearly 1000 patents on a wide variety of devices. He played a big part in the development of telegraphy, telephony and gyroscopic compass.

In 1899 he invented a wireless beam system and then devised a means of signaling through underwater cables. In 1908 came the invention which made him world famous—a new headphone and radio telephony loudspeaker.

Dr. Percival R. Cole

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 9 (AP).—Dr. Percival Richard Cole, 69, distinguished Australian scholar, died here Saturday. He was visiting Carnegie professor of international relations at the Universities of Hawaii and Washington in 1929 and Australian representative of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

William Kinne Fellows

Adm. Jones, 63, Succumbs In Charleston

Rear Admiral Claude Ashton Jones, 63, USN, retired, assistant chief of Naval Procurement and Material during World War II, died Sunday night at his home in Charleston, W. Va. His death was attributed to a stroke he suffered Friday.

Admiral Jones

Admiral Jones was the holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor for heroism when the U. S. S. Memphis, on which he was serving before America's entry into World War I, was struck by a tidal wave at Santa Domingo in August, 1916. He received the Legion of Merit for his World War II services.

Born in Fire Creek, W. Va., Admiral Jones was graduated from the Naval Academy and, besides sea duty, served with the Navy Bureau of Engineering here from 1920 to 1923. He later served as Naval Attache at United States Embassies in London, Paris, Rome, Berlin and The Hague.

He was appointed assistant to the chief of the Bureau of Engineering (the Bureau of Ships) in 1935 and became head of the shipbuilding division, Bureau of Ships in 1940. He retired in 1946 after serving as assistant chief of the Navy's Procurement and Materials.

The admiral leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret C. Jones, Charleston, W. Va.; a son, Comdr. Frank C. Jones, Norbeck, Md.; a daughter, Mrs. M. R. Wyllie, Allison Park, Pa., and two grandchildren, Harry McCormack and Blair Jones.

Burial services will be held at 3 p.m. today in Arlington Cemetery. Honorary pallbearers will be Rear Admiral A. H. Van Keuren, Rear Admiral Roger Payne, Rear Admiral N. L. Rawlings, Vice Admiral E. W. Mills, Vice Admiral R. C. Giffen, Capt. Philip Lauman and Mr. Philip Israel.

Marshall Asks 'Intelligent Support' for Policy

Woman Chief Executive a Probability, President Truman Tells Girls' Nation

By Genevieve Reynolds

SOME day a woman may be the Chief Executive of the United States. President Truman yesterday conceded the "possibility and probability" of a feminine Chief Executive to the 94 delegates to Girls' Nation when he received the group at the White House.

But Secretary of State George C. Marshall refused to commit himself on the likelihood of a "Madame President" at 1600 Pennsylvania ave. . . . When the youthful high school leaders put the poser to him at a gathering in the State Department auditorium later in the afternoon, he dodged the issue with "that's a leading question." Then he proceeded to caution the girls to ascertain all facts before forming an opinion on foreign affairs.

When tall, blonde Patricia Fricke of Stuttgart, Ark., shook hands with the President as she filed down the receiving line she asked, "Do you think a woman will ever be President of the United States?"

President Truman grinned and replied, "There's a possibility."

Later, as he spoke to the alert group in the rose garden, he again alluded to the question, declaring, "Yes, there's not only a possibility but a great probability that a woman will be President of the United States."

The Chief Executive told the youthful delegates attending the Girls' Nation, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, that they must prepare htemselves to serve in high offices.

"You never can tell," said President Truman. "I never expected to be President and here I am."

Need for Cooperation

Secretary Marshall talked informally to the group. Referring briefly to the state of tension with Russia, he said that envoys of the United States, Britain and France had just completed "about an hour ago" another conference in the Kremline. He spoke about 3:30 p. m.

Referring to the intricacies of foreign affairs and the need for cooperation, the Secretary predicted, "No doubt there will be more such conferences." No elaboration was made on the statement.

Stressing the necessity of ascertaining facts before forming an opinion, Secretary Marshall asserted, "The greater the knowledge of the people on the facts in foreign relations, the more successful we will be."

"Foreign relations would be an easier problem with well-informed public opinion," he said. "There must be intelligent support for a position like mine."

Secretary Marshall said the United Nations is "supposed to maintain peace; but it is now involved in making peace."

As part of their fact finding, he urged the teen-agers to study the Charted of the United Nations.

The youthful leaders, who are here from every State in the Union except Delaware, were thrilled and impressed with meeting both President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall in the same day. Both interviews ended with an enthusiastic chorus of girls' voices singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Judging from the smiles on the faces of the President and the Secretary of State, both enjoyed hearing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Presidential Souvenir

As the delegates left the White House, several asserted, "I am going to frame these gloves as a souvenir. They have been touched by the President."

Another delegate said, "I am not going to wash my hands for a week. I don't want to lose the handshake."

Waving small American flags as they left the White House in buses, they continued to Capitol Hill. There the group lunched in the Senate dining room, met several Representatives and Senators who dropped in to greet the girls from their particular States.

Miss Oleda Schrottry, member of the field department, Girl Scouts of the United States of America, addressed the teen-agers on their responsibility for the future welfare of the Nation and the world at large.

Miss Kennon Kethley of McAllen, Texas, was elected president of Girls' Nation last night. She ran for the office on the Federalist Party ticket, defeating her opponent Miss Lillian Gong of Miami, Fla., who ran for the post on the Nationalist ticket. The election was held at the group's headquarters at American University.

Girls' Nation, which is being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, is composed of two delegates from every State in the Union with the exception of Delaware. The high school juniors came to the Nation's Capital to learn first hand the organization and functioning of our Federal Government. As part of their training they set up two political parties, conducted a campaign and elected officers. Also, they established a Congress, a Supreme Court as well as the executive branches of the government.

Miss Kethley, a rising student at McAllen High School, was elected Governor of Texas Girls State. Last year she served as president of the junior class, and was elected the "most popular" of the class. Besides serving as director of the Thespian Club, she was editor of the school annual, and won top honors for two summers in archery.

Elected on the Nationalist ticket to serve with Miss Kethley were Miss Alice Jean Wright of Chillicothe, Mo., as vice president, and Miss Marlyn Joy Tarshish of Columbus, Ohio, as secretary.

AFTER conceding the possibility of a future "Madame President" in the Executive Mansion, President Truman shakes hands with Lillian Gong of Miami, Fla., defeated nominee for president of Girls' Nation, and Kennon Kethley of McAllen, Tex., who was elected President on the Federalist ticket. The President received the youthful delegates to girls' Nation, which is being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary in the rose garden at the White House yesterday morning

NINETY-FOUR delegates to Girls' Nation, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, met Secretary of State George C. Marshall in the State Department Auditorium yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. A. Campbell, chairman of Girls' Nation (at left) looks on as the enthusiastic high school leaders listen attentively to the Secretary's advice

Countess Tolstoy's Farm Is White Russian Haven For Humble and Regal

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

KIDNAPING stories involving Russians are old hat. Remember back in the early '30s when two White Russian generals were plucked from a busy Paris boulevard? Eyewitnesses saw one general hustled into an automobile, the other picked up under equally conspicuous conditions. As far as we know neither of them was heard from again.

Remember when, shortly after the last war, a Soviet hideaway just outside Paris was raided? It was here that White Russians and former Bolsheviks who had somehow gotten out of Russia and were reluctant to return, were "persuaded," far from the distractions of Paris.

So stories about the confused school teacher, Mme. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina, whose "kidnaping" has caused so much excitement, are not surprising.

Some years ago, as guest of the son of a former Foreign Minister and Ambassador to France from Czarist Russia, this department visited the Tolstoy Foundation's Reed Farm, from which Mme. Kosenkina was summarily removed. Scattered around the main building, a very large white farmhouse, were a number of cottages. The cottages were occupied by family units and each member had his or her appointed task helping in the farm's colony. Our friend, once a great elegante in Paris, kept the chickens, hundreds of them scratching through an old orchard. He felt about chickens much as did Betty McDonald of "The Egg and I" fame but nevertheless was doing a good job. His mother, who had once queened it in Paris as wife of the Russian Ambassador, in St. Petersburg as wife of a brilliant foreign minister, lived with her son, as did an unmarried daughter. The mother retained great style, in a well cut old suit, immaculate white gloves, though she did housework, and for all we know gathered eggs. Upstairs in the main house some of the beds were in dormitories, others in cubicles, others in private rooms. Eating was done on a long oilcloth covered table in a hall, or in the huge kitchen where women who had bossed dozens of servants, and some of the servants themselves, created wonderfully economical dishes a la Russe with cabbage and other piecers-out featured. A majestic old Orthodox priest, complete with long hair and beard, and high stovepipe hat, intoned grace before meals in a bass deeper than Chaliapin's.

HELPING here, there, never resting, was the Countess Tolstoy then, as now, gray-haired, stout, uncosmeticized, perpetually helping others. Youngest daughter of the great novelist, she'd lived some years under the Bolsheviks, who regarded her father with awe, left Russia when, after his death, his estates were confiscated. Reed Farm was one of the first moves in setting up the Tolstoy Foundation, and among those who contributed to its maintenance were numerous White Russians who had made good in this country.

Herbert Hoover, too, worked tirelessly for the Countess' cause and is now honorary president of the foundation. Over 200 White Russians of all ages can be taken care of at Reed Farm. Some stay briefly until they get other jobs, others with no place else to go, stay on. Since the last war Countess Tolstoy's efforts have broadened. The foundation sponsors a sanatorium for White Russians in Salzburg, an orphanage outside Paris takes care of a special DP camp in Holstein, send thousands of food packages to its people stil in DP camps.

PERHAPS the Countess' most rewarding work is tracking down White Russians not only in DP camps but those in hiding all over Europe. Though actually there are only 8000 White Russians in DP camps today, it is estimated that there are 300,000 refugees from Soviet terror undercover in Europe.

The Countess not only tries to contact them but endeavors to sift out the most deserving for eventual immigration into this country. Her contacts are made in many ways, but an effective method has been the reestablishment and support of some 120 Greek Orthodox parishes scattered about Europe. Her newest project, in which the foundation's Washington branch is helping, is to organize a league to help victims of Communist oppression. A number of leading Americans, educators, bankers, artists are very much interested in it.

The Countess not only manages Reed Farm but spends much time speaking to various organizations, raising money, organizing ways to help her White Russians, both of humble and grand origin. Her work with DP's is dangerous and it would surprise no one if some day the Countess herself was kidnaped and dragged from her farm.

AAUW Welcomes Vacationers at Tea

Dr. Elizabeth Conrad, president of the Washington branch, American Association of University Women, welcomed back group members, who were away during the summer months, at the weekly informal tea held yesterday in the clubhouse.

Among the returning members was Mrs. James Haswell, back from Lansing and Detroit, Mich., accompanied to the tea by her two daughters, Judy and Janet; Mrs. Josephine Junkin Doggett, chairman of the clubhouse committee, who recently returned from Texas; Miss Maxine Girts and Miss Clyde Roberts, who attended summer school at Penn State, and Mrs. Leslie Whitten, back from a West Coast trip.

Miss Elsie Green presided at the tea table and Mrs. Lemuel Bowles was tea hostess.

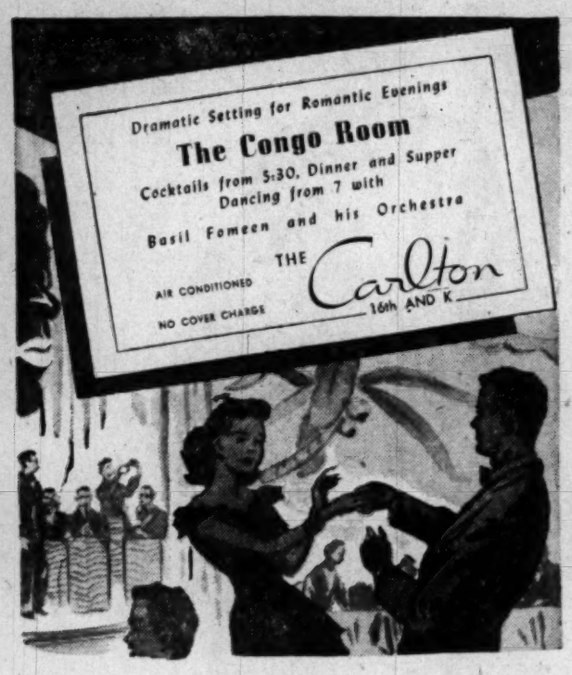
Loose Buttons

If the buttons on sonny's suit seem loose, it is well to remove them before laundering. They are apt to become lost in the wash and if they should just dangle they will be in the way during wringing and ironing. Sew them on after ironing.

Sharp Tools

It is economy to have your paring and carving knives of good steel so they can be kept very sharp. A dull knife is wasteful, as it hacks at the vegetable or meat instead of cutting even, economical slices.



Ask Anne About Canning Tomatoes

Can you give me instructions in canning tomatoes? Can it be done in a large uncovered vessel? How should the tomatoes be prepared, etc.? L. C. J.

Here are instructions for canning tomatoes by processing in a boiling water bath.

Use only ripe, firm, perfect tomatoes. Even if you cut out a bad spot, bacteria may be left and ruin the whole batch.

Wash tomatoes clean in several waters. Be careful not to bruise. Then put tomatoes in a wire basket or thin cloth. Dip into boiling water about a minute, then quickly into cold, to make them easy to peel.

Cut out stem ends and peel. Quarter tomatoes so they'll heat quickly. Heat tomatoes in their own juice, adding no water. Let them come to a rolling boil. Meantime heat clean jars and lids in hot water.

When ready to pack, take one jar at a time from hot water. Using a funnel, fill the jars with hot tomatoes. Cover with hot juice to within ½ inch of top. Add a teaspoon of salt to each quart. Work fast, so tomatoes won't cool.

Work out air bubbles by running a knife blade down inside the side of the jar. Add more juice if needed. Wipe jar with clean, damp cloth. Fit hot wet rubber band on jar or lid (depending on what type tops you have). Screw tops on tight, then turn back just a quarter of a turn so that top and jar mesh together.

Put jars in large kettle of water. A jar holder is handy for this purpose. Have water 1 to 2 inches over top. It will be best if you have a lid on the kettle. When water boils hard, start counting time. Let water boil 10 minutes. Then take out jars, one at a time, and quickly tighten screw top, using a heavy cloth to protec tyour hands. Keep jars top side up and place on thick cloth or paper to cool. While cooling, keep them well apart and out of draft.

PETUNIA!

Bishop-Bracken

Is gold paint suitable for radiator and heating pipes? M. B. E.

Gold or silver metallic paint cuts down to some extent on the amount of heat thrown off by a radiator. In fact, it cuts the delivery of heat waves by about one-sixth. The heating power of the radiator is greater of it is bare or finished with oil paint. A six-section radiator finished with oil paint will throw off as much heat in the form of heat waves as a seven-section radiator of the same size finished in gold or silver.

We have recently moved to a house which has woodwork oil finished in sort of a light red maple color. Could you tell me the best way of caring for this type woodwork? It is dull and has quite a few stains on window sills and pencil and crayola marks, as well as marks from black rubber on the door. H. C. S.

I'd suggest cleaning the woodwork with a furniture wash made by mixing 3 tablespoons linseed oil and 1 tablespoon turpentine in 1 quart hot water. Let cool after mixing, then wring cloth out of this solution and wash small portion of woodwork at a time. Dry with soft cloth. Polish by rubbing with grain of wood when dry, using extra linseed oil or furniture polish if necessary. If this does not take off more stubborn stains and marks, mix powdered pumice or rottenstone with linseed oil to make a paste. Then rub the spots with this, on a soft cloth, rubbing with the grain of the wood.

Could you tell me where I could have a black skunk coat made into a cape? E. J.

Look under "Furriers" in the yellow section of the telephone book for the name of a firm that does remodeling. Prices and workmanship will vary, so you'll probably want to consult with several before deciding where to have your coat altered.

With regard to L.M.'s letter about where to sell two Japanese kimonos, I suggest she try any of the Oriental curico stores around town. Most of them are having trouble getting Chinese or Japanese things and might be interested. One shop she might try is, a new one located near the Mayflower Hotel. I should love to see the kimonos, but only to admire! M. S. B.

Attention J. B. W.: "I'm sorry to advise that we do not use plant or flower questions in this column.

New Version for Baking That Chiffon Cake

Here's a brand new version of that famous "chiffon" cake everyone has been talking about lately—the one that's credited with being "the first new cake in 100 years."

ROYAL HAWAIIAN CHIFFON CAKE

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup cooking or salad oil
¾ cup cold water
Grated ring of 1 lemon (about 2 teaspoons)
1 cup egg whites (7 to 8)
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
7 unbeaten egg yolks (medium-sized)
2 teaspoons vanilla

(1) Heat oven to 325 degrees Fahrenheit (slow moderate). Sift an ample amount of flour on a square of paper. Measure and sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together in a bowl.

(2) Make a well in dry ingredients and add oil, egg yolks, cold water, vanilla and lemon rind in order listed. Beat with spoon until smooth.

(3) Pour egg whites into large mixing bowl and whip until they form very stiff peaks. They should be much stiffer than for angel food or meringue. Do not underbeat.

(4) Pour egg yolk mixture gradually over whipped whites, gently folding with rubber scraper just until blended. Do not stir.

(5) Pour into ungreased 10-inch tube pan, 4 inches deep, immediately. Bake 55 minutes in slow moderate oven (325 degrees), then increase to moderate oven (350 degrees) for 10 to 15 minutes, or until top springs back when lightly touched.

Turn pan upside down immediately, placing tube part over neck of funnel or bottle, or resting edges of oblong pan on two other pans. Let hang, free of table, until cold. Loosen from sides and tube with spatula. Turn pan over, hit edge on table to loosen. Cover with Royal Hawaiian Icing, made as follows:

2 tablespoons high grade shortening
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
½ cup drained crushed pineapple

Cream butter, shortening, salt and ½ cup confectioner's sugar together. Then add alternately the rest of the sugar and the crushed pineapple. Beat until creamy. Spread on cake. This recipe makes 16 to 20 servings of cake.

Orange Cream, Made in Ice Tray, Smooth

IT'S SMOOTH, this frozen orange cream, made in the tray of your automatic refrigerator. Use the following ingredients:

2/3 cup evaporated milk (undiluted)
1 cup unstrained orange juice
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 scant teaspoon grated orange rind
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
¼ cup light corn sirup
1 cup whipping cream

Measure fruit juices, sugar, salt, sirup, and grated rind into a bowl, mixing well to dissolve sugar. Stir in the evaporated milk. Pour into a freezing tray and place in the coldest part of the freezing unit until partially frozen.

Whip cream to custard-like consistency and fold into the fruit mixture. Return to freezing compartment. The texture is better if it is beaten once during the freezing. This recipe makes approximately 1 quart.

Average Air Hostess Is 23, a Brownette

United Air Lines began asking itself questions the other day and found that it had a charming, versatile young lady in its midst—Miss Average Stewardess.

Based on a survey of the airline's 677 sky girls, she's 5 feet 5, weighs 117, never diets and has brown hair which she usually wears short. She's 23 years old and was born and reared in a town of more than 2500. She smokes, likes to bowl, swim and collect records, and she almost always gets eight hours of sleep. She likes to play the piano, prefers popular to classical music.

She likes to cook and her favorite dish is steak, but she's more than partial to chicken, apple pie and chocolate cake.

Though she likes being a United stewardess, she grounds herself to get married after an average of only 18 months in the air—and chances are the lucky guy is a hometown sweetheart or someone connected with the aviation industry.

For Children's Safety

Check List for Mothers To Combat Accidents

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

In order to cut down the appalling toll of accidents in the home, parents have to be aware of them and how to avoid them.

It may come as a shock to the average housewife to know that in 1947, 25,200 persons died of accidents in the home. We know that children are especially prone to have accidents because they are unaware of danger, awkward and incautious in their movements. Parents are compelled to think for them, as well as for themselves. It takes imagination to envisage the danger possibilities of any home situation and remove them, without putting the burden for protecting himself, entirely on the helpless child.

Public Affairs Pamphlet No. 133 contains a pertinent list of questions to be asked of housewives. These questions highlight the danger points in the home.

"Are stairs free of boxes, brooms, garden tools and other tripping hazards?

"Are children taught not to run downstairs or slide down banisters?

"Are small rugs kept away from head and foot of stairs and landings? Is stair carpet fastened securely?

"Are you careful never to touch a light switch or socket and a grounded, metal object—such as a sink—at the same time?

"Are matches kept out of children's reach?

"When lighting an oven or broiler and gas burners, do you open both oven and broiler doors, and do you stand to one side?

"Are bath tub and shower equipped with hand-holds and nonskid mats?

"Are poisons marked clearly (with pins in cork or adhesive around bottle or tube and kept out of children's reach?

"Has your wash wringer an easily operated safety release? Do you wear a head covering to avoid being scalped by the wringer?

"Have porcelain and rubber insulated cords been installed in basement and bathroom?

"Is furniture placed to avoid painful collisions in the dark?

"Do you know the location of water, gas and electric shut-offs?

"Do you repair worn-out electric cords?"

Too often when the fatal accident happens parents wake up, for the first time, to the potential, lethal objects present or mishandled in the average home.

Disguised Nourishment

If your family should drink milk and will not do it, hide it in the food and the benefit will be the same. Look in your cook book for recipes containing a quantity of milk and use one at each meal. One night a cream soup, the next night a vegetable with a cream sauce, the next a tasty pudding, the following a chowder. You will be surprised how easily it can be done.

This classic coat, cut on princess lines, is from Jane Derby's latest collection. Made of dark grey corduroy, it has buttons of smoked pearl. The perfect garment for town or country wear

Directoire Collars Feature Paris Coat Fashions for Fall

Paris, Aug. 9 (AP).—Fall fashions now being shown by Robert Piguet and Charles Montaigne are a further indication that high, chin-hugging waistlines are going to be the vogue this fall.

These Directoire collars, which are like outsize reverses mounted to step up deeply from the neck instead of being flat, are seen on every coat in the Montaigne collection. They are open-faced with short-haired fur such as leopard or seal.

Both houses feature blouses with Tallyerand collars of satin or taffeta that cup the chin and lend a Parisian touch to dressy black suits.

Robert Piguet employs a very high Empire waistline on all his dresses and coats, but instead of the skirts falling straight from this bust-level line as they did in the days of Josephine, he molds them into a princess silhouette with the most indented waistline seen thus far in the fall shows.

His models have a definite hourglass look. The skirts fall smoothly over the hips and are mildly flared. Montaigne, on the other hand, has introduced occasionally intricate hip drapery and even a barrel silhouette.

Topcoats by Piguet encase the shoulders and bust tightly. They either flare out on paneled princess lines or have fullness fluting out from unpressed pleats set center-back level. He sets 6-inch-wide corsette half belts at the back.

In the Montaigne collection topcoats are much baggier but fullness still falls from about the same region. One in mustard velour had an outside Directoire collar.

A saucy hat by Montaigne was in rust and black interchecked gabardine. It paired with a voluminous matching raincoat. It looked rather like a fisherman's hat with a melon-shaped crown and wide brim which turned up in front and dipped down to reach the nape of the neck at the back. The brim was faced with black patent leather.

Piquet has a practical treatment for his stoles. He shapes them into a cape in the middle and has two long ends dangling on either side. He makes them to match many dresses. Black velvet he faces with gay wool plaid or rose satin. He lines midnight blue with black seal. One particularly luxurious one came in mink.

Both houses show straight-lined evening wear. Piguet has taken a leaf out of Pierre Balmain's book by showing slinky numbers split nearly to the knee in front and with a tail-like train at the back.

American Women Urged to Save Fats

Are there any surplus fats around your place? What about that can of rancid lard? What becomes of the grease your sausages were canned in? Are you saving drippings, skimmings and scoopings of used fat from your cooking?

The sum total of all these little remnants of fats in American homes adds up to gigantic tonnage. And this volume of fats is urgently needed to keep world supplies of fats and oils from getting even more scarce.

American women are urged to rush all used cooking fat to the meat dealer, who will pay them for every pound.

Table Settings Harmonize With Meals

OH TO be a housewife in this day of packaged homemaking!

Newest gimmick for the housewife is a table ensemble—dinnerware, cloth, napkins and glasses, packaged and planned to achieve harmony in table settings.

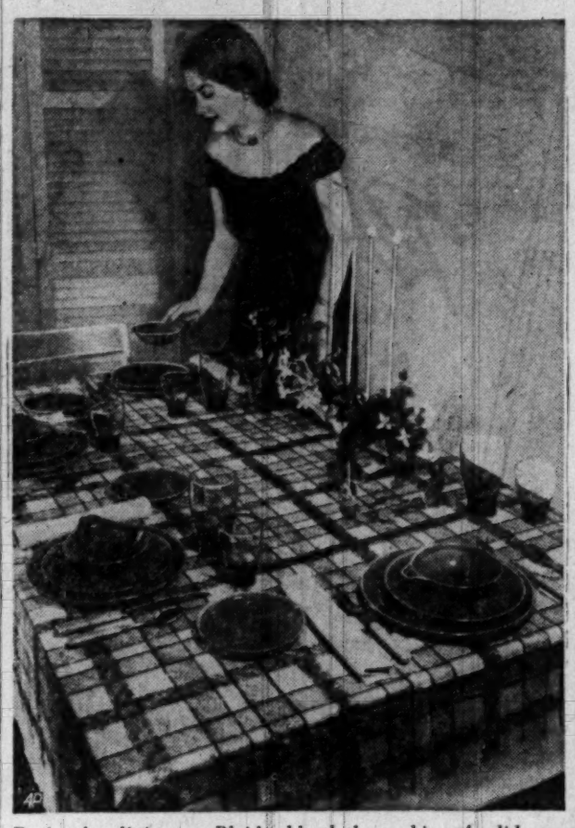
Russell Wright, who designed this easy way out for housewives, says he coordinated this ensemble because "color and form in serving accessories as a group, and as related to food, are given little, if any, importance."

The average housewife who tolerates a drab table setting three meals a day may never notice that a too-severe table arrangement is disturbing to the mood and appetite of the diners. It is just as shocking to their digestion, perhaps, as viewing a live alligator used as a centerpiece. Mr. Wright, whose American modern dishes were introduced 10 years ago says:

"If dining is to be a pleasant experience, aside from serving and eating in an orderly manner, table service should have two basic purposes. First, it should create a background for the food, show off its color and form. Second, it should establish a mood for the diner—either for the food or for the occasion or both."

Since food shapes are natural in form, dishes should be regular and geometric, never so obtrusive as to distract from the food they hold, he believes. The main thing is to limit the colors on the table in order to avoid a too starting effect, he says.

In his mix-match sets, Mr. Wright has accomplished just that. He has designed three tablecloths to which the settings are coordinated. A brush stroke pattern done in a gray and chartreuse comes with matching gary or blue pottery, hand-blown glassware in any one of four shades. Napkins are in solid colors. It achieves a quiet, but dramatic charm for any table.



Recipe for dining . . . Plaid table cloth, napkins of solid gray or yellow, tapered hand-blown glasses with sham-bottoms to lessen spill-ability and modern dinnerware, will soon be available in a service-for-four package. Designed by Russell Wright

Outwitting the Moths

The homemaker trying to keep her belongings free from the ravages of moths can take a few tips from Wilbur A. Claflin who has been knowing the ways of a moth for over 40 years.

Mr. Claflin, who handles over five million dollars worth of furs a year as head of storage for a leading department store in Washington, will tell you that the moth is a peace-loving creature who definitely does not want to oc disturbed. Therefore, one way to defeat him on home territory is to move wool things about in the clothes closet at least once a week through the spring and summer months.

Spraying with commercial sprays helps, too. And of course, it is taken for granted in the battle against moths that all garments have been thoroughly cleaned.

Likes Undyed Furs

The moth likes his furs as nature intended them. He will pass over the dyed fur to the natural hued skins any day of the week.

The eating habits of the moth are very regular, says Mr. Claflin. If you find one small place where he has eaten, you are certain to locate another an inch or two away, and probably a third a little further on. Coats brought into storage are gone over with a blower. One tuft of loose fur starts the hunt for those nearby two bites.

Cold storage vaults such as Mr. Claflin commands are kept at a temperature of about 20 degrees. This will kill the worm and the moth miller, but not the moth egg. And so, approximately once a week the new compressor controls specially designed by Minneapolis-Honeywell engineers, allow the temperatures to go up to around 50 degrees—just enough to hatch the egg but not to harm the furs.

Magic Eye for Fire

In Mr. Claflin's vaults there is also a magic eye which detects the first whiff of any smoke and sets off a fire alarm.

Despite the fact that he has been going in and out of frigid temperatures without topcoat or hat for so many years, Mr. Claflin never has a cold. He thinks colds are prevented by keeping one's self generally fit.

In his years of working with them, Mr. Claflin has come to know and admire furs. His ambition in life?

By Ida Jean Kain

Some exercises do more harm than good. It's just as well to know which ones to avoid. Your prompt reaction may be that you'll just skip the whole lot of them to be on the safe side. But that won't keep you on the svelte side.

The well-known exercise of lying on back on floor, legs straight down, and raising the legs slowly, knees straight, and then slowly and painfully lowering legs to the floor, is not what it's cracked up to be. That's a tough one to do—so rugged that it feels streamlining as all get-out. But it can exaggerate the tendency toward swayback and in that way actually make the stomach appear larger!

Also, that exercise involves strain, and if it is taken you should count out loud or whistle in order to equalize the pressure in the chest and abdomen. And since that exercises uses the muscles of the lower back for a large part of the action, it's really not very streamlining. Skip it.

There is not much percentage in taking an exercise to correct one fault if it brings on another. Since most of our work is forward bending, I try to avoid giving exercises which continue this movement and tend to bring the head forward.

Instead of lying on your back and raising your head to look at toes, reverse position and take this exercise: Lie face down, arms out at sides, shoulder level, then raise head and arms. This counteracts the forward-bending tendency. In doing this exercise, first fix the pelvis, by contracting both the abdominal and buttock muscles, to center the action on the upper back and pull the shoulders beautifully into line. To add resistance and make it even more effective, hold a book in each hand and raise arms backward lifting the books.

In taking any exercise, concentrate on the exact muscles that need toning. In all exercises to tone the abdominal muscles, for example, the up-and-in pull of the muscles that form the abdominal wall must be held throughout the entire exercise—otherwise the action is all through the hips.

To get the idea, try this: Lie on back on floor, arms down at sides, legs elevated to chair seat to counteract the tug of gravity. The exercise is to bring alternate knees briskly to chest, while both arms are stretched back on floor overhead—pulling slim through the middle. First do this without fixing the pelvis by contraction of the abdominals, and you'll see it doesn't do much for the middle muscles. Then pull strongly up and in with the abdominals, and hold this contraction as you bring alternate knees to chest and stretch arms back on floor overhead. That gives a definite up-lift.

In Bridal Procession

Miss Nellie Irene Tusing, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Franklin Tusing and the late Mr. Tusing of New Market, Va., became the bride of William Graham Porterfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Porterfield of Marion, Va., August 8. The candlelight ceremony took place at Luther Place Memorial Church in Washington with the Rev. Charles G. Tusing of Pulaski, Va., brother of the bride, officiating.

The bride's gown was of white satin with seed pearl embroidery outlining the neckline. The full skirt was fashioned with a bustle. Her veil of illusion, banded in Chantilly lace, fell from a halo of seed pearls and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Frank Edmunds of Washinghton was matron of honor and the other attendants were Mrs. Frank S. Jackson of Washington and Mrs. William H. Clark of Bethesda, Md., a sister of the bride. Mary Jo Tusing and Judy Tusing, nieces of the bride, were flower girls and Douglas Clark, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph M. Tusing of Portsmouth, Va. The Rev. Joseph Killinger of Mount Jackson, Va., was best man, and the ushers were Frank Edmunds, Henry M. Tusing, Thomas W. Tusing and Robert E. Morton.

A reception was held in the parish hall of the church after which the couple left for a wedding trip. They will reside in Prince Georges Garden Apartments in Hyattsville, Md.

Mr. Porterfield served with the Naval Air Forces in the Pacific during the war.

Homemaking Hints

Keep the drawers of the bureau and dresser tightly closed when not in use and remember to keep the window shades even. Two apparently small things, but what an appearance of orderliness they add to the bedroom.

Many housewives are having discarded outside shutters hinged for inside use. The slatted shutters blend in with the popular Venetian blinds and when painted to match the woodwork of the room are a decided addition, besides their use in shielding from drafts and at the same time allowing some air to come through the slats.

VETERANS! For the first time you can choose and serve with an Army unit stationed in the U. S.! Thousands of Veterans of all the Armed Forces have asked about enlisting for service with a U. S. Army unit now stationed in the United States. This privilege is now offered to all Veterans who have had overseas service since September 2, 1945. You may select any one of eight famous combat divisions stationed in continental United States, and enlist for three full years of service with that division. You will have an opportunity to maintain the defensive strength of your country at home. You will take part in training the thousands of new volunteers who are joining the Army every month. You asked for it! Here it is! Get all the facts at the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station at 463 10th St. N.W.

THE NEWER APPROACH
To solving job problems is to secure expert advice. We have a staff exceptionally well qualified to aid you in the selection of your proper niche and to assist you in securing the proper contacts.

Bank Patron Mourns Lack of "Interest"

Up to recently, I was sure that the worst pest in the world was the fellow who suddenly turned left from the right-hand lane.

But I'm keeping an open mind on the subject, while you consider the qualifications of another type of pain-in-the-neck—the guy who does his bookkeeping at the bank teller's window. Somehow, I always manage to get behind him.

When he enters the bank, he gets right into line, without stopping at a writing desk first. He does his writing on your time.

Before the teller can wait on him, he must endorse a stack of checks, and sign a few others. Then he does some furious figuring on the back of an envelope, and suddenly darts away to see the bookkeeper.

Thinking that it's finally your turn, you shove your transaction through the window. But the teller has another 5 minutes of work to do for your predecessor, who eventually comes bustling back from the bookkeeper's window with more checks, notes, memoranda and cash—neatly compartmentalized between his fingers.

And he's not the least bit bashful about shoving right in ahead of you, and taking up where he left off.

When we ran into one of those birds the other day, the man behind me shifted uneasily from one foot to the next, and after about 10 minutes muttered:

"Instead of trying to cash this check, I should have gotten war bonds with it; I'd have earned some interest by now."

INNER TUBE, OUTER TUBE

During the war, A. P. Stockvis of 209 S. Patrick st., Alexandria, Va., was with the WPB's rubber division. He recalls enough tire lore to answer my prevacation question about air pressure.

He says that Lifeguard tubes should take the same amount of pressure as any other kind, but cautions that after inflating the tube, one should wait about five minutes before making a final accurate check. It takes a while for the air pressure to balance itself between the inner and outer tubes.

District Liner Stockvis also points out that, as a rule, tire manufacturers and auto makers disagree on the proper amount of tire inflation.

The tire people want you to get long mileage, so they usually recommend about four pounds more than the auto manufacturers—who want you to have a more comfortable ride.

Suggested solution: "Split the difference between them."

YOU CAN'T WIN, KIDS

A 12-year-old relative of mine thinks that manufacturers of golf equipment are following short-sighted policies.

Before the war they used to make small clubs for youngsters, on the sound theory that they were encouraging the development of adult golfers who would buy their equipment.

But postwar shortages coupled with extraordinary consumer demand have made it impossible for the manufacturers to fill all their orders. So they've quit making anything except standard sizes.

"They'll be sorry a couple of years from now," says my 12-year-old relative, "when they find I've grown up to be a baseball player instead of a golfer."

I haven't got the heart to tell him that they'll be getting his money anyhow—because the same firms make both kinds of equipment.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Bette Melton of 2445 15th st. nw. poses two questions which I can't answer. See what you can do with them:

1. Who are the people portrayed in the murals in the Wisconsin ave. Hot Shoppe, and what is the significance?

2. Is the house immediately behind the House of Terrestrial Magnetism, on Broad Branch rd., a private residence, a club or what?

Not only am I unable to answer those questions, but I'd like to add one of my own:

What's the "House o. Terrestrial Magnetism?"

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—The citizens of Bayside, Long Island, are planning a celebration in honor of John Golden, the producer, for halting a municipal project which would have impaired the value of their property. Golden owns a 20-acre home in Bayside. Some years ago he and his neighbors were disturbed by an announcement that a new airport would be built in Bayside. They already were suffering from the plane traffic at the Flushing Airport. Golden complained to his friend Bill Carey, who was sanitation commissioner. Carey then was being sued by the residents of another part of Long Island for dumping city garbage nearby.

"Why don't you see LaGuardia about it?" Carey suggested. "Tell him that instead of building the new airfield at Bayside, the city should build it on that garbage dump." "Where is this garbage dump?" asked Golden. Carey sent him the maps describing the property. The next day Golden went to the Mayor's office and told his story. LaGuardia studied the maps, placed his finger on the spot used as a garbage dump, and vowed: "That's where the new airport will be." And that's how Idlewild, the new international airport which was dedicated by Truman last Saturday, came into being.

The current talking-dog story is of the man who assured his friends that his dog could talk. "What's the top of a building called?" he asked the dog. The dog answered: "Wrrrr—oof" . . . "Right," said the man. "And what's the upper part of the mouth called?" . . . The dog answered: "Wrrr-oof" . . . "Right," said the man. "And who was the thirty-second President of the United States?"

The dog answered: "Wrrr—or was it Coolidge?"

Political Donors Expect Favors

By Drew Pearson

The sad, Un-American story of how a Congressman's campaign contributions sometimes go hand in hand with certain favors—even such favors as getting men preferred positions in the Army—is revealed in another chapter in the political life of Congressman J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey Republican.

Pearson

Believing that Congressmen who investigate other people should be able to withstand investigation themselves, this column has done some probing into the operations of that famous prober—J. Parnell Thomas.

Already it has developed that Thomas, though chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, where he should set an example to the world, received kickbacks from three alleged office-workers who didn't come anywhere near his office; also kept one boy away from overseas duty by telling the Army he was an undercover agent for the Un-American Committee. However, this is only part of the story. Here is some more.

In 1944, when Congressman Thomas was up for reelection he received $200 for his campaign expenses from Hyman Tiplitz, 162 Fifth Avenue, New York, manufacturer of Hy-Type Clothes. Again in 1946, Thomas received $100 from Tiplitz for his primary expenses and $200 for his general election campaign.

Now Hyman Tiplitz does not live in New Jersey, is not one of Thomas' constituents. Therefore why should he take the trouble to contribute? Here was the reason:

In 1942, the first year of the war, Hyman Tiplitz had a son George, in the Army, whose job was to line up entertainment for troops at Fort Hancock, N. J. On April 15, 1942, young Tiplitz wrote Representative Thomas:

"Last week our entire regiment was examined to find those physically fit for foreign and field duty. The doctors found me to be in perfect physical condition. Monday of this week I was given yellow fever injection. All this comes after a War Department letter advising all station complements that their personnel would be composed of soldiers who are physically unfit for field duty."

Representative Thomas wrote back April 30, 1942, advising Tiplitz "not to cross any bridges . . . until you come to them, and when that time comes, you should contact me immediately."

In August, young Tiplitz figured his bridge was about to be crossed and frantically wrote Representative Thomas:

"All physically fit men will be out of this post before the first of September. . . . Every day counts."

Just what, if anything, Representative Thomas did on behalf of young Tiplitz at this particular moment is not clear from the record, but a few days later Tiplitz did get the break he so desperately wanted.

On September 4, he was transferred to the Coast Artillery. His buddies went overseas, but, despite his excellent physical condition, Tiplitz was transferred to the Coast Artillery, later going to Camp Pendleton, Va., where he enjoyed the status of clerk.

But in April, 1943, Tiplitz, not satisfied with being a clerk, sought Thomas' help to get into Officers Candidate School. His commanding officer, Lieut. Edward A. Coudriet, jr., recommended him, but Capt. Bruce T. Nash said no. "Your attention is invited to the fact that the present War Department policies regarding outstanding qualities of leadership are not indicated on the attached rating scale," wrote Captain Nash.

Representative Thomas wrote Tiplitz various cheery letters promising help in making him an officer, one of them reporting, "Just as soon as I got in Washington I got busy on this case." Another alibied, "Confidentially, we have reduced the schedule for the size of our Army."

As a member of the Military Affairs Committee, Thomas was entitled to get classified information from the War Department. But it is doubtful whether he was entitled to pass it along to others.

Meanwhile, young Tiplitz again found his unit about to go overseas, and again he appealed for help. This time he wanted to get transferred back to Fort Hancock, N. J. So Representative Thomas went to work again, and on November 22 reported back to Tiplitz:

"I have today conferred with Col. W. I. Pearson, liaison officer between the House of Representatives and the War Department, and after Colonel Pearson had reviewed the copy of Major Spotswood's letter to you and the many indorsements in favor of a transfer from Pendleton to Hancock, he indicated that he would recommend . . . that you be transferred accordingly."

On December 6, 1943, Tiplitz, apparently certain the transfer was arranged, wrote to Thomas: "Rest assured that no one knows nor has any idea about how this transfer is being effected. They understand that the pressure is being brought to bear by Fort Hancock. I have pleaded complete ignorance."

But the transfer never took place. Colonel Pearson, or someone in the Army had begun to get wise to Representative Thomas. Young Tiplitz at long last had to go to the Pacific with his Coast Artillery unit.

However, because of his status as clerk, he never did get anywhere near the battle front and wrote several letters to Thomas about this fact. One, dated June 11, 1945, from the Philippines, said almost regretfully:

"Frankly, my particular position as a clerk has given me no opportunity to see actual battle. All I know is what I hear from those who have been up front. In fact, I have yet to come across a Jap either living or dead."

Tiplitz also wrote a letter to Representative Thomas telling how he had saved "over $500 since he left Hawaii and I have sent the money home for dad to purchase bonds for me."

When the now chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee received this letter, he pencilled a circle round the $500 and put it away for future reference. Significantly, it was exactly $500 that the Tiplitz family contributed to Thomas' reelection campaign.

You Might as Well

You have the privilege to decide . . . And tell me no or yes . . . And always unto that extent . . . To rule my happiness . . . You may inform me that your heart . . . is fanciful and free . . . And, darling, I may be denied . . . Your loving company . . . But in my dreams I am the lord . . . Of all I survey . . . And I need never be concerned . . . With anything you say . . . And in my dreams you are the one . . . I treasure and adore . . . You are the everlasting love . . . My heart keeps calling for . . . And so as you are in my dreams . . . I hope you will agree . . . That you might just as well be part . . . Of my reality.
